WOMAN MEMBER IN CONGRESS IS LOBBY HELPER

Induced to Aid Low Soda Pop Tariff.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Instigation of a protest by a woman representative on the house floor against "pilfering America's sugar bowl" was one of the prize publicity stunts contrived by lobbyists for a low sugar tariff last spring, the Caraway lobby investigation committee learned today.

It was disclosed that today's witness before the committee, Junior Owens, secretary of the American Institute of Carborated Beverages, suggested the plan as "a master stroke" for the soda pop interests who want to sell pop for a nickel a bottle and, hence, need cheap sugar. Mrs. Ruth Pratt (Rep., N. Y.), was chosen to do the speechmaking.

JUNIOR OWENS.

To what extent she fell for the idea was indicated by the Congressional Record, which revealed that she delivered a low sugar tariff speech to the house on May 20.

Adjourn for Holidays.

Disclosure of the designs of the sugar lobbyists upon the talents of Mrs. Pratt was a development in the lobby quiz at today's session. After questioning Mr. Owens for two hours, the committee adjourned until after the holidays.

Later, Chairman Caraway [Dem., Ark.], presented to the senate a report denouncing the lobbying activities of J. A. Arnold of the so-called southern tariff association. The report described Arnold as a man "utterly without regard for veracity and no saving sense of self-respect."

Lobbying for Soda Pop.

Mr. Owens of the soda pop organization freely admitted authorship of a letter to H. H. Pike, New York sugar broker, in which he proposed the idea of persuading Mrs. Pratt to fight high sugar duties. He laughed with the rest of the crowd when Senator Walsh [Dem., Mont.] read the letter. It stated:

"I think it would be a master stroke if we could get Mrs. Pratt to openly lead the fight on the floor of the house against pilfering America's sugar bowl through an increased duty. If she would get on the floor and speak constructively against this raid, calling attention of the women of the country to this attempt to make an additional levy on one of the basic household commodities, it would mean much publicity in every home in the land.

"In my opinion such a move would be of untold value to Mrs. Pratt, provided she is ambitious to be one of the outstanding women of America. It is one of those cases where it is six for her and six for us.

Suggestion Partly Followed.

"That would be my idea of a suggestion to her. We could furnish her all the material she needs to make the fight and, of course, we would be more glad to do it."

Although Mrs. Pratt did not exactly follow to Mr. Owens' idea, she did, on May 20 speech in the house, express herself as emphatically opposed to the sugar tariff increase, citing the obvious impossibility of an expansion in the sugar industry in this country to a point where it can hope to supply our needs."

Many newspapers reported the speech.

Mr. Owens testified that he was a former Chicago newspaper man and that his present salary is $16,800 a year. He made no attempt to conceal the fact that his organization campaigned actively against high sugar duties. He named as big members of the "institutions" association the firm bottling Coca-Cola, Orange Crush, White Rock, Canada Dry and Cliquot Club ginger ale, and other soft drinks, explaining that the 1,300 bottling concerns in America used 300,000 pounds of sugar annually.

Money for Tariff Fight.

The A. B. C. association has spent $25,000 this year on the tariff fight, he said—$250 a month each to David J. Lewis of Cumberland, former Democratic representative, and member of the tariff [illegible]

CAR FLOAT HITS CROWDED BOAT OFF NEW YORK

Quick Rescue Work Averts Disaster.

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—More than 700 passengers were taken off the Jersey Central ferryboat West Point tonight after she had been rammed amidships by a heavy car float in the Hudson river off 42d street.

The moment it was hit the ferry listed and water flooded the engine room. Capt. George Youmans, the ferry skipper, had the ship's siren sounded and brought a fleet of rescue ships hurrying to his aid.

Until the rescue craft came alongside, the car float kept its nose in the hole it had made, preventing the ferry from overturning. When it pulled away, great volumes of water rushed in. The boilers and lights were not affected and the passengers were transferred without accident.

Immigrants on Board.

Among the passengers were several hundred immigrants just released from Ellis Island. Together with Christmas shoppers and commuters, they had boarded the West Point at 42d street before 7 p. m. The night was clear and the visibility was good, the 3 day fog having lifted early in the day.

The West Point, a double decked craft, was brilliantly lighted. The ship shivered as the car float struck. A moment later men and women were flocking out on deck to see what had happened. They were nervous because of the sirens screaming all around them. The deck hands passed around trying to keep the passengers calm.

Turn Searchlight on Ferry.

Within a few minutes the West Point was a focal point for a battery of other ships' searchlights.

The huge electric ferry Grenville Kane, piloted by Capt. Thomas Barry, drifted close to the West Point's stern and a moment later the transfer of passengers began. The change over was effected rapidly. In all, the Grenville Kane took off about 350 persons.

On the port side, where the hole had been made, the tug boat 32 of the New York Central line was engaged in rescue work. Its crew leaned over to help men and women who stepped to the tug's deck through the shattered windows of the West Point.

All the survivors were landed at Weehawken, where the station master, in response to the commuters' pleading, had a special train prepared to take them to their various destinations along the main line of the Jersey Central.

Immigrants Bewildered.

The immigrants, among them many women and children, all in fantastic garb, were bewildered by the crash. They stood about, talking excitedly in foreign tongues until they were started on their journey to outlying points.

The New York Central tugs, in the meantime, had taken over the disabled West Point and had towed her to Pier B of the Erie railroad terminal. There, at 11 o'clock, she appeared to be sinking.

The car float and its piloting tug were not damaged, so far as could be learned. It was reported six or eight men and women from the ferry had leaped aboard the float.

Three Persons Injured.

Only three persons were injured in the collision. They were attended by an ambulance surgeon who was waiting at the Weehawken terminal when the electric ferries came in.

Arthur Arentson of Woodcliff, N. J., an automobile passenger, said that at first there had been little excitement aboard the West Point except for a general rush to the upper deck, but that as time wore on passengers lost their calmness. He said the immigrants became frightened when other passengers, using a sign language, motioned them to put on life preservers. Some of the foreign children were sobbing and the women were crying.

"I saw a big hole," he said, "and water was rushing in through it. Some one told me that the ship's pumps were not working very efficiently. I was of the impression that if the float that struck us had not remained jammed in the West Point, the boat would have sunk."

"We can thank God that there was no fog," said James J. Lynch of Teaneck, N. J., who was on the main deck when the crash came. "I shudder when I think of what might have happened."

The lifting of the fog outside Sandy Hook released 15 ocean liners which had been anchored there for 24 hours with more than 3,000 passengers and 2,500 sacks of Christmas mail.

WHEN THE GOOD FELLOW MOVEMENT REACHES THE CITY HALL

BEARS RAID MARKET AGAIN, BUT RETREAT SOME AT DAY'S END

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Rumors (which [illegible] were proven baseless) that one of the country's leading mail order houses might reduce or pass its dividend and that other merchandise concerns were not doing so well as their "Christmas trade" reports would seem to indicate were made the occasion for a big bear raid on the stock market today. Prices were battered down from $2 to more than $20 a share over a wide range.

Constructive forces got the upper hand in the last fifteen minutes of trading however, and succeeded in bolstering up prices slightly.

Montgomery Ward was the chief target of the bear attack. It was sold down to 42¾, a loss of about 11 points, later rebounding to 45½. Sears-Roebuck, at one time off nearly 9 points, emerged from its ordeal showing a net loss of 5⅝, while such well known department store stocks as Macy, May, and Abraham & Straus were off 5 to 8 points at the finish.

United States Steel closed at 162, off 5¾ after dropping to 158. Radio lost 4 points, and General Electric 5 on the day.

Sales for the day were 5,532,600, compared with 3,404,100 yesterday.

On their closing prices today ninety of the leading stocks on the list had lost on the average about half the gains they made on the recovery movement following the big October-November break.

Court Upholds Girl's Battle to Jail Debtor

The imprisonment of Anthony E. Heidererich, 1222 South Racine avenue, in the county jail for six months at the expense of Miss Fannie Kaplan, 20 years old, 1600 South Turner avenue, was upheld yesterday by Circuit Judge Klarkowski. Heidererich was returned to the county jail for failure to meet a $2,500 judgment won by the girl in 1925. His freedom had been sought in a habeas corpus action.

Miss Kaplan was injured by Heidererich's automobile in 1923. She brought suit for $15,000 in the Circuit court and was awarded the $2,500 in damages by a jury in 1925. Heidererich disappeared. For four years Miss Kaplan called at the sheriff's office to urge on deputy sheriffs in their search for him.

Pays for His Stay in Jail.

He was found last Nov. 30 and lodged in jail. For the first two weeks of his confinement Miss Kaplan appeared at the jail to pay $3.50, the week's bill, for his keep. Last week she was ill and instructed her attorney, John R. McCabe, to make the payment. This was done.

Friends of Heidererich petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus for his release, charging that the payment should have been made by Miss Kaplan in person and holding that confinement for debt was illegal. In opposition to this contention Attorney McCabe argued that there was a malice count in the girl's suit for damages, which would permit incarceration.

Wants to Make Him Suffer.

"He hurt me and now I intend to hurt him," Miss Kaplan said. "I am entitled to the money. If he doesn't choose to pay I want him to suffer as he made me suffer. I have found him after almost giving up hope. I bear a grudge and am more than willing to bear the expense of his jail bill."

Judge Klarkowski ruled that the confinement is legal and that payment through the attorney was proper.

Pastor Held to Grand Jury for Evanston Church Riot

The Rev. G. A. Long, pastor of the Mount Zion Colored Baptist church of Evanston, and three members of his congregation were held to the grand jury yesterday on charges of inciting a riot and assault as a result of a riot in the church two months ago. The pastor's bond was fixed at $10,000. The others held and their bonds are: Alexander Covin, $5,000; Willie Moore, $10,000, and Col. Sanders, $5,000. Charges against Simon Matthews, a deacon of the church, were dismissed. The riot started when opponents of Long interrupted a business meeting of the church. In the stampede more than twenty persons were injured.

A. A. MICHELSON RESIGNS FROM FACULTY OF U. C.

Prof. Albert A. Michelson, famous in the world of science for his experiments in measuring the speed of light, has resigned from the faculty of the University of Chicago, where for years he has been head of the department of physics. His resignation has been accepted, although with reluctance, by the board of trustees of the university, it was learned last night.

In his letter of resignation Prof. Michelson called attention to his recent illness and said that ill health forbade continuance of his faculty duties at the university. In the last few months he has undergone two operations, which were followed by a severe attack of pneumonia. He celebrated his 77th birthday anniversary on Thursday.

Despite his resignation, which becomes effective at the end of the university year, July, 1930, Prof. Michelson indicated that he does not intend to give up all his scientific work. He said that soon after the first of the year he will sail to the Bermudas for a vacation. Upon his return he will go to California for further experiments on the speed of light.

BRUSSELS SHOPS CLOSE IN BATTLE FOR LOWER TAXES

BRUSSELS, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A city-wide demonstration in favor of tax reductions began at 6 tonight. Shopkeepers complied with the request of the trades unions and banged down their shutters and snapped off their lights, leaving Christmas shoppers uncertainly milling about in the streets.

For the first time in Belgian history one could not get a drink or a meal in any of the many thousands of cafés, bars and restaurants. A few theaters were open, but most people preferred to attend protest meetings.

Resolutions demanding tax reduction and commercial liberty, condemning the policy of the government, were drawn up for transmission to King Albert, the government, and parliament.

7 DIE AS TRAIN HITS SHOPPERS' TOY LADEN AUTO

Clarinda, Ia., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Seven persons, six of them members of one family, were killed near here early tonight when the Tarkio branch passenger train of the Burlington railway struck a truck at the intersection of highway 71.

The dead:

F. E. Glass, his wife and four children.

An unidentified man.

The family was returning from a shopping trip to Clarinda and the truck was laden with toys and Christmas things.

Cold to Keep Snow Laden City in Grip

Winter Starts Tomorrow

Tomorrow marks the official beginning of winter and is the shortest of the year, the sun rising at 7:15 and setting at 4:22; there being only nine hours and seven minutes of sunshine. Winter officially makes its debut at 1:53 a. m.

Emerging buoyantly from the worst snowstorm of this decade, Chicago upon resuming its normal urban existence yesterday, found cause for some modest self congratulation, a certain amount of complaint, and a twinge of misgiving.

The twinge came when the weather bureau issued its forecast. A rather severe and protracted cold wave was predicted, but the reassuring promise of no more snow was added.

"We'll have pretty brisk weather by morning," said Forecaster C. A. Donnel last night. "We'll have zero, maybe, in the suburbs, and from 2 to 5 degrees above downtown.

Plenty of Sunshine.

"For the first time in two weeks, there'll be plenty of sunshine—but it won't help much," Mr. Donnel added. "The mercury probably won't go above 14 degrees during daylight. Towards evening it will shrink back to the starting point.

"Sunday? About the same performance, we expect. Also Monday. You can be sure the snowdrifts won't melt away before Christmas."

For the consideration of weather critics, Mr. Donel cited yesterday's temperature of 28 degrees at Atlanta, 34 at Mobile, 38 at New Orleans, 32 at San Antonio, and 30 at Vicksburg, Miss. The whole nation, excepting the Pacific coast, was shivering yesterday, according to official reports.

Crack Trains Are Late.

Travelers from the east arrived here hours late aboard snow crusted trains. The Broadway Limited of the Pennsylvania lines arrived an hour and fifteen minutes late from New York. The Century of the New York Central lines was three hours late. The Capitol limited of the Baltimore and Ohio was four hours late from Washington.

Western roads reported their transcontinental trains operating on schedule, both in and outbound. No trouble was experienced between here and Kansas City, Omaha, Minneapolis, Denver, Portland, Seattle, and California, according to officials of the western lines.

Most vehement complaints about the storm came from Chicago housewives and motorists. The housewives found faucet water so muddy as to be almost unfit for bathing, while strong injections of chlorine gave it a nauseating taste.

Snow Stays on Streets.

Motorists found the boulevards of the park system the only thoroughfares cleared of snow. Joseph J. Butler, deputy superintendent of streets, said he had 900 shovelers and 75 trucks working in the loop, but admitted their toil would be confined to the downtown district. Elsewhere the snow will be left for removal by sunshine, he said.

Fire Marshal Corrigan issued an appeal to householders who, he said, had banked the fire hydrants in cleaning their sidewalks.

Supt. of Schools Bogan issued a statement congratulating parents and the pupils who trudged to school through the drifts yesterday after classes had been suspended Thursday on account of the blizzard. Attendance yesterday was normal and few were tardy, according to Mr. Bogan's assistant, F. J. Lane.

32% REDUCTION FOR FIREMEN IN SCHMIDT'S PLAN

Teachers Payless as Vacation Begins.

Nearer Bankruptcy

The city, the school system, and the so-called "rescue committee" of leading citizens found themselves in new financial complexities yesterday, as follows:

1 The city controller's budget, on being presented to the finance committee, advised cutting the police appropriation by 41 per cent and the fire department by 32 per cent.

2 President Caldwell of the school board spent a hopeless day canvassing the banks in quest of money to pay teachers' salaries. Teachers face a salaryless Christmas.

3 The "rescue committee" was being watched by public officials, anxious to discover whether influence is being used to prevent the school board from borrowing to carry on immediate work.

Unprecedented reductions in all city departments, to hold the expenditures for 1930 within the estimated revenues and to absorb a deficit of $13,000,000 which was accumulated during the last two years, is contemplated in the proposed budget for next year sent to the council finance committee late last night by City Controller Schmidt.

The severity of the controller's recommendations and an indication of how their adoption would cripple all governmental functions was seen in his proposed appropriations for the police and fire departments.

The police force, according to Schmidt's budget, would receive $10,096,000, a reduction of 41 per cent under the 1929 appropriation of $17,366,800, and the fire department would be slashed from $3,010,360 to $5,424,000, a reduction of 32 per cent.

Work on Council Estimates.

The information failed to startle the aldermen, who are working on their own estimates for 1930 requirements, as they had been prepared in advance by rumors of the controller's action. They fumed slightly and then resumed deliberations upon their own figures supplied by the committee's financial staff.

Schmidt, however, in an attached statement, laid the groundwork for an appeal to the legislature for relief. He remarks that the corporate fund was never before in such dire straits.

Tells Need of More Funds.

"The controller believes," the statement says, "that the appropriations indicated for the ordinary patrolmen and firemen are not sufficient, and he strongly recommends that immediate steps be taken by all interested parties concerned to provide requisite funds to maintain at least the force of patrolmen and firemen on the same basis as is now in existence.

"I realize they are the backbone units of both forces and represent, unquestionably, the foundation of safety to public life and property and the necessity of maintaining morale and discipline of these departments is also immediately concerned in this recommendation.

"Under these conditions I think that the residents of Chicago will provide funds to meet these obligations."

Table Shows Comparisons.

Dep't—	Controller.	1929.	Cut
Police	$10,096,000	$17,366,800	41
Fire	5,424,000	8,010,360	32
Streets and alleys	6,687,000	7,943,934	15
Law	726,800	1,022,649	28
Health	1,908,000	2,849,342	33
Parks and playgrounds	636,000	878,331	28
Municipal court—
Chief justice	450,000	474,800	5
Clerk	965,000	1,121,600	14
Bailiff	849,000	905,932	19
Election commissioners	965,000	1,375,369	34
Smoke abatement	22,000	70,000	72

The figures show that in several departments the controller has made nearly double the cut that the finance committee has proposed in working out its budget. The controller's reductions under the 1929 budget total approximately $20,000,000, while the aldermen are limiting their efforts to severing only $10,000,000 from this year's expenditures. The aldermen's aim is to absorb next year's expected revenue reduction without providing for the deficit.

Appeal to Strawn Expected.

The expectation is that Mr. Schmidt will submit his statement of the city's finances to the Silas H. Strawn "rescue" committee for the purpose of enlisting aid in obtaining additional money from the general assembly in a special session before the city funds run out entirely.

Schmidt in his statement points out to the council that if the city paid off its total debt and all of its obligations there would remain for appropriation only $24,596,425, not sufficient to operate the police and fire departments, which asked for a total amount of $28,811,723 for 1930. These obligations mentioned are the redemption of tax anticipation warrants and the payment of interest on them and the payment of judgments against the city. He states that it is not the intention of paying all judgments. By that action he would leave $40,487,000 for the city department.

Itemized accounts of the fire and police appropriations were missing from the Schmidt recommendations, but items from two other departments show by what methods he would reduce the expenditures. Automobile maintenance of $60 a month for each alderman is eliminated and the amount for electric current for city streets, furnished by the sanitary district, is also out. Schmidt says that the district should furnish the current free.

Estimated revenues from taxation are placed at $40,691,010 in the Schmidt budget. A deduction of ten per cent for loss and cost in collection reduces that figure to $36,621,909, to which he adds $16,000,000 in miscellaneous revenue and an item of $379,915 for possible collection in delinquent taxes, or a total net revenue of $40,587,000.

After receiving the figures the aldermen continued with their work on the health department. Health Commissioner Kegel, whose drawing account on the city treasury is $2,400 monthly, was cut from his 1929 appropriation of $2,849,342 to $2,181,282.

Efforts to eliminate the $100,185 allotted to the bureau of dental hygiene were partially warded off by Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th]. The bureau was retained but with an appropriation of only $46,000.

The department of public welfare, of which Mrs. Anne L. Smith, Thompson, Democrat, is commissioner, was eliminated by the aldermen after a considerable squabble. The department received $39,000 in 1929. Indications were that the aldermen would keep a small amount to operate the municipal lodging house.

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the committee, denied the charge of Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] that the committee is appropriating within revenues to crystalize public opinion for legislative relief. "We are doing it because it is the only way we can honor our obligations," said Clark.

TEACHERS PAYLESS

President H. Wallace Caldwell of the board of education offered no assurance last night that the city's 13,000 public school teachers will receive their December pay checks before Christmas day. Although yesterday was pay day and the final school day of the holiday season the teachers found the pre-Christmas salaries lacking. The two weeks' Christmas vacation started yesterday.

"There has been an unexpected delay," President Caldwell said, "but I am hopeful that the money which the board must borrow to meet the pay rolls and other indebtedness will be obtained as soon as possible. I expect definite developments on Monday."

Loan Move at Standstill.

He made it clear that the teachers cannot expect their pay before the first of the week, at least, and that there was no certainty that the money would be available then. It was apparent that Mr. Caldwell's negotiations for a loan of $3,598,457 were, for the present, at a standstill.

In the last two days Mr. Caldwell has taken his plea for financial aid to practically every loop bank without success, it was learned. His problem, he admits, is due to a lack of securities. The school board can not legally borrow any more funds on 1929 tax anticipation warrants.

The school board was scheduled to meet yesterday, but on finding the loan had not been negotiated, the trustees adjourned until Tuesday.

Thousands of Phone Calls.

The school board offices received thousands of phone calls from teachers anxious to learn the latest news about their pay checks. Secretary Charles E. Gilbert is now faced with the problem of how to pay the teachers should the loan be obtained, as the ordinary procedure is to mail the checks to the schools, where they are distributed by the principals. But the teachers will not return to the schools until Jan. 6.

To meet the teachers' pay rolls alone the board must borrow $2,477,115. Other obligations, including teachers' pensions, civil service salaries, and outstanding bills, bring the total indebtedness to $4,713,900. There is $1,115,443 in the treasury, making the net needs $3,598,457.

WATCH SCHOOL LOAN

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Certain officials and their political associates are reported anxious to ascertain what influence the Silas H. Strawn committee has with bankers on tax loans. Officials who privately oppose the Strawn committee are said to be hopeful that President Caldwell of the school board would demonstrate that he can get a substantial loan without getting the O. K. of the Strawn committee.

Mr. Caldwell had been invited by Mr. Strawn to submit in writing any suggestions or requests for aid. Instead of replying Mr. Caldwell started out to borrow $3,598,547 for Christmas salaries.

The Strawn committee has tabulated certain school fiscal figures which appear prejudicial against the proposed Caldwell loan. Whether those have been distributed to the bankers has not been disclosed.

These figures show that the school board levied $57,600,000 in taxes in 1928. Theoretically the board has the legal power to issue tax anticipation warrants for 75 per cent of that amount or for $43,200,000. Against that levy the board has issued only $30,600,000, in warrants, according to the Strawn committee, so the board appears—on the face of the situation—to have the power to issue more than $12,000,000 in tax warrants on the 1928 tax levy.

But the Strawn committee has thrown a wet blanket over that picture. It has estimated of the total 1928 levy only $36,338,018.76 is for the educational fund, of which 10 per cent or $3,633,801.88 will be deducted as loss and cost of collection. So the Strawn committee estimates the fund at $32,704,216.88. Against this $30,600,000 in tax warrants has been issued, which precludes a further loan against this fund.

Mr. Caldwell has still left the tax levy for the education fund on the 1929 taxes. The Strawn committee estimates its net collections at $50,078,332.11, against which tax warrants have been issued for $46,800,000. That leaves a margin of $3,278,000, while Mr. Caldwell desired to borrow $3,598,000.

In the meantime the Strawn group of private citizens are sitting tight and saying little. Mr. Strawn would not even make a reply to the attack of Ald. O. F. Nelson on the "rescue" committee. Mr. Strawn said that the committee's experts will probably start their survey Monday, either of the county or sanitary district, the spot of beginning having not yet been determined.

$47,000 Fee Sheds Light on City's Insurance Tax Contract

Various aldermen declared yesterday they did not know service had been performed by Attorney Ralph R. Bradley, who was paid $47,827 by the city in November. An inquiry then revealed the farming out of a contract in which the city agreed to pay a fee of 15 per cent on taxes collected from insurance companies doing business here but incorporated in other states.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson said the contract had been made with Attorney Bradley of the firm of Goodrich, Vincent & Bradley, but that he understood Attorney Hiram T. Gilbert did the work. In view of the fact that United States Senator Deneen and Charles Evans Hughes were opposing counsel, Mr. Ettelson said he did not regard the fee as excessive.

City Collected $1,171,235.

"As a result of the litigation, which went to the United States Supreme court, the city collected $1,171,235 from 174 insurance companies," Ettelson declared. "The litigation has been under way for more than ten years.

"There are still 36 companies which have not paid the city and whom we will probably have to sue. If our claims were settled on the same basis as the others they would pay $320,000, of which $112,000 would belong to the city and about $108,000 to the school fund. The county would get the greater portion of the balance. The other suits were settled in conjunction with the county, State's Attorney Swanson approving the settlement for the county as "the city council and I did for the city."

The corporation counsel was asked if the $47,827 represented the only payment to Attorney Bradley and if it was payment in full. He referred that question to his assistant, Leon Hornstein, who had charge of that litigation.

Drew $300 Per Month.

Mr. Hornstein said Attorney Gilbert drew $300 a month from the city during the early stages of the efforts to collect from the insurance companies. The $47,827, however, represented Bradley's 15 per cent after the costs were deducted from what the city received, he said.

"Mr. Bradley will still be entitled to a fee when the balance of the money is collected," Mr. Hornstein said, "but only on the city's portion, not the school board's. I don't know whether he has any fee arrangement with the county."

In a communication to the city council on Dec. 9 the corporation counsel asked an appropriation to continue paying Attorney Gilbert $300 a month. This stated that he was hired for litigation to collect current taxes, whereas the Bradley contract was for back taxes.

COUNCIL INQUIRY ON ETTELSON AND TAX REFUND SUIT

The charges of Jay A. Schiller, special assistant corporation counsel, that Corporation Counsel Ettelson has hampered the city's suit for a refund of $648,444 paid in federal income taxes by four real estate experts will be investigated by the council judiciary committee. Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], chairman of the committee, announced yesterday that he will call a meeting immediately after the budget sessions have ended.

The four real estate experts were defendants in THE TRIBUNE expert fee suit for the return to the city treasury of $1,500,000 plus interest. Mayor Thompson, in the decree handed down by Judge Friend of the Circuit court, was found to be a conspirator in the raid on the city treasury in the payment of the fees. Mention of this fact in the brief filed by Schiller in Washington resulted in his recall by Ettelson. Schiller then wrote to the council asking to be relieved of responsibility in the suit unless he is unhampered by Ettelson in presenting the city's case in a manner best suited to win.

Ald. Joseph B. McDonough [13th], a member of the judiciary committee, joined yesterday in asking for an immediate hearing of Schiller's charges. The city cannot turn down $645,444 when it has a $13,000,000 deficit, McDonough said.

ROB MANAGER, STEAL 2 AUTOS.

Two gunmen last night robbed Henry Sexton, 3333 Washington boulevard, manager of the Larry O'Rourke, Inc., automobile salesroom at 2701 Madison street, of a diamond stickpin valued at $1,000 and $500 of the company's money, and drove away with two automobiles after locking Sexton and Harry Caldin, a colored porter, in a washroom.

commission, and $1,000 a month to W. H. Baldwin company, a New York publicity concern.

Most of the funds, Owens admitted, were contributed by the Hershey and Coca Cola companies and handled through Mr. Pike.

On one occasion, Mr. Owens said, he received a tip that four members of the house ways and means committee were wavering on the sugar tariff bill. He immediately got out a night letter to bottlers in their districts, telling them to write, telephone, and telegraph them how to vote.

"You did put on pressure, then?" asked Senator Walsh.

Denver Witness Questioned.

A second witness today was W. L. Petriken of Denver, president of the Great Western Sugar company. He said he had called on members of congress in behalf of low sugar duties and also testified that he called on President Hoover. He said he told the President he thought "dangerous", a sliding scale proposed by Cuban sugar lobbyists to equalize the rates in order to be fair to both imported and domestic sugar.

Questioned about the dividends paid by his company, Petriken said it had averaged 15 to 20 per cent during the twenty-three years since the company was formed.

"Besides paying 15 to 20 per cent you have laid by enough additional money so that the $30,000,000 placed in the company has increased to $65,000,000?" Walsh asked.

Petriken replied "Yes."

In presenting to the senate the Arnold report from his committee Senator Caraway declared that Arnold was a man who would "deny his own significance if necessary."

The committee report pictured Arnold and John H. Kirby of Dallas, Tex., as lobbyist racketeers who collected large sums of money as officials of the Southern Tariff association and the American Taxpayers' league. Both organizations the report described as "phoney"—in fact, non-existent, except in name.

"How business men of ordinary sagacity can be induced to contribute to Arnold's purposes is entirely inexplicable to your committee," the report stated. "He is on terms of intimacy with no member of congress, so far as your committee has been able to learn. Certainly it is a type of lobbying against which the public ought to be protected by appropriate legislation."

Chicagoans Contribute.

Among the Chicago concerns listed as contributors to the American Taxpayers' league were Armour & Co., Henry Veeder, Insull Properties, William Wrigley Jr. company, Crane company, Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company, and the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERIL OF FIRE AND WIND; 2 DEAD; 7 INJURED

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Southern California's hot December weather reached a climax today when a brush fire, driven by a 60 mile gale, swept 1,000 acres of foothills directly above Hollywood's residential district.

One person was killed and four severely injured as a result of the fire. One home was burned.

The gale which fanned the flames blew down trees, blocked highways with sand, caused the death of one person and injury to three.

For a time the Universal and First National studios were in the path of the flames. The fire originated in Griffith park and burned over both sides of the shoulder of the mountain which separates the two film studios from the residential area of Hollywood.

At one time 4,000 fire fighters waged a desperate effort to control the flames. A pall of acrid, dark brown smoke rolled low over the city, obscured the sun, and changed the bright skies into a low, leaden ceiling.

JURORS DECIDE BRIDEGROOM, 76, IS OWN MASTER

Daughters Attack Bride at Verdict.

Because he marries a pretty young woman and proceeds to spend his money for luxuries in an effort to make her happy, a 76 year old man is not mentally incompetent, a jury in the court of Judge John R. Pritchard, assisting Probate Judge Horner, ruled yesterday. The verdict precipitated a fist fight between the young wife and two of the old man's four children, who asked for the appointment of a conservator for his estate.

The man is Patrick Foley, retired furniture dealer, at 849 North Le Claire avenue. His wife is Mrs. Leontin Gerard-Gilbert-Foley, 26 years old. They were married three days after she was granted an annulment of her marriage to Joseph Gilbert, a reputed adventurer, last Aug. 13 by Superior Judge Kavanagh. Mrs. Foley, a nurse, married Gilbert Feb. 16, 1928.

Children Attack Annulment.

In her bill for an annulment she charged that Gilbert deserted her five hours after their marriage. She pictured him as an adventurer, who swept her off her feet by a romantic courtship, and fled after she turned over her savings of $385. A month after the decree was granted Foley's children began an action to set aside the decree by producing affidavits purporting to show that Mrs. Foley had lived with her former husband for several days.

Judge Kavanagh refused to cite Mrs. Foley for contempt of court or to set aside his decree. He ruled that a woman who stoops to folly need not testify to it in a law court. He said that a woman may lie to save her reputation.

The four children, Bray and Frank Foley, and Mrs. Essie Larson and Mrs. John Squires, petitioned for the appointment of a conservator. They charged that the marriage and the fact that their father was squandering his estate of $100,000 on his young wife was evidence that he was not mentally sound. All of the children are older than their stepmother.

When the jury returned the verdict, Mrs. Larson and Mrs. Squires sprang at Mrs. Foley. A few blows were exchanged before Clerk Steve Curran and Mrs. Foley's attorney, Leopold Saltiel, parted them.

Attorney Saltiel announced that the Foleys will prevent future family quarrels by moving to California within a week.

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, Dec. 20.—For referring to Prince Nicholas as a "bully, scandal maker and speed fiend" after the prince had attacked the chauffeur of a car with which he came into collision two months ago, Mircea Damian, a young Roumanian author, was today sentenced to four months imprisonment and a fine.

M. Damian wrote an open letter to a newspaper stating he proposed to ask the government to supply the prince, who is young King Michael's uncle, with a tank in which he could drive pellmell through the traffic and so "destroy all automobiles, bakers' carts, the officers' casino, the academy, the Athanaeum, the university and all state and private institutions and kill every traffic policeman who tried to stop him."

Although the Roumanian press has never been a noted respecter of royalty, the courts decided M. Damian's letter said too much, even of a prince noted for his wild driving.

EX-POLICE HEADS AMONG 9 GUILTY OF DRY LAW GRAFT

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Nine men, including two former chiefs of police and a justice of the peace, were convicted today by a federal jury of the McKeesport prohibition violation conspiracy trial. Four men were acquitted and in the cases of eight others the jury disagreed.

Attorneys for the defense announced that motions for new trials would be made.

Indictments in the case were returned last May, after Charles Friedman, convicted bootlegger, had testified to police protection. He was the government's principal witness, having been brought from a federal prison camp where he was serving two years for violating the prohibition laws.

CONGRESSMAN AND 4 OTHERS DIE IN AIR CRASH

Christmas Hop Home Ends in Tragedy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—A Christmas homecoming air trip turned to tragedy in the twinkling of an eye here today when an $80,000 tri-motored army transport plane nosed over while taking off from Bolling field and crashed 300 feet to the frozen ground, snuffing out the lives of a congressman and four companions.

Representative William Kirk Kaynor of Springfield, Mass., the father of six children, was killed instantly. The others who died in what is described as the worst air crash in the history of the Bolling field were Stanley B. Lowe of Springfield, secretary to Mr. Kaynor; Arthur A. McGill of Brookline, Mass., formerly an employé of the Republican national committee; Capt. Harry A. Dinger, crack army pilot, and Private Vladimir Kuzma, army mechanic. The plane was the personal ship assigned to Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison. It was built by Fokker and was equipped with Wasp motors.

Two Theories on Cause.

Secretary of War Hurley ordered an inquiry at once to determine the cause of the accident, but army officers were at a loss to explain the crash. Some believed a strong gust of wind had caused the accident, while others thought that the loss of speed as the plane was wheeled into a left turn a few seconds after the takeoff was the cause.

The big Fokker plunged spinning to the ground less than a minute after Capt. Dinger had lifted it into the air and was turning with the wind to begin a circle of the field before straightening out on his course toward New England. The plane dug deep holes in the ground within 100 feet of the spot where Lieut. George T. Cuddy, crack navy pilot, crashed to his death several weeks ago.

Crushed Against Plane Roof.

Capt. Dinger and Kuzma were riding in the pilot's cockpit, Representative Kaynor, McGill and Lowe rode in the passenger cabin. Examination disclosed the victims had been pitched out of their seats against the ceiling or front of the cabin.

It was the congressman's first flight. He had not told his wife of his plans. The aerial homecoming was to have been a Christmas surprise for her. He had told friends that if he enjoyed the flight he would arrange to fly home every week-end while in Washington.

A year ago McGill's wife dropped dead on Christmas eve after returning to their home in Brookline from a shopping trip. Friends said today that he was on his way home to be married.

Second Congressional Victim.

The death of Representative Kaynor, a newcomer in the house, marked the second fatal air crash for a member of congress in the last eighteen months. Both men died in army planes. It was only a few weeks ago that the house in a memorial service paid tribute to the memory of Representative Thaddeus C. Sweet of Oswego, N. Y., who was killed in a plane crash at Whitney Point, N. Y.

Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison, a close friend of Representative Kaynor since their undergraduate days at Yale, arranged the trip that turned out fatally.

Only a few days ago Kaynor was named a member of the house military affairs committee. He expressed a desire to take a flight. Mr. Davison placed his personal plane at the disposal of his friend.

Army Flyer Dies in Jump.

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Lieut. Elmer R. Miller of Dodd field, Fort Sam Houston, was killed today when his parachute failed to open on a jump from a plane at an altitude of 1,500 feet.

The plane, piloted by Lieut. Leroy Hudson, had circled over the field for the jump. The officer wore two parachutes. The rip cord on his regulation parachute had been partially pulled. He pulled the cord of the emergency parachute just before striking the ground.

As a Gun Salesman Fred Picks the Wrong Prospects

Fred Leonard, 27 years old, 5122 South Union avenue, a foundry worker, was trying yesterday to raise funds to visit his wife and baby at Lafayette, Ind. Leonard approached two men in a drug store at 5100 South Halsted street and offered to sell them a revolver. They took him to their office, which happened to be the Stockyards police station, and charged him with carrying concealed weapons. When he explained the circumstances, he was placed on probation for one year.

BUTCHER ROBBED OF CASH, OYSTERS.

Fred W. Miller, a butcher, was robbed of $15, a quart of oysters and a pound of butter last night by two gunmen who stopped him on his way from his butcher shop at 4354 West 43d street to his home at 923 West 44th street.

Wife's Seven Necklaces Reduce Her Alimony

Mrs. H. Roy Berry, who, her former husband alleged, purchased seven necklaces and charged them to his account. Judge Sabath ordered deductions made from her alimony of $500 a month until the necklaces were paid for.

H. Roy Berry, wealthy real estate dealer, who appealed to Judge Joseph Sabath to reduce his alimony payments of $500 a month because his former wife had jewels charged to him.

Pays Bills, Too, He Says

H. Roy Berry, head of the real estate company which bears his name, at 77 West Washington street, yesterday asked Superior Judge Sabath for a reduction of the $500 a month temporary alimony he had agreed to pay his wife, pending disposition of their bills for divorce. Berry said he did not object to the payments, but declared that since their separation his wife has purchased on his accounts many articles which should be deducted from the $500.

In support of this statement his attorney, Leonard C. Reid, produced bills for seven necklaces, beauty treatments, clothing and lingerie. The purchases were made at various loop stores and ranged from $25 to $65.

"One necklace for every day in the week," Judge Sabath mused. "That is a little stiff. So are the other bills. If you draw up an order to deduct $100 a month until the bills are paid I may sign it."

Attorney William Scott Stewart, former assistant state's attorney, but more recently legal representative of well known criminals in their trials, must serve a three months' sentence in the county jail for contempt of the court of the late Judge Frank Comerford. The Supreme court yesterday in a number of decisions on criminal cases filed the opinion in the Stewart case.

Dr. Amante Rongetti, who has several times been charged with being an abortionist and who is now under indictment for murder, was luckier than his attorney. It was during the Rongetti trial that the Stewart contempt occurred. The Supreme court for the second time reversed a conviction against Rongetti for the murder of Miss Loretta Enders, unwed mother, whose baby was burned in the hospital furnace.

Stewart Hit; Client Isn't.

The sentence of the attorney was during the first Rongetti trial in which a death sentence was imposed on the physician by the jury. It was charged that he had attempted to prevent the appearance in court of Lorraine Irwin, star state witness.

"It is essential to the proper and orderly administration of justice that such occurrence as this (Stewart's conduct) should not take place," reads the Supreme court opinion. "Any one guilty of conduct such as appears in this record should be punished and we cannot say that the punishment imposed is too severe."

The attorney, who also lost on a previous appeal to the Appellate court, has no additional recourse, except to appeal for a rehearing or ask that he be allowed to carry the case to the United States Supreme court.

Doctor Again Is Indicted.

Dr. Rongetti was granted a retrial because the court held that his trial had been "unfair." The second trial resulted in a sentence of 1 to 14 years for manslaughter. While waiting the Supreme court decision in the present case Dr. Rongetti was again indicted for the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Palumbo of Maywood. This case is still pending.

The reviewing court at the same time affirmed the 25 year sentence meted out last year to Angelo Petitti, ringleader of a kidnaping gang.

Kidnap Sentence Called Just.

Petitti was convicted as the head of a gang of Sicilians responsible for the sensational kidnaping for ransom of 10 year old Billy Ranieri. The Supreme court held that Petitti had a fair trial and that the sentence was not excessive for the crime committed.

Eugene (Red) McLaughlin, notorious gangster, was granted a new trial because of "unwarranted remarks" by the prosecutor calculated to prejudice the jury. McLaughlin, who many times jumped his bail, was convicted of the robbery of Walter J. Newman, a jewelry salesman.

He was born in a high place yesterday, on the platform of the elevated station at Adams street and Wabash avenue. New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—A baby boy was born to Mrs. Mary Hall of Brooklyn this morning in the train dispatcher's office on the subway platform of the Grand Central station. Mrs. Hall and her husband were on their way to a lying-in hospital and she had to stand all the way from Brooklyn to the 14th street station. She was carried to the platform at the Grand Central station. An ambulance arrived after the baby was born.

BOOK STORE MANAGER GETS 30 DAYS, FINED $500; BOOK OBSCENE

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—James A. De Lacey, manager of the Dunster House bookshop here, was sentenced to one month in the house of correction and fined $500 today for selling an obscene book, "Lady Chatterly's Lover," by D. H. Lawrence.

The sentence was imposed in Superior court by Judge Fosdick, who had previously found him guilty. Sentence was stayed pending an appeal and bail was reduced.

The case of James Sullivan, Mr. De Lacey's clerk, convicted of the same offense, was placed on file.

The New England Watch and Ward society, which instituted the charges, was assailed by both the prosecution and the defense. Its agent testified that he had been told that the store did not handle the book, but would order it for him as an accommodation, which it did.

AUTO DEATH TOLL AT 1,000; DROP FROM '28 SEEN

The Cook county automobile death toll for 1929 yesterday reached the 1,000 mark. The mark was passed in 1928 on Dec. 13. With less than two weeks of the year remaining, Coroner Bundesen predicted that the 1929 toll will fall short of the high mark of 1,087 set in 1928.

As the total for 1929 was fixed on his records, the coroner presented a platform for motor safety. The suggestions point for alleviation of traffic congestion through wider roads, grade separation, better paving, more policemen on traffic duty, and more signal lights.

The coroner also asks for educational campaigns for motorists and pedestrians and stricter enforcement of motor vehicle laws.

The death which brought the toll to the 1,000 mark was that of Paul Budnick, 43 years old, 2745 West Lake street, who died of injuries received Wednesday when struck by an auto driven by William Patterson, 3444 West Adams street.

A coroner's jury held Peter Smaszcz, 36 years old, 606 South Francisco avenue, an iron worker, to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter for the death of Mrs. Doris Moriarity, 54 years old, wife of Battalion Chief Patrick J. Moriarity, and her sister, Mrs. Anna O'Donnell, of New York. Both women were killed when they were struck by Smaszcz's auto Dec. 8.

British Troops Capture Revolting Egyptian Chief

KHARTOUM, Egypt, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A British punitive expedition has captured Chief Lafofa, whose recalcitrant attitude toward the government recently prompted minor operations in the Nuba hills to bring him to book. Half a company of the Sudanese defense force and police carried out the expedition. Lafofa's tribesmen fired on the troops, killing one soldier and wounding Capt. A. Low, commander of the expedition.

BOY CLINGING TO PLANE TAIL RIDES 7 MILES

Camden, N. J., Dec. 20.—(AP)—A 17 year old farm boy had a terrifying seven mile ride on the tail of an airplane today.

The lad, William Coumbe, with other farmhands, was asked by Don Darby, a Curtiss-Wright flying pilot, to hold down the tail of his machine while he warmed up the engine. William readily assented.

When the motor was ready Darby signaled to the volunteers to let go. Coumbe did not hear the warning and soon found himself clinging to the tail unit.

Unaware of his passenger, Darby flew his craft for the seven miles between Moorestown and Camden at an altitude of 1,500 feet. As the plane leveled to make the landing the boy jumped and rolled over several times. He was taken to a hospital, where it was said he suffered only a shaking up.

Mrs. Nadlinger alleges that she was disabled for life as a result of radium poisoning suffered while she was employed to paint watch dials in the company's plant.

PLAN WINDOW BARS AND MORE GUARDS AT JAIL

Seek Means to Prevent Additional Breaks.

A delegation of three county commissioners appeared at the new $7,500,000 jail and Criminal court building yesterday to view first hand the method used by six prisoners on Thursday to escape from the supposed modern "escape proof jail." They were Commissioners O. W. Schmidt, Louis Nettelhorst and Andrew Metzger.

After the inspection of the jail under the guidance of Warden David Moneypenny the commissioners agreed that the jail has room for improvement, such as bars on the windows at least up to the second floor so that prisoners cannot again kick out a barless window and walk to freedom on the wall—and the installation of tool proof steel on the end cells in place of sheet iron. The prisoners have already sawed trough this sheet iron.

Blame Rule Violation.

President Anton J. Cermak of the board, who had intimated that maybe a conspiracy was at the bottom of the jail break, was not with the delegation. He had left the city. The delegation, however, expressed the belief that the disobedience of Guard Fred Knepper of a rule was the only cause for the break.

The commissioners and Warden Moneypenny were agreed that the lack of guards caused Knepper to violate the rules and take the chance, which resulted in the escape.

"Every human makes mistakes," said Commissioner Metzger. "That is why railroads have automatic signals." However, it is only a fool who does not profit by mistakes. It is up to us to provide as near as possible protection against human mistakes."

Promise More Guards.

The meeting between the commissioners and the warden was a harmonious one. The warden was requested to appear before the finance committee at 11 o'clock Monday morning and make his recommendations.

No definite action other than suspension has been taken against Knepper, who because of the lack of guards was handing two tiers of cells when overpowered. The commissioners promised to provide a guard for each tier. None of the escaped prisoners has been captured.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Senator Deneen issued a formal statement to the press yesterday giving some of the details of his meeting with former State's Attorney Crowe in Washington last month, his escorting the former prosecutor to the White House and their having lunch together in the senate restaurant.

He did so in answer to an interview in which Frank J. Loesch, former leader in the fight against the alliance of crime and politics, cited the Crowe-Deneen appearance in public together as evidence that the senator had "deserted the decent people of Chicago."

"How can Senator Deneen excuse himself to the public for fellowship with Crowe," asked Mr. Loesch, "after Crowe had publicly stated that Deneen had bombed his own [Deneen's] home?"

Senator Deneen's Statement.

Senator Deneen's statement in reply was as follows:

"It is already apparent that I am to face new issues in my campaign for reelection. Out in the state there are a large number of paid employés conducting a whispering campaign against me because I attended the funeral of Joseph Esposito, who was assassinated for his activities in the campaign for law and order in the primaries of 1928.

"In certain sections of the city and county I am being attacked because I delivered by request the oration at the funeral of Octavius C. Granady, who was assassinated at the same primaries and who was engaged in the same cause.

"Mr. Loesch helps along the opposition by introducing into the campaign an issue of senatorial courtesy and he censures me because of the courtesies extended to Robert E. Crowe, as president of the Irish Fellowship club of Chicago.

His Version of Luncheon.

"In view of his statements and misstatements the public may be interested in knowing the facts:

"I was requested to ask President Hoover to make an engagement for an interview by a delegation of fifteen or more representing the Irish Fellowship club of Chicago, who wished to extend to the President an invitation to deliver an address before the club on Feb. 22 or March 17. The secretary to the President stated that he would arrange the time for the interview after Dec. 10 because of the engagements of the President.

"Judge Crowe and others were in the east attending a football game and called my office on long distance telephone on Saturday, Nov. 30, and asked that the engagement be made for Dec. 2 to avoid returning to Washington. I was in Chicago at the time and my secretary stated the facts to the secretary to the President and the interview was set for noon on Dec. 2. This was the opening day of congress and I arrived in Washington that morning.

Crowe Gives Invitation.

"Judge Crowe and Mr. Joseph P. Savage represented the delegation, and I met them at the President's executive office. The invitation was tendered by Judge Crowe and the President took it under advisement. The interview lasted less than five minutes. I asked to be excused to go to the senate, which convened at noon.

"It was then stated that Mr. Savage would be pleased to see the senate in session as he had never been in Washington before. I extended the courtesy of the taxicab which I had waiting and we drove to the capitol. When we arrived ten minutes later the senate had adjourned in honor of the memory of Senator Warren and the senators and others were going to the restaurant. An invitation was extended for luncheon. Judge Crowe informed me immediately thereafter that he and Mr. Savage were to take a train for New York City.

"These are the facts. No reference whatever was made to politics in Chicago, Cook county or Illinois at the luncheon. The conversation was limited to the personalities and careers of the senators who were sitting in the restaurant. Judge Crowe came to me as an officer of a large organization and he was accorded the courtesies which I have accorded to any other official from Illinois who has visited me at Washington. This is the sum of my offending.

Refers to Loesch Remark.

"I observed in Mr. Loesch's long interview he does not criticise the President for extending the courtesies of his office or in considering the invitation.

"I noticed in the papers some time ago a picture of the Vice President and Judge Crowe taken at the stadium on Armistice day at the celebration of the Elks of Chicago. This must have escaped the attention of Mr. Loesch because he does not criticize the Vice President for having his picture taken with Judge Crowe.

"And may I add that probably Mr. Loesch has forgotten that on Nov. 8, 1927, President Coolidge had as his guests at breakfast Mayor Thompson, former Gov. Small, former Senator Lorimer, and other associates of the mayor who were in Washington attending the meeting regarding flood control. Perhaps it was courtesy rather than forgetfulness which caused him to overlook so important a matter.

Alliance with Crowe Denied.

"After all, there is no accounting for tastes and it seems as though different persons have widely different views about official courtesies and ordinary politeness. I doubt very much had Mr. Loesch been senator from Illinois and had he been requested to present a delegation of leading citizens to the President for the Irish Fellowship club or for any other respectable club, that he would have taken advantage of the opportunity to pour out his maledictions on the head of any member of the delegation unless of course the President had permitted the newspaper reporters to be present.

"Mr. Loesch in his interview lends aid and comfort to the enemy and makes a difficult task more difficult. May I state that no alliance has been made with Judge Crowe or understanding had with him or with any other group or faction by myself or my friends? We are endeavoring to induce widely known and influential citizens to enter the primary race for the important offices. This is known to the publishers of our newspapers who have been consulted and by some of the leading citizens of Chicago. There will be ample time for criticism after the ticket shall have been presented."

Swissler to Run for Reviewer.

Herbert A. Loeb, secretary and treasurer of Hillman's, announced that at a meeting of business men held at the Union League club William R. Swissler of the law firm of Poppenhusen, Johnston, Thompson & Cole announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the board of review. Swissler is a resident of River Forest and will run in opposition to William H. Weber, the board member whose term expires.

The only political office Swissler has held in Chicago is that of attorney for the west park board under the first Small state administration. He has been a close friend of former State's Attorney Crowe, who now is at outs with Weber and his other old associates in the regular Republican organization.

JURY QUESTIONS FIVE 'BIG SHOTS' OF JOB INQUIRY

2 Aldermen, Houston and Denemark, Testify.

The grand jury listened yesterday to the testimony under immunity waivers of two aldermen, a former president of the civil service commission, another commissioner and an attorney. Assistant State's Attorney George Lavin, who is conducting the investigation into reported irregularities of the administration of the civil service laws under a former régime, did not seem particularly pleased with his session with the so-called big shots of the inquiry.

"They answered all the questions at least in their own way," was the only comment Lavin would make after the grand jury session. The prosecutor said he is under a strict injunction from State's Attorney Swanson not to discuss any of his evidence.

Ald. Cronson Is Witness.

The first witness was Ald. Berthold A. Cronson, nephew of Corporation Counsel Samuel Ettelson. He was the only witness who was not asked to sign an immunity waiver, which is an indication that the prosecutors have no reason to suspect that he is in any way involved in the present inquiry.

Ald. Cronson, as did the other witnesses, said that any statements of his testimony would have to come from the jurors or prosecutor because he had been warned not to talk.

Ald. Louis B. Anderson [2d] and Robert R. Jackson [3d], both colored, followed their associate into the grand jury room. It was reported that they had been questioned about reports that they were instrumental in getting jobs back for several discharged policemen.

Houston, Denemark Testify.

Thomas J. Houston, former president of the commission and whose régime is the subject of the inquiry, was questioned about how a score or more of policemen were reinstated without the formality of a petition being filed, as required by the rules. Edward J. Denemark, a member of the present commission as well as the old one, was questioned along the same line, it was reported.

Lieut. John P. Scott of the Wabash station, who was to have been a witness, reported "sick in bed" through his attorney. The prosecutor has his bank account records as well as those of Detective Robert Massett of the detective bureau, who is to be a witness Monday when the investigation is resumed.

MOTHER, 87, DIES AS COURT BATTLE OF CHILDREN ENDS

Mrs. Bridget Cronin, 87 years old, 2946 Walnut street, died yesterday at her home, apparently the victim of excitement over the legal battle between her son and daughter on the question of having a conservator appointed for her estate.

The son, Harry J. Cronin, 758 Jackson boulevard, lost his fight for a conservator on Wednesday when a jury found Mrs. Cronin competent before Judge Harry M. Pritchard of Bureau county, sitting in the Probate court here. Cronin charged that his sister, Mrs. Agnes Mulvihill, a teacher at the Tilton school, kept his mother "chained to a wheel chair" and had used undue influence to obtain from Mrs. Cronin a deed to her home.

Mrs. Mulvihill, who lived with her mother, opposed her brother's petition for a conservator. When she returned home on Wednesday night with the news that no conservator would be appointed, Mrs. Cronin, who had been bedridden for months, collapsed.

CALLES ACCUSED AS PLOTTER IN 3 TEXAS MURDERS

Trio Lured from Laredo Hotel to Rio Grande.

Laredo, Tex., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Interest in the charges against Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, was revived here today and District Attorney John A. Valls was being pressed for a definite statement of his position, as business in this city suffered from the Mexican embargo on trade and traffic as a result of the Valls-Calles affair.

Valls, however, refused to comment either on the retaliatory embargo or on the evidence which he claims he has to show that Calles was guilty of conspiring to commit murder. He merely insisted that the warrant for Calles' arrest met every legal requirement and that he could not disclose the facts on which the indictment was issued until the accused is arrested.

What Warrant Charges.

The warrant for Calles charges him merely with having "conspired, combined and confederated to kill Lucio Blanco in Webb county, June 7, 1929." Gen. Blanco, chief of staff of the Mexican army under President Diaz and later an insurgent leader, was killed on the night of June 7, 1929, with Col. Aurelio Martinez, his aide, and Ramon Garcia, head of the Mexican secret service.

Blanco had been active in an attempt to overthrow the government of that time of which Calles was the minister of internal affairs, and it was reported here that a reward of $20,000 had been offered for Blanco's capture, dead or alive. On the night he was slain he and Martinez were called from their home in a Laredo hotel, and escorted to the Rio Grande to cross into Mexico by boat, presumably at the head of a force of Mexican troops in an attempt to overthrow the Mexican government.

Martinez was shot in the head, but Blanco was drowned when he leaped from the boat in an effort to escape a similar fate. His body was found handcuffed to that of Martinez, the boy to which was found in Garcia's pocket when his body was recovered from the river later. Garcia was said to have been carrying bribe money, and was believed to be one of the captors of Blanco and Martinez. He apparently was shot to death by his fellow conspirators.

Insists He Has Evidence.

Calles was not in Mexico City on the night Blanco was killed, but no evidence has been revealed to show that he was present on the banks of the Rio Grande when the killings occurred. As a member of the presidential cabinet, he generally was considered as being above taking part in the murder for a share of the reward, although Valls insists he has ample evidence that he was one of the conspirators.

Two Americans, Duke Carver, a constable of San Antonio, and Capt. Allen Walker, a former Texas ranger, were indicted for the murder of Blanco. Walker now is hiding in Mexico. Carver was arrested and released on bond, awaiting trial. The trial was set for early this month, but was continued.

When Calles passed Ladero on his return to Mexico from a tour of the United States last Tuesday, Valls had planned to intercept him near the border and arrest him. But he refrained from doing so after Secretary of State Stimson had advised him that as a member of a diplomatic mission, Calles was entitled to immunity. The affair, however, led to the retaliatory embargo closing the Mexican consulate here and prohibiting traffic into Mexico from this city.

Laredo Appeals to Gil.

The Laredo chamber of commerce, worried by the depression of business caused by the diversion of automobile traffic from this section of the state, appealed to President Portes Gil and today took official cognizance of the appeal to raise the restrictions, telling the chamber that he had referred the petition to the department of foreign relations.

Valls said he was too busy answering letters and telegrams about the Calles affair to take any interest in the business stagnation which grew out of his actions in that affair. He said most of the letters and messages he had received have commended his attempt to bring to justice malefactors who committed a crime on American soil. A number of commendatory letters were from Mexico, he said.

FILE NEW PLEA TO FREE SHAW FROM CHESTER

Another petition of habeas corpus seeking the release from the Chester asylum of George Shaw, war veteran, who four years ago killed his father, was filed yesterday in the court of Judge John J. Sullivan. A hearing on the petition will be held this morning. Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chott said he would oppose the petition which was filed by Attorney Frank Tyrrell.

Several unsuccessful petitions have been filed in the last few years. Shaw is said to have employed Attorney Tyrrell.

ARCHITECTS PICK SITE FOR FIRST FAIR BUILDINGS

Working drawings for about one-third of the first group of main buildings for Chicago's Century of Progress exposition [the 1933 World's Fair] are to be ready within four months. This was decided yesterday by the architectural commission of the fair after its members had approved plans for the first building of all, the structure for the travel and transport exposition, which is to cost approximately $1,000,000. The building is to be erected on the lake shore between 31st and 39th streets.

Ground for the travel and transport structure and the administration building is to be broken on April 1. The first group of other buildings, including the general fair structures and some special exhibition buildings, is to be erected as soon after that as possible. General architectural studies for particular buildings in this group are to be ready by mid-February, the commission decided.

Meeting to Continue Today.

The architectural commission opened its present meeting on Thursday in the office of Edward H. Bennett at 80 East Jackson boulevard. The sessions will continue through today. Mr. Bennett, John A. Holabird and Hubert Burnham are the Chicago members of the commission, and the designers of the building for the transportation exhibit.

Harvey Wiley Corbett of New York is chairman of the commission and the other eastern members attending the present meeting are Raymond M. Hood and Ralph Thomas Walker, also of New York, and Paul Phillippe Cret of Philadelphia. Arthur Brown Jr. of San Francisco is the only member of the commission not present at the meeting.

The commission as a whole yesterday approved the plans for the transportation exhibition structure and held up temporarily the plans for the administration building. The members then decided that the first group of buildings is to be erected between 16th and 39th streets.

100 Years of Transportation.

The travel and transportation exhibition, according to Maj. L. R. Lohr, manager of the fair, will be a great pageant depicting the world's progress in the construction of highways, railways, waterways, and airways in the last 100 years. The structure for this exhibit is to be 700 feet long, two stories high and to have a round dome, 300 feet in diameter and 125 feet high, at each end.

Tracks will be laid so that trains may run into this long building under their own power.

While the plans for this exhibition were approved, those of the administration building were to be restudied and submitted again for final approval of the whole commission by Jan. 5.

O. K. Plan for Mayan Temple.

The commission also approved a proposal made by Prof. Fay Cooper-Cole, head of the anthropology department at the University of Chicago, that a replica of an ancient Mayan temple be built on the fair grounds and that it be used to house an anthropological exhibition. Prof. Cooper-Cole is the head of the archaeological and anthropological division of the National Research council, which is sitting in Washington and is to arrange the scientific theme for the fair. He said the idea was that of Rufus Dawes, president of the fair, who is a student of anthropology.

The proposal is to make the temple an exact replica of that known as the Mojes of Uxmal, one of several ancient structures in the former Mayan town of Uxmal, in Yucatan. It was suggested that Prof. Maurice Blom of Tulane university, New Orleans, take an architect to Yucatan to make working drawings of the old temple.

MANY KILLED AS RIVAL MEXICAN VILLAGES BATTLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 20.—A band of armed men set out last night on a modern feud from El Ocote in the state of Hidalgo against the village of Singuilucan in the same state. The men made the trip in automobiles hired at Pachuca, the state capital.

For over a year there has been trouble between the two villages over agrarian land awards, and they are said to have sworn war to the death. The men of El Ocote attacked those of Singuilucan but the latter were prepared as they had spies watching the movements of the enemy.

At noon the battle was still going on and all the inhabitants of Singuilucan had turned out to defend the place. Numerous deaths on both sides have been reported. Troops are being hurried to the scene of the battle.

LAWYERS CLASH OVER RECORDS IN SCHIRESON CASE

Defense Wins Point on Previous Charge.

The warlike atmosphere of the Schireson hearing yesterday morning turned to the balm of an armistice during the afternoon.

In the morning First Assistant Attorney General Harry A. Ash, who is asking the state committee to revoke the medical license of Dr. Henry J. Schireson, engaged in a vigorous debate with Defense Attorney Burrill Cramer. The air was blue for a while as Mr. Ash refused to surrender records demanded by the defense.

Squabble Over Records.

Finally a subpoena was served on the state's lawyer, ordering him to produce the records, which showed the medical committee's action on a previous complaint against Schireson. Mr. Ash said he had no objection to furnishing the records, but would not surrender them without the consent of Attorney General Carlstrom, his superior. He asked for a recess to consult with the attorney general, and the recess was then ordered by Dr. M. L. Harris, chairman of the committee.

Returning to the afternoon session, Mr. Ash stated that Mr. Carlstrom had authorized him to turn over the files.

The records showed that Attorney Walter E. Boerger had presented a complaint against Schireson, and that after a hearing the medical committee had dismissed the complaint.

Dr. Nay Identifies Letters.

Dr. Winfield Scott Nay, 79 year old secretary of the state medical board of Vermont, was recalled by the defense and identified a dozen letters he had written to Dr. Schireson, which indicated a close friendship between the two. This was to support the defense claim that another letter, presented by the state as having been written by Dr. Nay, and which charged Schireson with "feathering his nest by imposing on a lot of poor foreigners," was a forgery. A photostatic copy of the letter had been presented by the state Thursday.

Miss Eugenie Shelby, a nurse who assisted at the operation for bow legs upon Miss Sadye Holland, which culminated in the amputation of both her legs, and upon which Schireson is charged with gross malpractice, testified that she had no recollection of the details of the operation.

Blame Put on Another.

An affidavit given the department investigators by Miss Elsie Helgren, another nurse at the operation, was presented by the defense, and quoted Miss Helgren as saying that Dr. S. D. Zaph, named by Dr. Schireson as having performed the Holland operation, had put the casts on the patient's legs too tightly. According to the affidavit, when Dr. Zaph removed the casts he remarked to Miss Helgren: "There's one thing I'll never do again."

It appeared that the defense contention will be that Dr. Zaph fastened the casts so tightly as to retard circulation, but Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, who finally amputated the legs, has testified for the state that the casts became tight after an infection set in which swelled the tissues.

WAITER ENDS LIFE WITH GAS.

Frank Wimbiad, 53 years old, a waiter, was found dead of asphyxiation yesterday in his room at 436 North State street. Wimbiad had dressed himself in new clothing and lain on his bed with a rubber attached to a gas jet in his mouth.

HEADS SURVEY

PROF. CHARLES E. MERRIAM.

President Hoover's action in appointing a research committee on social trends was hailed yesterday as without parallel in history by Prof. Charles E. Merriam and Prof. William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago, who were named members of the committee on Thursday. Prof. Merriam was appointed chairman. Prof. Ogburn, who heads the department of sociology at the university, was granted a leave of absence, beginning Jan. 1, to act as research director for the committee.

"The purpose of the research committee," Prof. Ogburn explained, "is first to get the facts on American social changes within the last 25 years and second to integrate them in a panoramic report which the President may use both in influencing legislation and effecting reforms through his official prestige; that is, by summoning citizens' conferences. It represents the extensiveness of the President's interest in work of human welfare."

Prof. Ogburn said that modern society has not kept pace with inventions in economic and engineering fields and that social statistics are lacking except on marriage and divorce. The committee will work through 60 universities and bureaus to gather statistics on population, race, care of the old, divorce, unemployment, juvenile delinquency, and the effect of rapid and cheap transportation on rural life.

ORDER WIDENING OF STRETCH OF AVONDALE AVE.

The board of local improvements yesterday ordered the opening and widening of Avondale avenue between Central and Ozanam avenues at the conclusion of a public hearing held in the board rooms. The proceedings are the first step in making a through street to the far northwest side of the city. In order to carry out the plan it will be necessary to condemn property between Oshkosh and Iroquois avenues. Avondale will be paved from Milwaukee avenue to the city limits by the county, according to information given the board. One property owner objected to the improvement, stating that it starts in a coal yard and ends in a cornfield. No other objections were raised.

500 Fight to Escape from Short Circuit Flash.

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—A blinding flash of light that ran through a six car Manhattan bound Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit train—a flash caused by a short circuit in the Fifty-Ninth street tunnel under the East river—threw the 500 and more passengers into a wild panic during the morning rush today. Traffic was tied for three hours.

Fighting to escape from the cars men and women smashed the windows, and trampled one another. Eighty-three passengers suffered cuts and bruises or were overcome by hysteria. Thirty-five were taken to St. John's hospital in Long Island City, and nearly a score to city hospital on Welfare island. No one was killed.

Screams of Passengers.

The train had just left the Bridge plaza station, Long Island City, which is elevated and from which there is a sharp grade to a point near where the tracks then enter the East river tunnel. Gathering speed, the train roared underground. Then came the flash. Passengers screamed for help. Subway guards' shouts to keep cool went unheeded.

To add to the hysteria acrid smoke filled the cars. Passengers choked, and to obtain fresh air windows were smashed. Many clambered through these openings.

Use Emergency Exits.

Signal men in the tunnel shut off the power while the passengers were rushing from the cars, breaking down the closed doors. Some used the emergency exits in the tunnel that led to Welfare island, but others walked two miles to the Queens plaza station.

So determined were the survivors to escape that they did not care whether the third rail was alive or not. At the Queens end of the tunnel gleamed a spot of light, the entrance, and that was their goal.

Police emergency squads and ambulances clanged to the scene. Fire apparatus also was called. Ladders were run down to the elevated structure and those on top clambered down, many of them fainting into the arms of the firemen.

Schoolgirl Eloper of 15 Loses Plea for Alimony

The youngest wife to sue for separate maintenance in Cook county was denied temporary alimony yesterday by Superior Judge Sabath. She is Mrs. Ethel Carroll, 15 years old, 434 Wisconsin street, who charges her husband, Owen T. Carroll, 22 years old, a salesman, with cruelty. Carroll said that his wife eloped with him two months ago while she was a student in a Peoria High school. He said he had bought her an expensive Christmas gift and wished that she would return. The young wife refused his plea for reconciliation.

MOTHER KILLED BY GAS.

Mrs. Lena Rix, 55 years old, 2047 Aubert avenue, was found dead yesterday in the kitchen of her home, asphyxiated by gas which was escaping from five burners. The body was found by her son, Jacob, 17 years old, when he returned from school.

THREE GANGSTERS GIVEN LIFE FOR POLICE MURDER

CRIMINAL COURT.

Eugene Gore, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Casey Moore, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory, by Judge Harry M. Fisher.

Anthony Anton, conspiracy, sentenced to 1 year in the county jail; Piridas Colcedos, conspiracy, sentenced to 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary, by Judge John J. Sullivan.

Three members of the so-called "Robin Hood gang" of Hammond were sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday when they pleaded guilty in the Lake county Criminal court at Crown Point to the murder of Police Sergeant Leo Fix of Hammond. Fix was killed in a gun battle when he and other policemen stormed the desperadoes' hiding place in a Hammond apartment several weeks ago.

The three sentenced yesterday are Steve Davenport, William Jeski, and Benny Stowsky. A fourth, John Sawa, pleaded guilty, but sentence was deferred. Peter Augustovich, a fifth member of the gang, who was crippled for life when he was struck in the spine by a bullet during the battle with the police, will be arraigned when improves. Walter Wajinski, the sixth member of the gang, was slain.

BROTHER THANKS BROTHER FOR HIS JAIL SENTENCE

Frank Graham, 40 years old, 485 East Sibley street, Hammond, Ind., yesterday thanked his brother, A. W. Graham, 45 years old, 6936 South Union avenue, for sending him to jail for sixty days as a burglar. When Frank and Albert Van Pelt, 33 years old, 6069 South La Salle street, appeared before Judge Herbert G. Immenhausen in the Grand Crossing court, A. W. Graham testified that both his brother and Van Pelt were burglars.

"I want my brother cured of being a burglar," the elder Graham declared. "He should plead guilty because he is guilty."

Frank, who is the father of five children, and Van Pelt then pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted burglary, admitting that they were on their way to commit a robbery when they were arrested with burglars' tools at 81st and Peoria streets on Dec. 10.

"26%" HUCKINS' ILLNESS DELAYS FACING CHARGES

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—If George E. Huckins, under arrest at Excelsior Springs, Mo., is able to be moved from a sanatorium where he is reported critically ill, he will be in Cedar Rapids on Dec. 26, or shortly thereafter, to face a warrant charging him with obtaining money by a false pretense, and civil actions started against him and his father, Elmer S. Huckins. This information was given out here today by Walter J. Barngrover, attorney for both Huckins.

A telephone message from Excelsior Springs brought the information that Huckins apparently was desperately ill. In his semi-conscious moments he talks of being "persecuted." Sheriff Harry Manchester is at his bedside to return him here the moment he is able to travel. Barngrover promises to produce him here for the last day of filing civil actions in the district court, Dec. 26, but physicians at Excelsior Springs expressed doubt whether he can be moved for a month or more. Barngrover says he will demand trial on the criminal charges in January.

BANK ROBBER GETS ONLY $600.

ALDERMEN AND PHONE CO. AGREE ON 23 YR. GRANT

Attorneys for the Illinois Bell Telephone company and members of the city council telephone franchise subcommittee yesterday came to a tentative agreement on the clause in the new franchise which deals with the length of the contract between the city and the company. The new franchise, by this agreement, is to run for twenty-three years with the possibility that it may not terminate at the end of that period.

The provision is so worded that at the end of twenty-two years the city must give twelve months notice if it wishes to end the franchise at twenty-three years. If neither the city nor the company gives notice of a desire to terminate the franchise it will continue to run indefinitely. After the twenty-three year period, however, it can be terminated a year after notice is given by either party.

"This provision gives the benefits of both a term and an indeterminate franchise," said Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the council gas and oil committee. "I believe it is an excellent solution of the problem formerly presented by the company's stand for an indeterminate franchise."

COURT UPHOLDS NEWSPAPER GAG STATUTE AGAIN

Publishers Will Appeal to U. S. Tribunal.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Constitutionality of Minnesota's law against scandalous and defamatory publications, under which the Saturday Press was suppressed, was sustained today by the Minnesota Supreme court in a decision written by Chief Justice Samuel B. Wilson. The ruling upholds one by District Judge Mathias Baldwin under which publication of the newspaper was suppressed.

It is expected sponsors of the action will take the case to the United States Supreme court, as opponents of the law contend it is a violation of the right of freedom of speech.

The law in question authorizes suppression by court order of a publication regularly publishing scandalous, defamatory or malicious matter. County Attorney Floyd B. Olson launched an attack on this paper, published by Howard Guilford and J. M. Near, in 1927.

Ruling on Permanent Order.

It was the second decision of the state court upholding the law. The first came on application for a temporary injunction against the paper, and this ruling is on a permanent order. The law was passed in 1925, and permits a judge to order suppression of a paper violating terms of the act.

The due process of law guaranty of the constitution is not violated by the act, in the opinion of the court.

In its decision the court said: "The action of the court does not violate the due process of law guaranty contained in our state and federal constitution nor does it violate our constitutional provision for the freedom of the press.

"The action was to abate a nuisance, arising out of the operation of a newspaper business. Presumably an evil, inimical to the public welfare existed in this state which the legislature intends to remedy. No claim is advanced that the method and character of the operation of the newspaper in question was not a nuisance if the statute is constitutional. It was regularly and customarily devoted largely to a malicious, scandalous and defamatory matter.

Violation Is Claimed.

"The claim is advanced that the statute is in contravention of article one, section three of our state constitution relating to the liberty of the press and also that it violates the due process clause of both article one, section seven of our state constitution and the 14th amendment to the constitution of the United States.

"In our opinion the laws of 1925 violate neither the state nor the federal constitution. The record presents the same question upon which we have already passed. Our former opinion will disclose the other grounds urged by the appellant and such grounds have been urged in this appeal although we do not discuss them in detail.

"The argument is made that the judgment goes too far and literally prevents the defendants from publishing any kind of a newspaper and thereby deprives them of their means of livelihood and the legitimate use of their property. It is sufficient to say that the assignments of error do not go to the form of the judgment.

"The lower court has not been asked to modify the judgment. We see no reason, however, for defendants to construe the judgment as restraining them from operating a newspaper in harmony with the public welfare to which all must yield. The case has now been tried. The allegations of the complaint have been found to be true. Though this is an equitable action, defendants have in no way any desire to conduct their business in the usual and legitimate manner."

POPE CELEBRATES MASS ON ITALIAN SOIL

TRAVEL AND MYSTERY BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS STOCKING OF HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—President Hoover will get some travel and mystery books in his Christmas stocking.

Mrs. Hoover, who purchases most of the President's reading matter, has ordered several of the two types of books he likes best. Before she became first lady Mrs. Hoover used to visit the book stores and select the books personally. Now she sends one of the White House secretaries with a list.

Tales which take him over familiar trails or into new country along with stories of mystery and suspense are what the President likes in that slippered hour of ease when even the head of a nation can draw the curtains and exchange the real for an imaginary world.

GRANDFATHER, TWO BABIES DIE IN HOME FIRE

Elkhorn, Wis., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Two babies and their grandfather were burned to death tonight in a fire that destroyed the home of James Carey, well to do farmer, six miles northwest of Elkhorn in Richmond township.

Carey, the father of the children, his wife, and three other children were attending a Christmas party in the township school four miles away.

The dead are Henry Stowenberg, 65 years old, Mrs. Carey's father; Patsy Carey, 3 years old; and Mabel Carey, 17 months old.

The Careys and their three elder children left early in the evening to attend the Christmas tree party at the school. Shortly after 9 o'clock a farmer residing a half mile from the Carey home saw flames rising from the house, a two story frame structure. The origin of the fire was not determined.

He hastened through the snow to the fire after notifying other neighbors by telephone. By the time he arrived, however, the flames were sweeping through the roof of the building, and all efforts to gain entrance were in vain.

Kills Wife for Not Asking Him to Yule Feast; Hanged

San Quentin, Cal., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Mario Croce, 40, of Ukiah, Cal., who killed his wife last Christmas day because she would not invite him to dinner, was hanged at the state prison today. Croce pleaded guilty to a murder charge and was one of the few men executed in this state after entering such a plea.

STUDENT TELLS OF 5 DAY DRIVE FOR KIDNAPERS

Harrisburg, Ky., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Alvin Adkinson, 19, who says he was abducted from the campus of Eastern State Teachers' college, Richmond, Ky., and forced by two men who kept him covered with pistols to drive their automobile for five days and nights, returned to his home at Cornishville yesterday from Montgomery, W. Va., where he said he escaped from his captors.

Adkinson said that he was compelled to drive them through many Kentucky cities, and that they visited Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Parkersburg, Wheeling, and Charleston, W. Va. At all times, he said, one man stayed in the car to guard him if the other left the machine, except in Montgomery, where both left the automobile at the same time, and Adkinson escaped.

J., just after a passenger train had passed. A track walker found the body. Investigation disclosed that the window of Mr. waterbury's compartment on the train was open.

EXILE OF POPES ENDS; PIUS SAYS MASS IN ROME

Crosses City Secretly at Dawn to St. John's.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 20.—Unexpectedly to every one except his immediate entourage, Pope Pius XI. left the Vatican and crossed the city of Rome early this morning to say mass in the basilica of St. John Lateran, traditionally considered a special cathedral of the pope. St. John Lateran was for centuries the residence of popes. The treaty settling the Roman question was signed in an adjoining palace, and in the basilica on Dec. 20, 1879, Pope Pius, then Achille Ratti, was consecrated a priest.

Pope Pius thus chose the anniversary date of his consecration to signalize an important event in church history, for this morning's trip across Rome marks the first time for 59 years that any Roman pontiff has set foot on Italian soil. In 1870 Pope Pius IX. imposed voluntary imprisonment in the Vatican on himself as a protest against the appropriation of the Holy City as the capital of Italy.

Early Workers Unaware.

St. John Lateran lies on the eastern side of the Eternal City, 12 miles from the Vatican, and commands a full view of the historic Alban hills, which were today capped with snow. Unknown to the crowds going to work in the early morning, the crimson automobile carrying the pontiff, followed by two others, slipped out of Vatican City's limits through Damascus court and, following the winding Tiber, passed the ruins of the Colosseum and entered the Lateran palace, where the pope was met by Msgr. Marchetti Salvaggiani and conducted into the basilica.

On this trip across Rome the pontiff was accompanied by his chamberlain, Msgr. Caccia Dominiani; his sacristan, Msgr. Zampifi, Gov. Serafini of Vatican City, the commander of the papal gendarmes, and a group of Lombard seminary students whom he had chosen especially to be present at his anniversary mass.

Avoid Treaty Honors.

The trip was prepared by the pope himself in the utmost secrecy, and it was only at 10 last night that those who accompanied him were warned to be in readiness at 5 this morning. By thus choosing to make his first entrance into Italian territory secretly and unexpectedly the pope avoided the special honors which would have been paid to him. Under the treaty his passage through the streets of Rome on formal occasions is given the same honor as is given visiting sovereigns.

Inside the cathedral the pope was met by Basilius Cardinal Pompili, vicar of Rome and archpriest of St. John Lateran, who presented the keys of the church for the pope to kiss.

Pope Visibly Moved.

After prayers and veneration of the relics, the pope said mass at the confessional altar. His emotion was visible and his voice was choked with tears. The cremonies were longer than usual because at many points they were interrupted by the pope's great emotion.

The pope gave benediction and returned to the Vatican shortly before 10 o'clock. By this time the news of his visit had spread and crowds witnessed his passage.

3 HURT IN SPARTA FIRE.

Sparta, Wis., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Three persons were slightly injured and damage amounting to $100,000 was done by fire that destroyed five business houses here last night. The blaze was believed to have started from an overheated boiler in the basement of a clothing store.

FREE GIRL CHAINED TO BED IN PIT AND CAPTURE ASSAILANT

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Chained since yesterday morning to a bed in a hole under a garage, without water or heat, Dorothy Van Camp, 14 years old, was released this afternoon by patrolmen.

Russell Arnold, 53 years old, is held at the Country Club police station. He is charged by the girl with having dragged her into his home. He has admitted the charges.

The girl was suffering from exposure when she was taken from the underground room and her ankle, around which a chain had been passed to bind her to the bed, was bruised badly. Her back was black and blue. She said Arnold had beaten her with a strap.

The girl is a daughter of Mrs. C. E. Gasaway. She told police she left home at 8 o'clock yesterday to walk to the car line. When she was in front of the house at 6725 Askew avenue, she said, a man stopped her, attempted to talk with her, and then took her by the arm and pushed and pulled her into the house.

He tied her first to a bed, she continued. She screamed, she said, and he put her in a large box and carried her to the garage adjacent to the house

She said he raised a trap door in the floor of the garage and lowered her and the box through it, then followed into a small room.

When Dorothy did not return home yesterday her mother went to the wife of E. A. Sprague, a patrolman who lives next door, and the case was reported to the Country Club police station.

SHIP AGROUND; PASSENGERS GO TO BOATS IN GALE

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Messages today from the captain of the American steamer Venator, 626 tons, which plies between New Orleans and Puerto Mexico, said the ship was aground five miles west of Puerto Mexico and passengers had taken to boats.

The wireless messages said a gale was blowing and the passengers in the boats were trying to reach land.

The department of communications intercepted the messages, which were to the ship's Chicago headquarters, and instructed authorities at near by ports to rush relief.

It left New Orleans about Dec. 17 for Puerto Mexico.

Vessel Is Stranded.

PRINCE RUPERT, B. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—The coastwise steamship Cardena of the Union line was reported aground tonight off the mouth of the Ckeena river and was awaiting high tide in the hope of floating off. The Cardena is operated on the coast run north from Vancouver and carries passengers and freight.

Hunting Fall Kills English Owner of Montana Ranch

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Harold Lowther, 63, a kinsman of the Lonsdale family, was thrown from his horse and killed while hunting today at Bicester. He served during the Matabele war in 1896. His brother, Lord Ullswater, was formerly speaker of the house of commons. Mr. Lowther, who lived on a ranch near Billings, Mont., had come here for the hunting season.

Governor Picks R. L. Stuart as Judge of Knox County

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson today announced the appointment of Rodney L. Stuart, Galesburg, to be county judge of Knox county, succeeding Riley E. Stephens, who was elected Circuit judge and resigned Dec. 7. The term has less than one year to run.

HAFFA PLEADS FOR REHEARING IN LIQUOR CASE

Former Ald. Titus Haffa, under sentence for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, yesterday saved himself from a trip to Leavenworth penitentiary by petitioning for a rehearing in the United States Court of Appeals. At the same time Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg indicated that he will grant a decree ordering Haffa to surrender $32,000 he received in 1922 for his interest in an axle manufacturing company that became insolvent.

The action before Judge Feinberg was brought by John Jacoby. Jacoby charged that he paid Haffa $10,000 in cash and $22,000 in securities for stock in the Schultz Manufacturing company, which he later learned was virtually in the hands of a receiver.

The petition for a rehearing in the liquor case allows the government ten days in which to answer. The case is not likely to be heard until next year. The petition asks for the consideration of character testimony, excluded as evidence in the trial. Haffa faces a two year sentence and $11,000 fine.

MADISON BRIDGE TO SOUTHLAND IS DEDICATED

Madison, Ind., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—The new Madison-Milton, Ky., highway bridge providing a new gateway to the south, was dedicated today.

Despite the cold weather, good road enthusiasts and delegations from many cities in Indiana and Kentucky attended. Gov. Harry G. Leslie of Indiana and Miss Margaret Pecar, Milton, Ky., bridge queen, took part in the ceremony.

Among the prominent men present were Reginald H. Sullivan, mayor-elect of Indianapolis; Harry C. Canfield, congressman from the fourth Indiana district; Albert J. Wedeking, chairman of the Indiana state highway commission; W. J. Fields, former governor of Kentucky, and Frank J. Pritchard, mayor-elect of Madison.

The bridge is of the cantilever type, 3,178 feet long, including approaches, and was completed at an approximate cost of $1,800,000.

LAWS TO EXTEND BRANCH BANKING ARE ADVOCATED

Action Is Recommended to Avoid Failures.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Extension of branch banking to keep pace with the spread of chain store merchandising is to receive the encouragement of the Hoover administration. An alarming number of bank failures in agricultural sections has convinced the financial authorities of the government that the day of the independent country bank is passing and that legislation must be enacted to facilitate the establishment of branches of big city institutions in adjacent rural areas.

Controller of the Currency John W. Pole in his annual report, made public today, recommended legislation to permit national banks to establish branches "within the trade areas of the cities in which such banks may be situated." Mr. Pole suggested that the trade areas may in some cases be co-extensive with federal district lines. This would mean that a Chicago national bank would be permitted to maintain branches in parts of Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, and Iowa.

5,000 Banks Fail.

In his report, Mr. Pole asserted that during the nine year period from July 1, 1920, which was about the time of the so-called agricultural post-war deflation, until June 30, 1929, about 5,000 banks, nearly all in agricultural communities, failed, tying up deposits of about a billion and a half.

Mr. Pile's specific recommendations follow comments on the subject by President Hoover in his annual message to congress and by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in his recent annual report.

President Hoover, in his annual message, did not take a definite position, but urged congress to give careful consideration to the matter. Secretary Mellon also did not offer specific recommendations, but urged "a thorough study of the situation, with a view to determining the soundness of the present day tendencies, and more particularly the limits of the economic units within which branch banking may be advantageously permitted."

State Banks in Majority.

Controller Pole's tabulation showed the failure of 4,925 banks in the last nine fiscal years. Of the total 4,228 were state and private banks and 697 national banks. During the calendar year 1929 up to Nov. 1, Mr. Pole stated that 521 state and national banks, with deposits of about $200,000,000, have closed their doors. The tabulation showed that of the total failures in the nine year period 1,429 were in eight central western states, 1,877 in nine western states, 243 in seven Pacific states, 1,292 in thirteen southern states, 57 in five eastern states, and 26 in six New England states.

In Illinois there were 68 state and 18 national bank failures; in Wisconsin 57 state and 8 national bank failures; in Michigan 63 state and 2 national bank failures; in Indiana 78 state and 13 national bank failures, and in Iowa 386 state and 81 national bank failures.

Few in Big Cities.

"The failures of state chartered banks greatly outnumber those of the national banks, but small national banks have not been immune to the conditions which are causing the failures of small country banks generally," said Mr. Pole. "As an illustration of the wide scope of this economic condition, it may be said that in seven states over 40 per cent of all the banks in existence in 1920 have failed and in six states between 25 and 40 per cent. In 26 states, or more than one-half the total, over 10 per cent of the banks that were in operation in 1920 have since failed. When it is considered that no important failures have occurred among banks in the larger cities, the ratio of failures in the country districts is even higher.

"If in the free course of business the country bank cannot successfully operate as an independent banking corporation, affording ample protection to its depositors and its stockholders, the obligation and responsibility is upon the government of the United States, at least so far as the national banks are concerned, to set up a system of national banking which will insure the rural communities against the continuing disastrous effects of local bank failures."

Congressional Fight Seen.

The recommendation for an extension of branch banking will precipitate a big fight in congress. Many members from rural sections will oppose the legislation, as successful independent bankers in the country towns object to competition from branches of big city banks. Independent bankers in outlying sections of Chicago were active in the fight against branch banking during the consideration of the McFadden act in 1927 and were influential in obtaining the provision of that law which now prevents national banks from establishing branches in states where state laws prohibit branches of state banks. Illinois is one of the anti-branch states. National banks in other states may engage in city-wide branch banking under the McFadden act.

Senators Ask What Dry Law Investigating Body Is Doing

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Curious as to what President Hoover's law enforcement commission is doing, two Democratic dry leaders served notice in the senate today that efforts will be made to open its proceedings to the public and to get an early report of some sort.

Senator William J. Harris [Dem., Ga.], who sponsored the increased dry fund appropriation, was blocked in an attempt to have the senate adopt a resolution requesting Mr. Hoover to obtain a preliminary report from the commission for use in appropriating next year's enforcement fund by Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], who explained that he did so because he thought it an extraordinary proceeding for the senate to ask the President for such a report.

Public Hearings Urged.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], author of the $250,000 provision authorizing the law enforcement inquiry, charged that the commission was "shunting aside" the real purpose of congress for the expenditure of this money—an inquiry into prohibition.

Both Harris and Glass notified the senate that they will seek to withhold funds for the continuance of the commission unless some manner of report is made. Harris also demanded that the commission make its hearings public.

4 Year Study Predicted.

The Georgia dry predicted today that the commission did not intend to make a report before four years and said he knew of a member of the commission who had been looking for a home in Washington and is prepared to sign a four year lease.

"Every enemy of the prohibition law is in favor of this commission staying there just as they are," said Harris, "acting behind closed doors, and conducting their deliberations for years. They expect to stay there for four more years and never make a report and it will not do us any good."

Senator Glass contended the commission had failed to give attention to the main purpose of the congressional authorization for its existence—investigation of prohibition enforcement—and declared:

"It is the most extraordinary exhibition of indifference to the expressed will of congress that I have ever known."

Some Statement Necessary.

"This commission was appointed principally, if not solely," said the Virginian, "for the purpose of inquiring into prohibition but until last week not a member of the commission had read the provision in the appropriation bill authorizing its constitution.

"I am going to insist that before we appropriate another dollar the commission or the President make some report to congress on what it proposes to do."

The $250,000 fund for the commission's work was appropriated for the fiscal year ending next June 30 and there is some speculation whether this money may be expended during the next fiscal year without express authority from congress.

MOTHER HURLS BABY TO DEATH UPON JUNK PILE

Lonaconing, Md., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Marian Izat, 34, was charged today with causing the death of her five weeks old daughter by throwing the child into an abandoned iron ore furnace, just outside the town, yesterday. Police who found the baby on a pile of junk at the bottom of a 40 foot drop believed poverty and ill health had deranged the mother's mind.

Mrs. Izat's sister became suspicious of the mother's replies when she asked why the baby was not in the house, and reported to police. After telling several stories Mrs. Izat led the officers near the old furnace, and one of them heard the baby's cries. The child was found on a pile of discarded automobile parts, and died a few hours later from a fractured skull.

SENATE VOTES TO MAKE BYRD REAR ADMIRAL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—It may be Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd before long—instead of commander.

The senate today passed the Swanson bill granting the explorer the coveted rank. Favorable action by the house is awaited and then President Hoover's signature will complete the job.

If and when these events occur, Byrd would be the youngest living rear admiral. He is 41. Except for one promotion by an act of congress following his north pole flight he has come up through regular promotions.

His record is unique also in that he has been on the "retired" list all the while he was assigned to active duty, and on leave in order to carry out the exploits that have made him a hero.

He was retired in 1916 because his athletic activities at the Naval academy had brought him a number of injuries, culminating with a broken ankle.

Byrd as a retired rear admiral would receive a yearly salary of $4,500. Now he gets $4,312.50.

16 NATIONS O. K. LEAGUE TREATY TO SPUR TRADE

PARIS, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A protocol which on June 1 will bring into force a league of nations convention to remove obstructions in the path of foreign trade was agreed upon today.

With the provision that it be ratified by Poland and Czecho-Slovakia before June 1, delegates from Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Roumania, Sweden, Switzerland and Jugo-Slavia announced that they were ready to sign.

The United States delegates are awaiting instructions and have not given their approval to signature. Refusal of ratification by Poland or Czecho-Slovakia would most probably, it was said, cause the withdrawal of eight or ten other countries.

CRITIC OF G. O. P. DRY HYPOCRISY DEFENDS ACTION

Detroit Club Defers Accepting Resignation.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Action on the resignation of Henry B. Joy, who last week attacked the Detroit Republican club for its "prohibition hypocrisy," has been deferred "to some future time."

The club, however, voted to extend an invitation to Joy to discuss the charges he made against the club.

Joy, meanwhile, has replied to former Congressman John B. Corliss of Detroit, who criticised Joy's stand against prohibition as stated in his letter of resignation.

Joy says he has received hundreds of messages of congratulation on his anti-prohibition attack, Corliss being his only critic. They have engaged in a series of telegraphic exchanges.

Debate by Telegraph.

Joy had attacked the Detroit Republican club for being "the servant girl of the Republican party," which is under the "lash of the Anti-Saloon league." He bitterly attacked prohibition and the manner of its enforcement by the United States government, which he characterized as "law by intimidation, terrorism, and coercion."

Joy answered that in his letter to the Detroit Republican club he in no way created disrespect for law, merely citing actual records of methods used in prohibition enforcement which he says creates disrespect for law.

Corliss replied: "Citizens of your intelligence, wealth and influence should not by public expression create disrespect in the minds of the common people for our constitution and laws."

"Know Right from Wrong."

Joy answered: "I do not know who you mean by the 'common people.' All people have an innate sense of justice and know right from wrong. It is natural for us, the common people, to resent government by armed force and coercion and terrorism."

Joy then expressed the opinion that Corliss created disrespect for law in an article under his name which was published by the American Bar Association Journal.

TWO OF BRIDGE OPENING TUGS PUT IN DRYDOCK

The tugs Waukegan and James R. Sinclair, which were declared to be principal offenders in the bridge opening controversy last fall, have been moved into dry dock at South Chicago for repairs by their owner, the Great Lakes Towing company of Cleveland. The tug New Jersey, which is built high like the Waukegan and the Sinclair, is still operating in the Chicago harbor but is not being used in the river, where it caused many bridge openings according to Capt. Charles F. Miller, Chicago superintendent for the Cleveland concern.

GRAND JURY MAY HEAR CARBARY'S LIQUOR SQUABBLE

Prosecutor Insists the Agent Apologize.

State's Attorney George D. Carbary of Kane county insisted yesterday that Prohibition Agent Brice Armstrong apologize to him or have him indicted. The prosecutor, whose liquor raids received prominence because of the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King in her home in Aurora, and the prohibition agent, whose reputation as an enforcer is as dry as Carbary's, were at odds over what each was reported to have said regarding beer in Kane county.

As a result of their controversy Assistant District Attorney Victor E. La Rue and Daniel Anderson decided the proper action may be to have Armstrong tell a federal grand jury what he thinks about Carbary, and to let Carbary tell the same jury what he thinks about Armstrong.

Vague on "Assignment."

Carbary, first, stated that his influence was not the cause of Armstrong's being transferred to New Jersey, that he had not requested federal officials to get rid of the man he said threatened to prosecute him. On that point, federal officials were vague, the statement of Asistant Administrator George H. Hurlburt being that Armstrong was merely sent east on an assignment.

"How long an assignment?" he was asked.

"I can't say," he replied. "I was sent here on an assignment two years ago and I'm still here."

Mr. Hurlburt recalled that Carbary had complained to him about Armstrong. The gist of the complaint was that Armstrong had told Antone Mauritsen, chief investigator for Carbary, that both of them were to be indicted.

Yesterday Carbary reiterated his faith in Mauritsent, who, Armstrong said, made a proposal that the federal enforcers allow beer sales in the county. But Mauritsen had been sent out of the county by Carbary and wasn't available to speak for himself.

Succeeded Ousted Official.

Carbary said Mauritsen came to him well recommended by the state's attorneys of Winnebago and Lake counties and told him he had been a police sergeant in Kansas City, Mo. When Walter Miller, formerly chief investigator for Carbary, was discharged during the investigation of the false affidavit which resulted in the slaying of Mrs. De King, Mauritsen succeeded him, Carbary said, and he has been highly efficient as a rum ferret, and is paid $9.50 a day.

At Rockford, where Mauritsen hunted liquor violations previously, it was said he claimed to have been assistant chief of police of Kansas City. Last spring Mauritsen called the police from a cigar store and said he had run in there for protection because gangsters in two automobiles sought to kill him at the corner of State and Main streets.

Once Put in Jail.

Shortly after that incident Attorney John R. Snively made a derogatory reference to Mauritsen's snooping proclivities during a trial and Mauritsen hit him and was put in jail for twenty-four hours for contempt of court. Then he sought employment from Carbary in a nearby county.

Inasmuch as the accusations of Carbary and Armstrong about each other hinge upon conversations of Mauritsen the federal attorneys thought he should be interviewed before there is an apology or indictment.

GANG STEALS BOOZE WORTH $40,000 FROM FEDERAL WAREHOUSE

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—The same gang, police believe, which failed in an attempt to rob the Brooklyn naval base of an $84,000 pay roll on Nov. 13 early today got away with about $40,000 worth of liquor from a government bonded warehouse.

They overpowered the watchman of the Feitel Bag company, Brooklyn, bored a hole through a 12 inch brick wall, enlarged it by hours of painstaking work, and carried out, police say, hundreds of cases of liquor stored in the Cosmopolitan warehouse adjoining.

The watchman, William Guthrie, said he counted twelve men in the gang and he and the police believe there were about eight more outside. Because of this the police were led to the conclusion that it was the same gang which made the naval base attempt.

Guthrie said two men with guns had bound him, gagged him, and tossed him on a pile of bags.

ATCH GERMANY! RENCH ANSWER TO DISARM PLAN

r Fleet Will Wipe Us Out, Chamber Warned.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 20.—Apprehensions of parties in the French parliament r what will happen to the French y at the forthcoming London five conference is becoming more more evident.

Again the bogey of the Anglo-Saxon ce, lying in wait at London for the le French Red Ridinghood was ised today in the chamber when de- on the naval budget was re- ed. The deputies are treating mselves to a regular debauch of mphbess, and the fact that the left ties are outdoing the Nationalists lamenting over the possible eclipse French power on the seas makes e situation all the more ominous.

"Parity Talk Dangerous."

"This parity talk is dangerous," ded Aiste Reynaud, Socialist. "The Bolsheviks will take up the cry and Germany will continue to build Ersatz Hindenburgs. It will be a vicious circle which is bound to lead to war."

Then M. Raynaud delivered himself of an attack against the United States as a part of the general radical and socialist offensive against the Tardieu government. For some obscure reason the left party tacticians have decided that the best way to embarrass premier Tardieu on the eve of the conference is to attack the Americans and English. M. Paul Boncour led off yesterday and M. Reynaud and Edouard Herriot followed up today.

"Must Submit to Geneva."

"Either the United States must submit to the moral influence of Geneva," said M. Reynaud, "and take serious note of the solidarity of the European nations, or Europe will have to take the situation in her own hands."

"Nothing decisive in the way of disarmament can be accomplished outside of Geneva," Mr. Herriot declared. "The problem of maritime frontiers and freedom of the seas cannot be considered apart from the land frontiers."

Total naval disarmament will not be achieved at London, but in Berlin and Geneva, he said. London and Washington have been negotiating, while Germany, working silently, has created a type of cruiser that is the envy of navies the world over, he said. Under the treaty of Versailles, Germany can build six of these, he continued, declaring that Germany will not be in London, but the shadow of her cruisers will.

Red Causes Uproar.

"Only at Geneva can we talk to Germany," he said. "So it is at Geneva and Berlin that naval security will be easily achieved, if ever. But we must go to London in a conciliatory mood and in the hopes of evolving a solution which is not entirely to the Anglo-Saxon benefit. I think Arthur Henderson will be intractable to such a solution."

The communist deputy, Georges Bertrand, erstwhile butcher, precipitated an uproar when he charged that French "imperialism" was rampant in the big program of naval construction not only of the French navy but the navies of allies such as Poland, Jugo-Slavia, and Greece.

"At Toulon," he said, "150 Poles are going to the naval school; at Nantes 50 Greeks, and why? At Saint Nazaire fast liners, like the Cuca La Fayette, are being studied with an eye for arming them with guns. Fast dispatch boats are being constructed to rush colonial troops to France."

NEW RED ENVOY CALLS ON WALES IN GREAT POMP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 20.—K. Sokolnikov, the new ambassador from Russia, to a land where aristocracy and kings are anathema, drove to St. James's palace in a state carriage today and presented his credentials to the prince of Wales. The prince acted for King George, who has not received any diplomats except American Ambassador Dawes since his illness.

This antithesis was more pointed by the accidental escort of Ambassador Sokolnikov's carriage by a procession of the horse guards, who happened to follow the Russian envoy on their way to Whitehall for the regular morning guard change.

The ceremonies were simple, lasting only ten minutes. The prince of Wales wore the uniform of colonel of the Welsh guards, and Ambassador Sokolnikov was attired in the regulation levee costume.

BERLIN "BROKE"; DICTATOR NAMED TO RUN FINANCES

Xmas Dole Is Denied Jobless; Fear Riots.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 20.—The government tonight dramatically intervened in the financial crisis of the city of Berlin by appointing Acting Mayor Scholtz as finance dictator of Germany's capital. This drastic action is the result of recent disclosures of municipal maladministration and graft by which the city lost millions of dollars.

The last straw came last night when, under the pressure of rioting by thousands of unemployed, the city council voted an additional credit of $1,500,000 in order to give each jobless person a Christmas dole of slightly over $2, although the city treasury is empty.

Further Credits Forbidden.

The government order says that Berlin's finances are in such a muddle that no further credits of any kind, for building or other projects, can be countenanced. Herr Scholtz was ordered to ignore the Christmas dole and any other credits voted by the city council.

The government also demanded that the city create an amortization fund and pay into it $1,250,000 monthly. All expenditures must be supervised and approved by Herr Scholtz until the city's short term indebtedness has been cleared.

Fear New Rioting.

News of the government's veto of the Christmas dole is not yet generally known to the public. It is feared that when it becomes known tomorrow serious rioting will result. The communists and National Socialists are preparing to organize a vast protest campaign against depriving 600,000 Berlin jobless of the $2 Christmas money when the city just recently spent $5,250,000 for a big exhibition hall.

The police are making every preparation to meet any rioting and are surrounding the city hall with strong police cordons.

Rioting broke out at Cologne and Dresden today. A jobless mob broke through several police cordons and bombarded the Cologne welfare administration building with stones. Every window was smashed. Automobiles were turned over and the occupants beaten up.

NAVY DELEGATES OF JAPAN DINED ON SAILING EVE

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—The Japanese delegates to the London naval conference, headed by Reijiro Wakatsuki, former premier, were guests today at a luncheon in the Hotel Plaza given by S. Sawada, Japanese consul general, and attended by Americans prominent in finance, business and public life. Shortly before the delegates sailed for London on the White Star liner Olympic at midnight they were greeted by more than 200 members of the Japanese colony of New York in the Nippon club, 161 West 93d street, at a reception and dinner. E. Jinushi, president of the club, and former Premier Wakatsuki were the speakers.

In the afternoon Mme. Sawada, wife of the consul general, entertained at a tea in honor of Mme. Takarabe, wife of Admiral Takarabe, minister of the navy.

RUSSIAN WAR ON SANTA GETS KEEN AS FEAST NEARS

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Dec. 20.—"Only five more days until Christmas." The soviet government is featuring this slogan of American merchants in all the Moscow papers, which are publishing long articles regarding the measures being taken against the celebration of Christmas.

Communism has declared war to the death against Daddy Morcz [Frost], as Santa Claus is known in Russia. In Moscow the soviet government has not only forbidden the sale of Christmas trees and ornaments, but police guards have been placed at all the forests surrounding the city.

Instead of holiday displays the Moscow stores will use their shop windows for anti-religious subjects and prizes are offered for the best displays ridiculing the birth of the Christ child.

Russia has made special efforts to keep the young children from the churches and every movie in Moscow will run special anti-religious films. Atheist orators have been assigned to speak at each theater. The regular theaters will hold performances at the same hours as the church services and any actor failing to appear will be deprived of his union card, the precious card which entitles him to purchase rations from the government.

The Moscow Pravda has published a resolution passed by the Moscow newsboys' union which demands that the city soviet close an orthodox church and convert it into a newsboys' club because their 600 members are without a cultural center.

The campaign against Christmas also is linked with the agitation against alcohol, and although the vodka monopoly is run by the government, a vodka bottle and cross are displayed together on the special ahteist literature which is being distributed free to the workers.

LOUBET, FAMOUS FRENCH 'FARMER' PRESIDENT, DIES

91 Year Old Statesman Passes Naturally.

MONTELIMAR, France, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Emile Loubet, former president of France, died at 9:35 p. m. He was 91 years old. The statesman was conscious to the last, although for hours he had been in agony. At the bedside when death came were his son, Paul, his daughter, Mme. De Saint Prix, and his physician, Dr. Albert.

Dr. Albert said M. Loubet had suffered from no special disease.

"MAN OF THE PEOPLE."

Emile Loubet, president of France from February, 1899, to February, 1906, was a man of the people. "Honest and good natured" were the terms applied to him by his contemporaries, rather than "brilliant" statesman and diplomat. Safety and sanity were the notable features of his career.

He was born at Marsanna, in the department of Drome, on Dec. 31, 1838. His parents were farmers, and his love for the country made rural life always more appealing to him than the fine society and courtliness that must mark the existence of the resident of the Elysée palace in Paris.

After finishing his studies in the college of his department, M. Loubet settled down to be a lawyer in Montelimar. His talents and honesty induced his fellow citizens to elect him mayor in 1874. In the meantime he had married Mlle. Marie Picard. In 1876 he was elected to the chamber of deputies and in 1881 to the senate. While in the senate he was twice president of that body. He was premier in 1892.

Picked by Clemenceau.

When President Felix Faure died in 1899, Georges Clemenceau, who made and broke cabinets at will, picked Loubet as the most likely candidate for the presidency. With such support, his election was assured.

It was during his time as president that the entente cordiale allying England, France, and Russia, was negotiated, and the foundation of the friendly understanding with Italy was laid. Both of these agreements were of immeasurable importance at the outbreak of the war. He also pardoned Capt. Alfred Dreyfus and signed the bill separating the church and state in France.

JAPAN COMPLETES WORK ON BIGGEST DRY DOCK IN WORLD

KURE, Japan—(AP)—A naval drydock capable of receiving the largest fighting ship afloat and said to be the largest in the world has just been completed at the naval base here.

Its construction required eight years. The work was begun in 1921, when Japan was preparing to build 40,000 ton superdreadnaughts. The Washington conference prevented completion of any such huge naval structure, but the drydock was completed and will be used in repairing the navy's capital ships. The largest of these are the Nagato and Mutsu, 33,800 tons each.

The drydock will accommodate four of the new 10,000 ton cruisers at one time. Two million cubic feet of earth were removed in building it.

MRS. POINDEXTER, BANE OF SOCIETY "LOBBY," IS DEAD

Orange, Cal., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Miles Poindexter, wife of the former United States senator from Washington and ex-ambassador to Peru, died today after a delicate surgical operation. She was 63 years old.

At Mrs. Poindexter's bedside was her son, Lieutenant Commander Gale Poindexter, United States navy, Coronado, Cal. Her husband, who was summoned yesterday when it beame apparent that she was sinking, was en route here from Washington, D. C., tonight.

Mrs. Poindexter, who created much comment several years ago in literary circles with her revelations as "A Senator's Wife," came to California two weeks ago to visit her two sisters, Mrs. May Jorgensen and Mrs. Charles Morton, who live at Santa Ana, near here. She had planned to return to her home in Washington next week.

Several days ago she was stricken with an abdominal disorder. The illness rapidly became critical and an operation was decided upon yesterday. She failed to rally and lapsed into unconsciousness early today, dying a short time later.

Washington Friends Mourn.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—News of the death today of Mrs. Miles Poindexter, wife of the former United States senator from Washington, was received with keen regret by Washington society, for no woman in the last decade has left a more vivid trail in the national capital.

Keenly alert and not adverse to expressing herself in caustic although picturesque language about the foibles of official Washington life, Mrs. Poindexter's activities were chronicled on the front pages of the nation's newspapers many times in recent years. On one occasion her remarks about Washington society and the laxity of the enforcement of the Volstead act set official Washington to buzzing like a beehive.

Tattled on Officialdom.

Mrs. Poindexter first gained the spotlight in 1923 when, as the wife of a retiring senator, she wrote an exceedingly frank series of articles for a western newspaper in which she commented on the official and social life of the capital and made sarcastic references to public officials and their wives.

In the first of these articles Mrs. Poindexter criticized Washington's "social lobby," called attention to the supplying of automobiles and government flowers for the wives of cabinet members, and spoke sarcastically of the war department practice of supplying good looking officers to dress up social functions.

Publication of this article caused reverberations in congress and brought sharp denials from the secretary of war and many of the senators mentioned.

Secretary of War Weeks asserted that Mrs. Poindexter's charge that the war department furnishes the good looking officers for functions was untrue. Marine officers denied that the marine band was the private orchestra for the wife of the secretary of the navy.

Before the uproar over the frank writings of Mrs. Poindexter had passed over, and the feelings of senatorial targets were healed over, her husband had lost all chance of again regaining his seat from the state of Washington.

Forced Diplomat to Retire.

Mrs. Poindexter recently returned from [illegible], where her husband was ambassador. Within a short time she had all Washington talking about her feat in forcing the retirement of a Peruvian diplomat who, it seems, had wiled away her two prize servants.

As the story goes, Mrs. Poindexter discovered two superservants, one named Cornelius, in Peru. The servants could not talk English, but desired to learn. It is said Mrs. Poindexter did not pay so well, but she made up by acting as tutor. As the English of the servants improved they began to cast around to see what other servants were doing and being paid.

They found that more money could be had elsewhere than in the Poindexter employ. Cornelius sought out Señor Alfreda Gonzales Prada, Peruvian chargé d'affaires, and asked him if the law required him to continue working for Mrs. Poindexter at a salary he did not like. The diplomat said no, and added that there was work in his household. Cornelius took the hint, and when Mrs. Poindexter found out what had happened, she called up Señor Prada and read him the riot act. She then wrote to Peru, Señor Prada retired rather than give up the servant.

Polygamy Made Illegal for Moslems in Jugo-Slavia

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Dec. 20.—Despite the fact that the Koranic law allows a man to have four wives the Mohammedan population of the provinces of Bosnia and Hercegovina was informed today by posters that a new criminal law in Jugo-Slavia, effective Jan. 1, strictly prohibits polygamy. It is made punishable by one to five years in prison.

IF I WERE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The Tribune invites pithy, brief statements describing what you would do if you were President of the United States. The invitation is to Tribune readers everywhere. Address Government Editor, The Tribune.

Editor: I would see to it that American born women who married foreigners before Sept. 22, 1922, could regain their citizenship after that date when the husband has become a citizen without paying a fee and doing such an insane thing as to swear off allegiance to a country they never saw, cared for or possibly never heard of.

MRS. ELLA T. SCHELL,
900 Addison street.

Editor: I would have a law passed requiring that all dining tables, public and private, be equipped with receivadors for olive stones so that the tattlers will not accumulate on one's plate in embarrassing mounds.

BEULAH NORFUR.

Editor: I would have the civil service commission repeal its rule which requires a man, regardless of education, character, and good health, to be a certain exact height for mail clerk or carrier; or, I would have the rule so rigidly enforced that there could be no exceptions through political pull, as frequently exercised in Chicago area.

JOHN FOWLER.

* *

Editor: I would urge congress to enact a law forbidding people to live with married relatives. EXPERIENCE.

Editor: I would absolutely prohibit the idiotic and senseless trips to the north and south poles. Dr. Cook did as much good in that respect as any one else, and what was that?

Aviation Notes

A high snowdrift stood between Pilot Bob Gast and Florida yesterday. After waiting ten days for the weather to clear enough to permit him to fly south to Miami to join John D. Hertz and his family, who plan a flight around the Caribbean, Gast was unable to get his Sikorski amphibian out of the Gray Goose hangar at the Municipal airport because of a mountain of snow piled at the hangar door. A snow plow was pressed into service late yesterday and Gast expects to take off today.

Aerial passenger service was resumed yesterday when the sun reappeared. All lines were carrying travelers. Passenger service from the Municipal field had been virtually paralyzed for twelve days.

A new landing gear which permits planes to alight on either snow or bare land has been developed for use in the planes of the Boeing system, K. K. Knickerbocker, Chicago Boeing representative, announced yesterday. The device is to be known as a "snow-phibion."

McFarland Moore, representative of the Curtiss-Wright flying school of Chicago, will recommend removal of the school to the Mississippi gulf coast during the winter season, according to a dispatch from Mobile, Ala., last night. Moore is returning to Chicago after inspecting the municipal airport at Gulfport, Miss.

U.S. GETS CHINESE PLAN TO ABOLISH FOREIGN COURTS

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 20.—While an official Chinese government declaration pertaining to extraterritoriality is not available until the end of the year, it was learned today from authoritative sources that the Nationalist government intends to proceed along the course previously announced, declaring the consular court system abolished and making all foreigners subject to the Chinese laws and courts.

The Chinese government simultaneously will announce the creation of five special courts, which are to be located at Canton, Shanghai, Hankow, Tientsin, and Harbin. A Chinese judge will preside at each court, but there will also be attached to each court a foreign judicial expert under Chinese employ, who will be recommended by some organization such as The Hague court.

An Advisor Only.

The foreign judge will sit at all cases where foreign interests are involved and will consult with the Chinese judge prior to handing down decisions, but the Chinese judge is not bound to accept the view of the foreign judge, who is an advisor only.

In event the Chinese appeal court upholds the decision of the first court in actions in which the foreign judge dissents, the case then will be referred to the judicial council of the national government, which will review the case and appoint a high Chinese judge, who will consult with the appellate judge and the foreign judicial expert in rendering a final decision.

Submitted to U. S.

It is reported that the foregoing plan for the gradual abolition of the extraterritoriality system has been referred to the United States, Great Britain, and France, where it is under consideration, as a basis for new treaties which the Nationalist government hopes to conclude early in the new year.

Since several months is required to organize the special courts and to employ the foreign judicial experts, it is likely that the Nationalist government will permit the present consulate jurisdiction over foreigners to continue for a few months.

3 Bandits Hold Up London Savoy; Guests Join Chase

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 21.—[Saturday.]—Three men approached the cashier of the Savoy hotel last night as he was about to lock up the day's receipts of several thousand dollars, and after engaging him in conversation snatched the cash and made off. Hotel guests in evening dress, the porters and the staff chased the bandits who were eventually captured. One of the three is said to be either an American or a Canadian.

PEACE TREATY SAFE IN CHINA, KELLOGG SAYS

Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state and author of the Kellogg treaty outlawing war, declared yesterday, while passing through Chicago, that the pact is not endangered by the Russo-Chinese dispute. Mr. Kellogg stopped off here between trains on his way to St. Paul, his native city, where he will spend Christmas.

The peace pact was not violated, he said, because there was no formal declaration of war, the "mere seizing of a railroad" not constituting violation of the agreement. He said Secretary Stimson's note to Russia was in accordance with his views of the Russo-Chinese controversy.

TURKEY TO HAVE A NEW NATIONAL DRINK, LINDEN TEA

ANGORA, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Premier Ismet Pasha has ushered in a social revolution that may prove a kind of "Boston tea party" in modern Turkey.

The premier last night invited the representatives of the Turkish press to a Linden tea party at his villa here.

While the Linden tea was being passed around to the startled guests, who expected to drink the traditional Turkish coffee, the premier announced that his product of the Anatolian soil must replace coffee as the national drink in all patriotic homes. He said that extensive drinking of Linden tea was one of the measures in the government's plan for an economic and financial regeneration.

(Linden tea is made from the dried flower of the linden tree and is widely used in Europe as a home medicament in cases of cold.)

To the Public

We appreciate your coöperation in helping us do a big job

¶ We carried 788,710 people on Thursday during the terrific blizzard—150,000 more than on a normal, bright, sunshiny day—and without the slightest injury to a single person—man, woman, or child.

Only on three other days in the Rapid Transit Lines' history has this record been exceeded—on Armistice Day, November 11, 1918; on July 15, 1920; and during the Eucharistic Congress, June 24, 1926.

¶ Had our loop facilities been adequate to meet the requirements of a city of 3,000,000 people, we could have handled double the number, and at a much greater speed.

¶ Here's the story of how the job was done:

At 4 A. M. Wednesday morning, when the blizzard broke, our operating forces, which are in touch with the Government Weather Bureau every hour of the 24, were at their posts ready to do battle.

Clear every yard track.
Keep the snow moving from tracks and platforms.
See that all cars are well heated.
Keep up heat in stations.
Operate trains at speeds so that they can be stopped within visible distances.
See that crowds are protected against themselves on station platforms.
Keep service as near normal as public safety permits.

At 6 A. M., when the first of the morning rush started, every man—regular and extra, was fighting—with hastily recruited shovel crews helping.

On Thursday the Rapid Transit Lines carried every person who came to its platforms, this including the great crowds of extra passengers who, in fair weather, use the family automobile to and from employment. The total was 788,710.

In the Friday morning rush hour (7:30 A. M. to 8:30 A. M.) 172 trains—a total of 964 cars (normal service)—were operated into the Loop. Throughout the day schedules were maintained as on a bright, summer day. The big evening rush was handled like clockwork, through the kindly co-operation of our customers.

All day Friday, after the snow had ceased, the battle still went on. Snow crews continued to clear the lines and put the entire system in shape for any additional trouble that might be in the offing.

We know that Chicago appreciated our efforts, for our customers have been lavish in their praise and willing in their co-operation with our operating forces.

It would be out of place for the management not to speak a word in appreciation of the great job which the 5,800 men and women composing the Rapid Transit Lines organization did. The majority of them were on duty the entire duration of the storm. Scores of those in supervisory capacities went without sleep from 36 to 48 hours. But they won their fight.

Thanks again, to our loyal customers for their co-operation.

U. S. EDUCATES HAITIANS; GETS ABUSE IN RETURN

Americans Boss, Natives Do Work, Is Charge.

BY WILLIAM LAWSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 20.—The attempt to develop a trained middle class, both agricultural and industrial—something Haiti has never had—has made Dr. George H. Freeman, director of the Service Technique d'Agriculture, the most unpopular of American treaty officials who are engaged in the redemption of this republic.

The mobs milling in the streets here during the recent rioting cried "Down with Freeman" as loudly and as often as "Down with Borno," and he and his methods are certain to be one of the chief targets of the anti-American occupation group before the Hoover investigating commission.

Only Two Classes in Haiti.

Haiti has only two classes. One is the élite, anxious for a return of the preoccupational days, with its fingers in the public treasury. The other class comprises about 2,500,000 illiterate peasants, whose poverty and low mentality make them readily susceptible and responsive to inflammatory propaganda.

Mr. Freeman is trying to develop a property owning middle class. Under his direction the peasants are being taught to increase production, diversify their crops, and market their produce profitably. Rural agricultural schools, where the peasants, children and adults, learn to read and write and at the same time receive practical demonstrations of efficient farming, have been established throughout the country.

Student Roll Grows.

No less than 65 rural farm schools, two girls' industrial schools, five boys' industrial schools, and one boys' correctional school have been established since 1923. During the coming year, twelve additional industrial schools and 25 new rural schools now under construction will be opened. The number of students enrolled increased from 50 in 1923 to 11,427 in the current term.

In addition to the purely educational feature of its program, the service technique includes departments of horticulture, chemistry, botany, forestry, animal husbandry, agronomy, entomology and marketing.

Work in Charge of Americans.

Mr. Freeman's work has drawn criticism because he has placed the direction of the more important bureaus in the hands of Americans. It is frequently charged in the anti-occupation press that 24 American experts of doubtful ability have been placed in high paying sinecures while Haitians of equal or more ability do the actual work and receive almost nominal salaries. Senator King of Utah and other Americans have made the same charge.

It is charged by the opposition that Dr. Freeman has steadfastly refused to replace American executives and other employés in the service with Haitians as rapidly as they have been trained to fulfill the duties, and that Americans unable to speak the Haitian Creole language and unwilling to learn are carried on the pay roll in various capacities.

Percentage Cut Down.

An investigation of the records shows that the number of Americans in the service technique has been reduced from 26 per cent in 1923 to 8.4 per cent. Of the total of 476 employés, seven of the 20 executives and directors are Haitians; four of the seven executive assistants are Haitians; five of the 14 department heads and technical experts are Haitians; all of the supervisors are natives; 252 of the 261 teachers are Haitians; and 88 of the 92 clerks and others in minor positions are natives.

Only five Americans, according to Dr. Freeman's records, receive more than $5,000 a year. The salaries of the others range from a minimum of $1,080 to $5,000. Dr. Freeman's salary of $10,000, as well as $7,500 paid his first assistant, Dr. Carl Colvin, was fixed by the treaty adopted after intervention in 1915. Haitian employés are paid from $300 per month down to $40 per month.

Bomb Wrecks Store Front; Neighbors Knocked to Floor

A powerful bomb exploding at the front door of a general merchandise store operated by Bernard Parvin at 1818 Milwaukee avenue last night wrecked the front of the building and shattered windows in other buildings on both sides of the street. The damage is estimated at $2,000. Occupants of apartments on the second and third floors of the three story brick building were knocked down by the explosion but were not injured. The Racine avenue police summoned Parvin from his home at 2654 North Mozart avenue and after he had visited the scene took him to the police station for questioning. He told the police he knew no reason for the bombing.

MISSING BOY

IVAR DAVID JULIUS.

The Town Hall police were asked last night to search for Ivan David Julius, 17 year old high school student who disappeared last Wednesday from his home at 718 Roscoe street. The boy left home, according to his parents, after he had been reprimanded for losing three books that did not belong to him. He and his father, Ivan J. Julius, were on their way to the Horace Greeley branch of the Lake View High school to explain to the school authorities about the missing books when he ran away?

YRIGOYEN RUINING ARGENTINA, HIS CRITICS CHARGE

"Done Nothing Since He Took Office."

BY HAROLD TATAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 20.—What may be termed as the case against President Yrigoyen has been summed up as follows by Buenos Aires political writers following strong reactions to his latest ukase closing the conversion office by a simple decree which is tantamount to the abandonment of the gold standard for an undefined period without the sanction of congress:

First—The Yrigoyen administration during the 14 months it has been in office is said to have accomplished nothing that could be called beneficial to the country, with the possible exception of the D'Abernon trade agreement with Great Britain.

No Budget for Next Year.

Second—The neglect to present to congress the national budget, which should have been done last May. The government in a message to congress yesterday said that lack of time precluded the preparation of a new budget for 1930 and therefore it would renew the 1929 budget with slight alterations.

Third—He is said to have permitted the Argentine diplomatic and consular representation abroad to shrink to a mere skeleton force. The failure to appoint an ambassador to Washington is the outstanding example.

Fourth—The appointment of cabinet ministers for purely political reasons, resulting in many important portfolios being filled by men quite unversed in matters pertaining to their departments.

Important Work Piles Up.

Fifth—Allowing the work of administering public affairs to accumulate to the point where documents relating to most important matters are hopelessly lost in the mountain of dockets awaiting the personal attention of the president. The prevailing system does not permit the ministers to decide even on the most trifling matters without the approval of the president. Meanwhile, it is charged, time is being wasted in petty provincial politicastering, in vogue 50 years ago and now resuscitated precisely at the moment when business methods are most required.

Sixth—The administration is said to have turned a deaf ear to the appeals of hundreds of government contractors and purveyors who have been endeavoring for many months to collect more than $42,440,000 for goods and services delivered.

Antagonized Senate.

Seventh, Yrigoyen is said to have antagonized the senate by consistently ignoring the senate's constitutional prerogatives, and finally created an atmosphere of commercial distrust, which is reflected in the slump of Argentine securities in the foreign stock markets.

Discounting liberally from the above indictment what may be due to political haymaking, there is unquestionably a strong public feeling that President Yrigoyen is patriotic and well meaning, but surrounded by many incompetents and sycophants.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN COOK COUNTY.

Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission and until recently special prosecutor, says that Senator Deneen has failed the Republican voters who elected him and who accepted his candidates and supported his organization in their attempt to put a stop to the political practices which were shaming the city, scandalizing the public, wrecking Chicago's credit, and abusing the citizenship. He says the senator had an opportunity which he has disregarded. He could have justified the confidence placed in him and has not.

Mr. Loesch says that Mr. Deneen has been a sore disappointment to the people who thought they saw a chance to take local control out of the hands of corrupt politicians, to turn the rascals out, set up a decent government, and destroy the combinations of crime and politics. In disappointing these reasonable expectations Mr. Deneen has sought only the political advantage of himself and his organization and has been willing to associate with any one from whom he could gain any benefit. Mr. Loesch referred to Mr. Deneen's recent friendliness with the former state's attorney, Mr. Crowe, as an illustration of this.

Mr. Loesch has said publicly what has been in the thought of many Republican voters. They had been encouraged to believe that a real reform of politics and government had been put under way, and that it would be reflected in the character and acts of office holders. They were willing to support any man or organization who would stand square with them and they would have gone through with what they started. It is apparent that Senator Deneen has failed them, and they cannot find other elements in the Republican party which can be trusted to carry out their intent or do their will for the recovery of honest and useful government.

The Whiter Than Snow organization, opposed to Deneen, has no way of disguising the fact that it means Mayor Thompson. He is the measure of its purposes, just as he is the measure of Chicago's failure in government. He and his associates and supporters have produced the spectacle of wrecked government which daily threatens the suspension of necessary public functions for the lack of both cash and credit. His name symbolizes cheapened schools, the spoiling of public funds, the ruin of the city's reputation, and all the disgrace and injury which maladministration can do. So long as the mayor is associated with a party management the case is hopeless.

A situation such as exists in Chicago naturally attracts numbers of reform racketeers who endeavor to impose themselves on the public. There are several associations of such seeking to make an impression on the public imagination, but they can be dismissed as futile and undesirable. No remedy lies in that direction. It would work out only in an imposition on public credulity.

What remains for the Republicans who entertained hopes of reclaiming the city to decent government and rescuing it from the activities of crime and evil politics? Frankly, nothing that can be seen at the present in the party factions. The local Republican management offers nothing that could be construed as evidence of good public purpose or interpreted as an indication of anything but pushing for private profit. In such circumstances the Republican voters have nothing they can do except to turn to Democratic candidates and hope that the Democratic management will find it common sense to give them something like a square deal.

DISCREDITED OFFICIALS.

Judge Pam has reviewed the school board's so-called trial of Dr. William McAndrew and has found that the former superintendent was not guilty of the original charge of insubordination. Moreover, the court declared that the school trustees were without authority to hear the ribald charges of conspiracy with King George III. which were lodged against McAndrew on the first day of the inquisition.

Dr. McAndrew did not need this formal vindication. He stood higher perhaps in the esteem of the sincere men and women of Chicago after his illegal dismissal at the hands of Mayor Thompson's miserable manes on the school board than he did before. But the court's rebuke of the school board gang removes the merits of the tragic incident beyond all contention and exposes beyond refutation the motives of the conspirators.

Dr. McAndrew was the one obstacle to the invasion of the school treasury by the Thompson machine. Furthermore, he was an impassable obstacle. So long as Dr. McAndrew remained in charge of the educational system the school funds would be administered properly. McAndrew must go or there would be no loot. Accordingly, a trial was conceived and conducted under a buffoon judge, J. Lewis Coath. The result was never in doubt. The disreputable members of the board had pledged their votes against McAndrew so that the school should be restored to the Thompson feed box. Two honorable members voted for McAndrew, while eight voted at Thompson's behest.

Immediately after the expulsion of the distinguished superintendent the great raid upon the schools was started. Appointments to the educational and administrative departments were dictated by Thompson's precinct captains. Capable and experienced members of the school system were dismissed to make room for wretched election hustlers. The president of the school board lobbied at Springfield and impressed the school children in his lobbying scheme to get an increased tax rate for the schools. He got it. Now the school system is bankrupt. The Thompson boodlers worked fast. With McAndrew out of the way they took everything in sight and are now confessing helplessness to carry on the education of the children. Their greed was inordinate. Apparently it did not occur to them that this excessive plundering was suicidal.

Now that the picture is complete, now that the court has confirmed the judgment of honest citizens, now that the process of the conspiracy to invade the school treasury has been exposed and the result of the conspiracy is upon us, there is only one course for the men who voted to put McAndrew out of the way. Six of the eight men who voted for the expulsion of Dr. McAndrew are still members of the school board. They have never been fit for their positions, but now every person in Chicago knows their unfitness and holds them in contempt. They are James A. Hemingway, Theophilus Schmid, Walter H. Brandenburg, Oscar Durante, John A. English, and H. Wallace Caldwell. The other two, J. Lewis Coath and Charles J. Vopicka, are no longer members of the board.

THE GREAT AMERICAN DARN FOOL.

Some of the London comment on the Auburn prison uprising and civil war made merry, as might have been expected, and touched upon certain apparent contradictions in American character and habit, one being that a nation addicted to all manner of peace enferprises can't keep its penitentiaries in order or their inmates from fighting. The touch is acknowledged.

It is to be feared the point is not a superficial one. Crime and its consquences present realities to the American people. Altruism presents idealities. The realities, if they intelligently interested the proper authorities with public support, might be made to conform to the needs of civilization. It is an American perversity to put most importance upon things which seem to gain in value as they lose probability or even desirability of achievement. Addicts of illusion fascinate the imagination and decide the direction of activities. Much more excitement will prevail in places of exhortation over one outbreak in Haiti than over ten in an American prison. The possible keeping of the peace on the Manchurian border will occupy more space in the mind of authority than the needed giving of security to American streets and homes.

The United States, with reason, has the appearance of minding everybody's business but its own. This is not the fault of the great body of population, but its wishes and needs seldom register. The busybody is hunting troubles elsewhere. America is becoming an old lady too busy in the sewing circle to wash her own dishes.

SMOKE AND ECONOMY.

The council finance committee, we are informed, has considered the advisability of abolishing the smoke abatement bureau and assigning the anti-smoke crusade to the jurisdiction of another department. This would be done in the name of economy. The real motive, if the change should be made, would, however, be transparent. Economy would be the screen under which the aldermen would undertake to emasculate the smoke prevention campaign.

Since the attack on smoke was removed from the boiler inspector's authority and established under Mr. Chambers, as an independent department, there has been a substantial lightening of the smoke pall. The improvement, without doubt, may be credited to the freedom of action which the separate department enjoyed and the undistracted attention of the officials on the smoke campaign. To return the duties of the smoke commissioner to another department would be defeatism. The expense would continue, but the work would lapse. The voters will not be slow to find out the deception if the contemplated juggling of the anti-smoke service is carried out.

Editorial of the Day

THE ARMY.

[New York Herald Tribune.]

Publication of the annual reports of the various army heads recalls once more the complexity of the army problem. The army finds itself charged with "the national defense." It is a mission of complete vagueness, under which it may be called upon to do any one of half a dozen quite different things at any time between tomorrow and eternity. In theory it is supposed to be equally prepared for a punitive expedition in unsettled territory or a major war in highly developed country. It can (to take an example) dispense with neither its mules nor its tractors. It must keep up its weapons for use tomorrow, at the same time that it must avoid loading up with a vast equipment which may be obsolete long before any actual service is required of it. And it must retain the infantryman while developing the air corps, because there is no possible way, short of actual fighting, in which to determine which one will prove the more valuable in war.

It seems a situation demanding administrative ability of the first order and calling for realistic reexamination of the whole problem of national defense. The army has never abandoned the "six field army plan" of organization, which bases our national defense on a theoretical wartime force of some 2,000,000 men. Undertaken when it was expected that we should maintain a standing army of 250,000, with appropriations for second line and reserve services in proportion, it has survived because congress has never directed otherwise, although congress has cut the strength of the regular establishment in two and the appropriations for reserve work never have been forthcoming on the scale anticipated. It is possible that a theoretical full strength of 2,000,000 is unnecessary, and the plan should be revised. If so, administrative and strategic ability have a huge rôle to play in making the revision, but in the end congress must do its share.

Modern armies have ceased to be affairs which may be reduced or expanded from year to year—they are closely interrelated organisms which have to be built to a long term plan. In the end congress has to say what the plan will be; it might even, though it has never done so in the past, decide what missions it is likely to ask the army to perform.

LEADERS AND THEIR FAMILIES.

ROYALTY as a source of leadership for a nation represents the ideal of the geneticist. A dynasty established by some great warrior and statesman and then nurtured and maintained by the rank and file to do the nation's great planning, and to supply great leadership, fills the bill. But, practically speaking, it has not proved so. We know that the monarchs who now occupy the thrones on the north and south fringes of Europe are not great. They symbolize the office well. They are gentlemen, well poised, men who respect their God, their country and their office, and who thus earn the respect of their people. Never in history has the office of king been freer from blacklegs and libertines and better filled by gentlemen of quality.

While all this is true, no existing dynasty is supplying great leadership or even superior ability in statesmanship, invention, trade, literature, research, or professional work. Measured by that standard, genetics as found in royal dynasties is a failure. To this charge the geneticists reply that eugenics has never been applied by royal families. Mating is done for reasons of politics—state reasons.

There is no mating of superior men and equally great women for the prime purpose of begetting children who shall be markedly superior mentally and physically. There has been no protection of royal bloods against the various forms of racial poisons in order that the blood strains may not be tainted. There has been no effort to breed out insanity, lack of mental stability or even physical defects. They say that the actual urges of the royal matings have been no more eugenic than those followed by the general run of people.

Kings have followed urges about on the eugenics level of that followed by the men who have been elected President of the United States and with results that are comparable genetically. Thirty-nine have occupied the presidential chair. Of those, two were born practically two hundred years ago, a period long enough for a dynasty to show what it can do. Nineteen others were born one hundred or more years ago, though in the case of Garfield and Arthur the canvas requires a little stretching to make it cover. One hundred years is long enough to establish a dynasty and almost long enough for the institution to prove its worth. It may be fairly said that the Adams dynasty has made good. No royal family has done any better over a period of two hundred years.

The showing of the Presidents is somewhat bettered by the fact that five of the group were childless and several others had very small families. The royalty plan for breeding inherent qualities of leadership has not made good, but principally because it has not followed eugenic principles.

IT'S PROBABLY PIGEON BREAST.

E. F. writes:

1. Is there such a thing as a pigeon bone in a person?

2. Does it cause a short life? I have heard that a person with this would not live to be over 21. Is this true? What is it caused from?

REPLY.

1. I judge you mean pigeon breast, a deformity of the breast bone.

2. Pigeon breast results from rickets in childhood. Chicken breasted people are apt to resist tuberculosis and some other diseases poorly and they are rather low in vitality. As you note, the statements you have heard are gross exaggerations.

BLOOD AND HEREDITY.

H. M. S. writes:

1. Is comparison of blood samples reliable in establishing paternity?

2. Does it insure legal immunity or liability, as the case may be?

REPLY.

1. No. It has a little value, but not much, and it may mislead.

2. No.

BEDRIDDEN ALIEN.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—[Friend of the People.]—My brother is in the United States illegally, from Canada. He was reported, had it fixed so he could leave voluntarily in July. But in June he had a train accident, due to which he is still in the hospital. Is there some way out of this mess? V. E.

In view of the fact that the inquiry pertains to a matter which is still under consideration by this office we do not feel at liberty to comply with the request. It is suggested that writer or her alleged brother call at this office [1343 Transportation building] at their earliest convenience, at which time the case of her alleged brother will be explained to her.

RADIO A FAMILY EXPENSE.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—[Friend of the People.]—Can a radio company garnishee my wages when my wife bought a radio and signed the contract for it? She made a down payment and has refused to pay more because the radio cannot compare with the one selected in the store. We have written them asking an exchange. The only answer is a notice of attachment against my wages. C. C.

Under Illinois statute both spouses are liable for expenses of the family and a radio used in the family would so classify. If you bought a specific instrument and another was substituted, you would be entitled to reject within reasonable time. In general, it is improper for a creditor to serve a garnishee demand notice in advance of getting judgment against the debtor.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—I am about to apply for my final citizenship papers and would like to know the age regulations for witnesses. May I have an uncle as a witness, and where must I apply? W. C.

Witnesses must be at least twenty-one years of age. Near relatives are not accepted by the courts as witnesses. An application may be had at this office, 776 Postoffice building. H. L. ROETHE,

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

OUR CHANGING SOCIAL CONDITIONS.

Mr. Hoover has named a commission to be financed by the Rockefeller Foundation to make a nation-wide survey of our changing social conditions.

Our social conditions are very much changed
From the days that used to be;
We're different now in every way,
Just look about and see.
When grandma was a little girl
She was so shy and prim;
She never put in her reticule
A silver flask of gin.

If a youth came to a party
Filled up to the snoot,
The disgusted elders would exclaim,
"Take him out, the brute!"
But if we scorn the cocktails now,
They think we're in a stupor,
Or some one points with scorn and says
We're a prohibition snooper.

We used to trip along the streets
Even on the darkest nights,
And laugh and play and sing old songs,
In innocent delight.
But now we slink back to our homes
Like a cringing alley pup,
And listen for the familiar cry,
"Hey there! stick 'em up!"

We used to put ma and the girls
In the good old family surrey,
And amble o'er the countryside,
And never had to hurry;
But now we have to listen sharp
For the bullet's well known twang,
As dry agents yell to us to halt,
"In the name of the law!" BANG! BANG!

Conversation used to be an art,
But now it's grown stale,
Being limited to the question,
"Is your bootlegger still in jail?"
Yes, social conditions all have changed,
The bloom's gone from the rose;
But why a commission to find out
What everybody knows?

WE ARE in entire agreement with Bishop Cannon, the big gun of the drys, in his frenzied objection to having his picture taken by Los Angeles newspaper photographers. A picture of Bishop Cannon in the newspapers gives us such a pain in the neck that we don't get over it for hours and hours.

That Worry Is Gone. But There'll Be Another Along in a Minute.

Deep snow, such as we are enjoying now, doesn't make us worry any more. We live in a hotel now, and if Ernie Byfield, our genial landlord, wants the snow shoveled off the roof he can jolly well go up there and shovel it off himself, or make Johnny Hertz do it, because Johnny lives in a cottage up in that wild wind swept place. But snow on the roof used to worry us to death when we lived in a flat. On one idle Sunday afternoon, having nothing else to do, we read our lease. Way down in the fine print we discovered that we were legally obligated to keep the snow shoveled off the roof. And there we were without a snow shovel and we didn't know how to get on the roof. And, worse than that, it was June. How in the world could we shovel snow off the roof in June? Yet the lease plainly said we must shovel the snow off the roof. We pretty near worried ourselves sick over that lease. So now as we look out of the window and see the beautiful white flurry snow drifting hither and thither we are happy to think that we have no obligation to go up on the roof and shovel off the snow.

"May This Particular Dime's Worth Roll On Forever!"

says Llewellyn Jones in a story about stocks, stock market crashes, and the Linebook, in the Chicago Evening Post Literary supplement. But from the number of people who have bought and are buying this particular dime's worth, it simply can't roll on forever. What with Linebooks for Christmas cards and Christmas presents, Linebooks for buddies, and Linebooks for a few gay chuckles when people are too tired from shopping to read anything more serious, they'll all be gone before you know it. If you don't want to be disappointed (for you know when you want a thing, you want it!) you'd better get your supply today.

"GIVE HIM A MUFFLER!" "Give Him a Book!" "Give Him Gloves!" shriek the Christmas ads. Not us. We've got a muffler, a book, and a glove. All we want for Christmas was neatly expressed by James Whitcomb Riley when he told the waitress that all he wanted for breakfast was a glass of water, a toothpick, and a sweet smile. But, wait! That doesn't mean we want a glass of water and a toothpick for Christmas. We've got a glass of water and a toothpick. The smile, that's it. We just want a sweet smile for Christmas.

LAGNIAPPE.

YES! YES! The sun came out yesterday; the first time in eleven days. It passed right over Chicago just like it used to do. We knew it was the sun, for it had spots on it, and was an hour or two behind time, according to Bill Wrigley's clock 'n' everything. As soon as we heard that the sun was back we rushed out two of the Line's stiff photographers, who got the picture we plint herewith. It was a great day in Chicago yesterday. The sun came back! Hooray! Hoorah! Hooroo!

THE SUN. (Ly Kell Photo.)

AND GEE GOSH! Speaking of incidents of the great blizzard, the w. k. Stock Market seems also to have stepped up on the ice yesterday. And it was supposed to be on its way to Normalcy to spend Christmas. R. H. L.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

WASHINGTON.—President Lincoln issued a call for 300,000 troops to serve one, two or three years. In the event that any quota is not filled by Feb. 15 then a draft shall be made to supply the deficiency.

WASHINGTON.—The number of prisoners captured by Gen. Thomas in the battles before Nashville, Tenn., is officially estimated at between 10,000 and 11,000.

NASHVILLE.—An officer of Gen. Rousseau's staff has just arrived from Gen. Thomas' headquarters at Spring Hill, near Columbia. Hood's rebel army, or a remnant of it, was at Duck river, which he was crossing as rapidly as possible. B. F. Jacobs, secretary of the Chicago Christian commission, reported to J. V. Farwell of Chicago that the commission reached Franklin on Dec. 19 to care for our sick and wounded in rebel hands. Capt. Pryor and Lieut. Stokes of the 72d Illinois are dead. Our total wounded in the battles will reach but few over 2,000.

NEW YORK.—The Richmond Dispatch of the 17th says: "It is reported that Gen. Sherman's forces were in front of Gen. Hardee on the 16th and, the surrender of Savannah being refused, heavy fighting was going on that day."

CHICAGO.—The Great Northwestern fair for the benefit of the freedmen opened yesterday at Bryan hall. The fair will be the great attraction of the season and should have extended patronage.

CHICAGO.—George H. Dewey of Washington and Miss Celestia S. S. Hewes, Crete, Ill., were married in this city on Dec. 15 by the Rev. S. Hewes, a brother of the bride.

LONDON.—The Daily News has a dispatch from Cape Town which says: "The Boers intend to make a big stand at Stormberg, and are massing a great force at the abandoned British camp. One commando of 2,000 consists chiefly of rebel Dutch." The war department received a 4,000 word message from Sir Redvers Buller at Chieveley camp, but nothing is known of its nature, for it is in code and has not yet been deciphered.

HAVANA.—Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, the new governor general of Cuba, arrived here at daybreak today on the steamer Mexico. From Cabanas Fortress a salute of thirteen guns was fired.

PARIS—Paul Deroulede was sentenced by the high court to two years in prison for insulting the senate, magistrates and president of the republic. It may cost him his grade of the Legion of Honor.

CHICAGO.—Miss Margaret Verona Mahoney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Mahoney, 1037 Washington boulevard, and J. B. Fitzgerald were married at the Church of Our Lady of Sorrows.

NEW YORK.—The army transport Buford, having on board Emma Goldman, Alexander Berkman and more than 300 other radicals, left this port for an unknown destination. The radicals, who are being deported, will be taken to a European port, which will be made known upon the opening of the captain's orders when the Buford is 24 hours out. The ship is stocked with provisions to last 500 persons for 60 days.

WASHINGTON.—The Cummins bill, paving the way for the return of the railroads to private operation, passed the senate by a vote of 46 to 30.

WASHINGTON.—Immediately after President Wilson announced the appointment of a peace commission to consider differences between the bituminous coal miners and operators, the operators issued a statement denying that they had agreed to the basis for settlement outlined by the President and declaring that they were not consulted as to the agreement for negotiations entered into by the government and the miners.

IMMIGRATION BUREAUCRACY.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 19.—The charge of cruelty towards British subjects made by the London Chronicle against the American immigration authorities is true, not only with respect to British subjects but also to the citizens of all other countries.

I am a Canadian lawyer and often come to different parts of the U. S. in the course of my duties and business activities and have had occasion to come in contact with American immigration officers and with Canadian citizens in this country and Canada who have run into difficulties with your immigration bureaucrats and have personal knowledge of many instances in which Canadians have been subjected to unjust treatment. Many Canadians have been placed under arrest, and unless able to furnish bonds varying from $500 to $5,000 have been confined to filthy county jails, herded together with confirmed criminals, treated as felons and then deported for minor violations of your law such as overstaying the length of a visit or illegal entry, and I also know of instances in which, although entry into the U. S. had been legal, the individuals were ordered deported because they had returned to Canada for visits and on subsequent reëntry to the U. S. were compelled to pay another head tax at the border and given permits to remain only 6 months in the U. S., at the expiration of which they were deported, and in some cases being nonnatives of Canada were ordered sent to Poland, Russia and other European countries, since their first admission had been within the quotas of these countries, and only after much difficulty with your officials did they succeed in returning to Canada.

The U. S. has the right to restrict immigration and deport undesirables, but why people who have committed no crime save a minor violation of your law should be incarcerated in prison, subjected to ill treatment and the severe hardships often incident to deportation, especially in the case of immigrants from Europe, is difficult to understand. Would it seriously affect the efficiency of your immigration law if people guilty of such minor violations were permitted to legalize their residence in the country without being compelled to return to their own countries? You could deduct the number of people who thus acquire legal domicile in your country from the quotas of their respective countries.

Surely there ought to be room for the exercise of discretion and some consideration ought to be shown in such cases, especially where there are extenuating circumstances. What good purpose, viewed from the standpoint of the self interest of the U. S., is served by the deportation to Czecho-Slovakia, Italy or elsewhere of a wife with an infant in arms, who has come to join her husband in U. S., or of an aged parent dependent on children resident in America? As I understand it your immigration law was passed primarily to control the influx of foreign labor which would compete with American factory workers. Why, then, is it necessary for the achievement of this object to deport business men, office executives, lawyers, engineers, physicians, merchants, whose only crime is residence in your country and minor violation of your immigration law?

There is another matter, however, with respect to the methods used by American immigration officers in obtaining information leading to the apprehension of minor violators of your law which deserves emphatic condemnation. Even in our own territory your officers, through the American consulates, attempt to intimidate Canadian citizens and make use of the Canadian police department and Canadian police officials in hunting Canadians who are supposed to have violated your law, our officers and law enforcing agencies being led to believe they are assisting in the search of desperate criminals. At least in our own country your representatives have no right to molest and question Canadian citizens or to use our police departments for the purpose of making inquiries about reputable Canadians although they were common criminals and felons. Often these Canadians have returned to Canada, but failed to collect back their head tax on departure from the U. S., and your officials continue to hunt them in the belief that they are still in the U. S. Such activities within our own territory are to be condemned as they must lead to international bad feeling which at least between Canada and the U. S. you should make some attempt to obviate.

A CANADIAN CITIZEN.

BRUTALIZING DEPORTEES.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—Why should our government make an apology to England for brutal treatment of British deported subjects? The fact that they were being deported as undesirables made them deserve whatever treatment they received. Some time ago one of our American actresses was forced to slap one of these Englishmen in the face for insults made about her and our country while she was in England. Then again some Englishman wrote to the Voice of the People from England that 90 per cent of the American people should be put into penitentiaries and urged our government to build more penitentiaries.

What apology did John Bull make to the United States for this direct insult to the American citizens? It always should be a living memory in the minds of true American people how our country had to fight against the brutal force of the British in order to save our country. We received no apology from England for their insults and we should not give an apology.

EDWARD HINKLEY.

SLOGAN OF THE STORM.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—It would be a tremendous benefit to every one in Chicago if at times of heavy snowstorms owners of private homes would spend twenty or thirty minutes to clear away the snow in front of their property. I live in South Ada street, and walking down Ada at 81st street there are nothing but bungalows, private homes and cottages, and at eight o'clock the morning, snow was heaped several feet high in some places, making it a physical impossibility to walk through.

How about THE TRIBUNE showing us a little service by putting a headline in the paper asking the people in all neighborhoods to get out in large crews and do a little shoveling, or else print on the front page of the paper a slogan such as this, "Shovel early," or still better, "Throw away your horn and get a shovel."

NOTABLES JOIN MOVEMENT FOR NEGRO HOSPITAL

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

"One of the most epoch-making steps in behalf of the Negro race since the Emancipation Proclamation," wrote Julius Rosenwald from a sick bed to last evening's big, brilliant meeting held at the Palmer house to draw plans for providing Chicago Negroes with adequate hospital facilities and medical education.

"That proclamation," the letter continued, "declared the Negroes free citizens. This affiliation of the University of Chicago with a Negro hospital will help them to realize freedom of opportunity by affording the highest medical training under the best university auspices—a precedent which is sure to be followed by other universities."

Notables Attend Meeting.

The meeting had a heart, it meant business, and it was highly representative. Such physicians as Pusey, Herrick, Bundesen, Abt, and McArthur were there; such social scientists as Mary Bartelme, Mary McDowell, George Arthur, and Alexander Jackson; such officials as Ald. Guy Guernsey, Judge Alschuler, Judge De Young and County Clerk Sweitzer; such philanthropists and men and women of affairs as Clifford Barnes, Bion J. Arnold, George W. Dixon, Max Epstein, John V. Farwell, John Glessner, Lorado Taft, Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, and Mrs. Scott V. Eaton. In all 500 were there, and they represented many of the most significant names in Chicago.

They were the guests of Mr. Rosenwald, Dr. Frank Billings, Col. Sprague and Robert Maynard Hutchins.

The Facts Are Told.

The appalling facts were laid before them: One antiquated Negro hospital in Chicago with 44 beds for a Negro population of 167,000; a Negro death rate in Chicago 122 per cent higher than the white death rate; shockingly limited facilities for the post-graduate education of Negro physicians; the "expectation of life" among Negroes today what it was forty years ago among the whites, the highest Negro death rate in the United States in Chicago, and a higher Negro death rate here than in Calcutta, which has almost the highest general death rate of any city in the world.

"It's a heartbreaking story, friends," said Dr. Billings, who presided, "and it ought to appeal to all of us."

It did. The facts sank in, and within a few minutes after Dr. Billings and Col. Sprague and Mr. Jackson and Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general of the United States public health service, had finished their moving little speeches, the names of volunteers for the work of bettering conditions began to flutter up to Dr. Billings from the dinner tables.

Project to Cost $3,000,000.

That work will cost three million dollars and involves the purchase of the present Chicago Lying-In hospital, which will have new quarters in a year or two, and its transformation into a Negro general hospital and teaching center under the direction of the University of Chicago.

Of the three millions needed, $1,950,000 is in hand. The general education board of the Rockefeller foundation has given a million, the Rosenwald foundation half a million, the Conrad Hubert estate, which Calvin Coolidge, Al Smith and Mr. Rosenwald are allocating, a quarter of a million, and two Chicagoans, who are not willing to have their names made known as yet, a hundred thousand each.

78 Pledge Their Aid.

Forty white and 38 Negro guests at last night's meeting pledged themselves to the work of fund raising. Alexander Jackson was one of the pledgers. "This," said he, "is a test of the mettle of the colored race in Chicago and, God helping us, we shall not fail."

It is estimated by Negro leaders that they can raise at least a quarter of the sum still required.

The volunteers and other leaders in the campaign will hold a meeting at 12:30 o'clock next Monday afternoon at the Palmer house to perfect plans.

Finland Passes Bill to Stamp Out Communists

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Parliament today adopted by 98 votes to 78 a bill for amendment of the "associations" law, intended to stop all communistic activity through imposition of drastic penalties. It is expected the government will disperse all public communistic activity in Finland, even to the extent of dissolving the communistic group in parliament.

Weldon, N. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Fire today partly destroyed a two story brick office building here with a loss estimated by fire department officials at $50,000.

VICTIM FOUND SLAIN IN STREET; KILLER SEIZED

Louis Seames, 54 years old, 1008 West Madison street, was found shot and wounded fatally last night at Goethe and Wells streets. He died while Hudson avenue police were taking him to the Henrotin hospital. He had been shot once in the abdomen, once in the back of the head, and once in the right arm.

An identification card found in the man's pocket indicated that he was a carpenter employed by the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company. He was poorly dressed and had but a few coins in his pocket.

The wounded man was found by two small girls lying at the curb on Wells street. They notified members of Fire Engine Company No. 27, but disappeared before the police arrived. A few hours later Charles Pillics, 23 years old, 1707 Orchard street, confessed he killed Seames. He said the slaying was the result of a quarrel that started while the men were drinking.

Auspitz Elected Head of West Suburbs Association

Harry Auspitz, 7821 Phillips avenue, was elected chairman of the board of directors of the Chicago West Suburbs association yesterday at the annual meeting in the association's headquarters at 220 South State street. Other directors elected are Otto A. Klug, mayor of Lyons; Ernest Siebold, president of the village board of Franklin Park, and Frank Kasten, mayor of Blue Island.

CITY'S PRESENT DIVERSION O. K. TILL COURT ACTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—No immediate reduction in the amount of water diverted through the sanitary district canal at Chicago is contemplated by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, it was disclosed today at the conclusion of an open hearing on Chicago's application for a new permit to replace the one expiring Dec. 31.

The indications are that Secretary Hurley either will extend the life of the present permit pending further action by the Supreme court, or do nothing at all. In the latter case, Chicago would continue to divert 8,500 cubic second feet of water until the Supreme court entered its final decree setting the time when the sewage treatment program at Chicago should be completed and fixing the water diversion needed for navigation of the Chicago river.

Reversion Foes Heard.

Counsel for Wisconsin, Michigan, New York, Ohio and other lake states opposed to a diversion at Chicago urged Secretary Hurley to adopt a "do nothing" policy. Gilbert Bettman, attorney general of Ohio and spokesmen for the group, told the secretary that the war department had no authority to act in the Chicago case and added that the sanitary district should have applied to the Supreme court for relief if relief was needed.

"The expiration of the permit means nothing," said Bettman. "The court has jurisdiction over this whole matter. Everything about the diversion must be handled by the court. I think the war department should do nothing."

"I am inclined to believe you are correct," Mr. Hurley said, "but if I find that some administrative act is necessary, then the department will act in such a way that the rights of neither side in the controversy before the court will be prejudiced."

No Chicago Spokesmen.

No representatives of the sanitary district attended the hearing. Representative W. W. Chalmers [Rep., O.], veteran enemy of the Chicago water diversion, called upon the lake states to unite against legislation which would authorize a water diversion at Chicago for navigation purposes.

ALABAMAN WILL TEST BARRING OF PARTY BOLTERS

Candidate Will Appeal to Courts.

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 20.—(AP)—The first step for carrying into the courts the action of the Alabama Democratic executive committee in barring "bolters" from becoming candidates in the 1930 primary was taken here today. William L. Lee of Columbia, who admits having voted for Republican electors last fall, filed with Secretary of State John Brandon his announcement as a candidate for governor of Alabama, subject to the action of the 1930 primary.

His formal announcement, Mr. Lee admitted, was the first move to test the exclusion act by the Democratic executive committee. If he is not admitted to the party primary, Mr. Lee said, he would let the courts determine whether the state Democratic executive committee could fix qualifications for candidates in a primary election, different from those required for a voter.

Says He Voted G. O. P.

Mr. Lee announced that when he files his qualifications with the chairman of the state committee next month he will state that in the general election last fall he voted for the electors of the national Republican ticket and for the state Democratic ticket; also that he will support the nominees of the coming primary.

Whether Alabama Democrats who voted for President Hoover can participate in the next party primary was asked today of Attorney General C. C. McCall. His opinion is sought as to whether the action of the state Democratic executive committee is also applicable to voters who supported the Republican candidate.

The committee's action barred as candidates U. S. Senator J. Thomas Heflin, who is seeking another term, and Hugh A. Locke, an announced candidate for governor. Both stumped the state for Hoover.

Protested by Senator Black.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—The legality of the decision of the Alabama state Democratic committee to bar from the next party primary candidates who failed to support the national ticket last year was challenged today by Senator Black [Dem., Ala.].

The decision would exclude Senator Heflin of Alabama from running for renomination on the Democratic ticket next year.

"A study of the resolution adopted by the Alabama state Democratic committee convinces me that the majority has acted in contravention of existing laws and statutes," Senator Black says. "The committee, in my judgment, has no legal authority to adopt one rule of qualifications for voters in the primary and another rule of qualifications for candidates."

CLEANERS MAY SETTLE UNION DISPUTE TODAY

Hopes of finally adjusting the differences between the Master Cleaners and Dyers and the Cleaners, Dyers and Pressers' union today was expressed last night following a conference in the office of Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor. Mr. Olander and Ben Marshman, federal mediator, are assisting in effecting the settlement.

The employers have objected strenuously to the operation of a competitive cleaning establishment on the part of the union, but this remaining stumbling block to the settlement may be adjusted today, it was said.

Both sides yesterday accepted a suggestion of Mr. Olander that Prof. B. M. Squires be appointed an impartial chairman to sit in at the conferences leading to the final settlement of wage scales and working conditions expected to begin shortly after Christmas. It was agreed that Prof. Squires settle any mooted points. The professor is connected with the department of economics of the University of Chicago and is mediator for the Chicago clothing market.

Twenty-two of the dead, all Mexicans, were placed in one grave in the Catholic cemetery. In Oak Hill cemetery, Protestant burial ground, five were buried in one grave.

All places of business in McAlester closed during the services.

To All Telephone Users

We regret that service over about 23,000 telephones in the State Exchange was interfered with by a fire Thursday night.

Telephone workers succeeded in restoring all of those telephones for outgoing calls early on Friday morning. Incoming service to those telephones is limited, but will be increased as repair work progresses.

Telephone users in the city will experience some difficulty in reaching telephones in the State Exchange, but the trouble is being cleared as rapidly as possible.

It is suggested that calls to State telephones be restricted as much as possible for a day or two.

It is expected that complete service on all the telephones affected will be restored by Monday.

BOOKS

Indian Hails Cal Coolidge Kindred Spirit

As Boy, Stoic Youth, as Chief at Washington.

[Author of "Long Lance."]

"The Autobiography of Calvin Coolidge." [Cosmopolitan.]

I like this task of reviewing Calvin Coolidge's autobiography because his early life was so much like my own. In fact, the farther I read through this remarkable book the more perplexed I become at this striking resemblance between the boyhood impressions of a future President of the United States and those of a simple Indian boy who was traveling with Buffalo Bill as a trick rider when Calvin Coolidge was trying to make his way as a lawyer at Northampton, Mass.

At first I could not understand such sentences as:

"I was accustomed to carry, apples and popcorn balls to the town meetings to sell, mainly because my grandmother said my father had done so when he was a boy, and I was exceedingly anxious to grow up to be like him."

To me that sounded too much like the Indian code, for those are the lessons instilled into us by our mothers and grandmothers—to grow up to be like our fathers—and we strove with all our might in that direction.

And then he mentions his habit as a youngster of riding for miles standing behind his grandfather on the bare back of a horse—a stunt too typical of the western Indian kid to associate with the upbringing of a New England boy.

It sounds too far fetched for me to say that at this point I began strongly to suspect that Calvin Coolidge had some Indian in him and did not know it—but, nevertheless, I did. And then, on just the fourteenth page, I came upon this sentence:

"My grandfather, Calvin Galusha Coolidge, died when I was six years old. He was a spare man, over six feet tall, of a nature which caused people to confide in him. His mother and her family showed a marked trace of Indian blood."

Now I understand. He was partly of our race. It is peculiar what a dash of Indian blood does to a white strain. It is something like putting a little of the eagle into the chicken. And it gives us that outlook on life which is distinctly American, makes men not afraid to allow their youngsters to develop their courage standing on the back of a galloping horse, makes us want to be like our fathers, braves—for the provincial American has not yet ceased to be a brave, stronger fiber than any generation that he successively produces.

But the Indian spirit in Calvin Coolidge comes out more strongly than ever when he pronounces himself on heredity.

"When we come into the world the gate of gifts is closed behind us. We can do nothing about it. So far as the individual is concerned all he can do is to take the abilities he has and make the most of them. His power over the past is gone. His power over the future depends on what he does with himself in the present."

The Indians carry this point so far as to make it impossible for a father to give his name to his own son; his son must earn his name, and all he can expect to inherit from his father is the example of life he has lived.

When we are half way through the book we find him in the nation's capitol, speaking to his people like a true chief of the aboriginal race which dominates many of his outstanding characteristics. He says:

"While it was wise for the President to get all the competent advice possible, final judgments are necessarily his own. No one can share with him the responsibility for them. No one can make his decisions for him. He stands at the center of things, where no one else can stand. If others make mistakes they can be relieved and oftentimes a remedy can be provided. But he cannot retire. His decisions are final and usually irreparable. This constitutes the appalling burden of his office."

No words wasted here—an outcropping of the native American's distates of useless verbiage. And what Indian was ever more stoical than the man Calvin Coolidge, who utters this phrase:

"We draw our Presidents from the people. It is a wholesome thing for them to return to the people. I came from them. I wish to be one of them again."

But we must not give all of the credit to the "eagle," for the old Yankee rooster contributed a strain which made it possible for Calvin Coolidge to attain the highest honor that this nation can bestow upon its citizens. Without that strain he would have been a great brave, a great stoic, but it is doubtful if he would have possessed the quality that made him one of the most practical and successful Presidents that these United States have had. I refer to his uncanny quality of thrift in government administration. The prodigal old eagle must fold his wings when the stanch New England game cock screams out the following truth:

"There is no dignity quite so impressive and no independence quite so important as living within your means."

Yes, this last round belongs entirely to the rooster in Calvin Coolidge—I mean the strong strain of his Scotch and English ancestry.

Chuck full of salty philosophy, written with a vein of humor that few have credited this remarkable man with possessing, "The Autobiography of Calvin Coolidge" is much more than an autobiography. It is a study of the times of this generation; a book that cannot be neglected by intelligent minds.

Gotham Writers on Sports Base Club Upon Novel

A new club is being formed in New York, called "Young Men of Manhattan." It's this way. Katharine Brush has written a novel with that title, which has as its hero a sports writer on a New York paper.

It won't be out in book form until January, but it has been running serially in a weekly magazine. A lot of the gay "young men of Manhattan" gathered at a party given for Katherine Brush by our own Westbrook Pegler, Joe Williams of the New York Telegram, Bill Corum of the New York Journal, James Harrison of the New York Times, Richards Vidmer and Don Skene of the New York Herald-Tribune, and Gene Fowler.

Everybody was so certain that one of them was the hero of the book that they decided to form a club and that's that.

Humorous Hermit

WILLIAM CUPPY.

"How to Be a Hermit," by Will Cuppy. [Horace Liveright.]

Once in a while a really funny book happens, one that pleases even those who don't like funny books. "How to Be a Hermit," is this year's blessing. It is the story of Will Cuppy's lone life on Jones's [pronounced Jonesez] island. The home life of one of New York's most amusing reviewers and quipsters was characterized by a grandiose lack of what the world at large calls comfort and a grand collection of recipes for living from can to mouth, of friendships with the fauna of the island [there being a remarkable lack of flora according to the hermit] and general joy in the business of living hiding under a good, sarcastic pen.

There are two earnest discussions between the author and Isabel Paterson about spinach pro and con, and reflections on the importance of being furnaced. "The hermit's life's the life for me" is the theme song of the book, and it probably will scatter many homes to the winds when men realize that home work is a good deal easier on an island by oneself than working violently at an office all day in order to be able to have a home where, even if he doesn't have to fuel the furnace or fix the bathroom radiator, the only good his resting does is to make it possible for him to go back to the office where he can work violently all day in order to have a home, etc., ad lib. Available islands probably will all go into the hands of the realtors, and be staked out in hermit lots. F. B.

Here Is Method to Play Stocks, with Safety, Too

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Now, which shall we talk about first—poetry or Christmas presents?

Wait, gentlemen, a moment before you turn the page—it is of a Christmas book that we would speak—one that you may want to send a business acquaintance—one that you'll probably receive yourself from some intimate friend who knows you haven't much left but a wife and the children (or, as we are told F. P. A. more accurately phrases it for modern life, "two wives and the children").

We aren't referring to Edward H. Warren's intentional spoof, "Shakespeare in Wall Street" (Houghton, Mifflin Co.) in which Hamlet is a bond salesman, Macbeth a timid operator with a Park avenue apartment and Falstaff an anti-prohibitionist.

It is of "Speculation, The Wall Street Game," that we would tell you. . . . About six weeks ago it was just another hopeful and none too successful offering to that pencil and arm chair public which fell so hard for "cross word puzzle" books and "Ask Me Another." . . . The object of the game as set forth in the instructions is "to increase $10,000 to $15,000 by buying and selling your choice from a list of sixteen stocks during the rises and falls of six successive market days, which are sealed up from pages 17 on to the end of the book.

A condensed newspaper financial page tells you what happened to the stocks the day before and summarizes important news that may affect them each day. You read the dope, pencil your buys and sells in the order blank, and get busy with the paper cutter to see whether you won or lost. "Common sense interpretation of the news is all that is needed." . . . No, this sentence isn't italicized in the book, but it and other pertinent phrases will be marked in the copy somebody is mean enough to send you for Christmas with the inscription, "How to play the market without losing a cent." . . . The publishers of "The Wall Street Game Book" confess it was pretty much of a flop until some sarcastic soul started its rage as a Christmas card. . . . The game was the bright idea of an anonymous author who hides behind the double nom de plume of Augustus Poole and Walter J. Buckitt.

One doesn't, of course, expect all poets to resemble either Byron or Mrs. Browning . . . but one meets them always with surprise that they look like themselves, if you get what we mean. . . . The power and intensity of Lola Ridge's "Firehead" gives no hint of the extreme fragility of the dark haired, gray eyed woman who was guest of honor at Joseph Brewer's tea last Friday.

There Are Several Good Ways to Get Story of Disraeli

If Mr. George Arliss' sound picture of "Disraeli" lures you to investigate more deeply the life of that amusing character, there is a wealth of material at hand.

First of all, there is Andre Maurois' "Disraeli," which we should certainly advise you to read instead of the enormous Moneypenny and Buckle life in some five vast volumes (but which is a model of that particular kind of minute recording, by the way).

Then there are the recently published "Letters of Disraeli to Lady Chesterfield and Lady Bradford," two charming ladies, one well past 70 and the other, although seventeen years younger, a grandmother. They are delightful love letters, charming historical vignettes, and are an important as well as a delightful addition to the records of that period.

The two volumes are the editorial work of the marquis of Zetland and have a preface by M. Maurois. And if you are interested in Mrs. Disraeli there is a newish biography by James Sykes.

Best Sellers of Year Reported by Publishers

So You Can Tell What Public Buys.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

A few years ago any book that achieved a sale of one hundred thousand in one year was the talk of the book world. No one year ever boasted more than two or three such phenomena. Doesn't it surprise you to know that fifteen books have sold over a hundred thousand copies this year, that one little book alone sold 600,000, while one novel sold 305,000?

The book clubs have been responsible for the soaring sales of most of the fifteen, of which nine have been book club choices.

The most remarkable sale, then, in America, so statistics seem to prove, is Ernest Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms" [Scribners], which, published late in September, has sold over a hundred thousand copies in about eleven weeks.

Pessimists point to the 600,000 copies sold of Mr. Chic Sale's "The Specialist," a "book on architecture, I believe," Mr. Harry Hansen called it.

Next to "The Specialist" in sales was "All Quiet on the Western Front," by Maria Erich Remarque, which has sold to date in America over 305,000 [a small proportion of the over two millions world sale].

Our own Line Book, edited by Shelby Little, has sold over 185,000. The three books published in the fall of 1928 and having sold over a hundred thousand in 1929 are:

"The Case of Sergeant Grischa," by Arnold Zweig [Viking].

"The Art of Thinking," by Abbé Dimnet [Simon & Schuster].

The other books published this year which have topped the hundred thousand mark were all book club books. They are: "The Tragic Era," by Claude G. Bowers [Houghton-Mifflin]; "Little Caesar," by W. R. Burdett [Dial]; "They Stooped to Folly," by Ellen Glasgow [Doubleday-Doran]; "Henry the Eighth," by Francis Hackett [Liveright]; "Mamba's Daughters," by Du Bose Heyward [Doubleday-Doran]; "Laughing Boy," by Oliver La Farge [Houghton-Mifflin], and "The Cradle of the Deep," by Joan Lowell [Simon & Schuster]. They are listed alphabetically by authors, for the exact number of copies sold of each book was unobtainable.

But every one of thirty-nine major publishers had books which either almost tipped the mark or achieved excellent sales for their type of book. We asked each one of them to list their three best sellers under 100,000 in the order of their sales. The list is an interesting one:

Bennett and H. G. Wells at Work on Novels

Latter Toils in Southern France.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Arnold Bennett tells me that he has begun, and is absorbed in, the writing of his new novel. This is upon a most ambitious theme, and is to be a perfectly gigantic work. It may well prove to be his masterpiece.

H. G. Wells has returned to Provence for the winter. His new novel, which is being illustrated by David Low, the great Australian cartoonist, already is being serialized, and will be published in book form in the spring. Low is likely to be represented by at least one other book in the publishers' lists, for he has created some comic animals which are much loved by the readers of the Evening Standard, in which paper they appear regularly. A book of these animals may shortly be published. It is in the Evening Standard that Mr. Gluyas Williams' drawings delight the English public.

Miss Muriel Harris' prize novel, originally entitled "More Things in Heaven and Earth," is now to be called "The Seventh Gate." Miss Harris is a journalist, aged fifty, who has worked for some years for the Manchester Guardian.

Readers of Victor MacClure's mystery story, "The Crying Pig Murder," probably never will guess what pains it has cost the author to give them that pleasure. Mr. MacClure is a very slow writer, who is quite unable to write fast; and he is also very careless (and modest) about his manuscripts. Once, while he was touring aboard ship down the Spanish coast, painting, and writing about the crying pig, he was sending home the manuscript in fairly large batches. By mischance he missed the ship's agent at Vigo, who ordinarily would have taken charge of Mr. MacClure's mail, and was compelled to confide his manuscript to a quay laborer, with what he thought the postage would amount to, plus a handsome pourboire.

The ship left Vigo, and proceeded. Mr. MacClure feeling calm and happy. Not until long afterwards did he discover that his quay laborer had been a broken reed. And then, sadly, he had to sit down and write that portion of the book all over again.

SOME OF THE DE LUXE EDITIONS SPECIALLY FOR THE HOLIDAYS

E. P. Dutton & Co. made some special editions of books for Christmas. "The Roadmender," by Michael Fairless, which leaped into popularity through Ramsay MacDonald's mention of it in his first speech in New York, is in three editions at varying prices.

"The Collected Essays of Charles Lamb" are in two volumes, with delightful Brock illustrations, and so is Carlyle's "The French Revolution," with all sorts of plates. There is a little box with three essays, "Memory," by William Lyon Phelps; "Peace," by S. Parkes Cadman, and "Mother and Son," by Kathleen Norris.

"Those Were the Days" is an omnibus of four volumes of A. A. Milne's delightful prose under one roof. Another volume of Milne essays, "By Way of Introduction," has an alluring holiday binding. "The Miraventures of Martin Guerre," by Gaston Delayen, is beautifully printed—a "tale of old France for sophisticated readers."

"Hills and the Sea," a volume of essays about the English countryside by Hilaire Belloc, has illustrations in color by Donald Maxwell, and "The Golden Octopus," by Viscount Hastings, is a collection of legends of the south seas, illustrated with reproductions of water colors done by Blamire Young.

"The Wall of Weeping" is a translation from the French of Edmond Fleg by Humbert Wolfe and is autographed by both the author and the translator. The edition is limited to 750 copies, of which 250 are for America. A facsimile in full color of William Blake's "The First Book of Urizen," has a note by Dorothy Plowman.

And a handsome edition of Oscar Wilde's "The Harlot's House," illustrated by the young Greek artist, John Vassos, is autographed by the artist [not the author, of course] and is published in an edition limited to 750 copies.

Why Windsor Chairs?

Ella Shannon Bowles, author of "About Antiques" (Lippincott), says that Windsor chairs originated this way: King George was once walking through Windsor woods when a storm suddenly came up and he took refuge in a shepherd's hut. The chairs he found there were so comfortable that he ordered some made like them and he called them Windsor chairs.

CUSTOM BUILT

By SIDNEY HERSCHEL SMALL

SYNOPSIS.

John Andrew Kellogg, heir to millions, asks Barbara Thornton to marry him. She agrees but not very graciously. When she hears that he has just lost his job she scolds him and calls him a playboy. He calls on his attorney, David Craig, who tells him that he will never inherit the money his father left if he doesn't prove himself capable of managing his life in a sensible way. He tells him that since he has lost one job after another he will have to double five thousand dollars in thirty days or live on an income from a trust fund for the rest of his life. John Andrew telephones this to Barbara and asks her to give him five thousand to turn over to Craig. He refuses and tells her he is a play out of Hollywood. She is furious with him and breaks the engagement. He decides to go to San Francisco and starts for California. On the train he meets Anne Ames and is on her way to Hollywood with a letter in introduction to a movie producer. They become interested in each other. Before saying good-by in Utah, John Andrew tells Anne he will see her in Los Angeles in a short time.

AN ACCIDENT.

John Andrew said thoughtfully, "You selling cars, Pete?"

"Where can you get anything better than a Mercury? Take the cabriolet, for instance; that's just the model for you. Wire wheels. Upholstery of the front compartment two-toned mohair, or broadcloth if you prefer. Instruments, including hydrostatic gasoline gauge and engine thermometer, grouped in an attractively illuminated panel framed in —"

"Show case on wheels," John Andrew said. "Very nice for a lady, but I don't see a closed car —"

"We've got just the car for you, John Andrew! Now —"

"Wait a minute, Pete; you're letting that drink get warm . . . perhaps in thirty days I'll talk business with you, but not until then —"

Merriam stared at the mosquito nettinged glass before him, and then announced, "I won't last thirty days with the Mercury people, Andy. The sales manager's a fine fellow, but his assistant's been ridin' me . . . you could do me a big favor, Andy, even if you aren't in the market . . ."

"Fifty help any?"

"No," his companion snapped. "Come out to the Mercury salesroom with me, and let me give you a little ride in one of our fine jobs. Say something that'll make Henderson know you're going to be in the market within thirty days; he's the assistant manager, and the Big Boss's out of town . . . will do that, Andy? I'd like to ask you up for dinner afterward, but . . . well, last night Bess scraped the round steak for the baby, and we ate what was left after that . . ."

"You'd better take the fifty," Kellogg said quietly. "Sure I'll look at your car, old Pete, and I'll throw a line which will make this fellow out there give you a raise instead of canning you . . . one more? . . ."

John Andrew, climbing back into the sedan, had no doubt as to his course. Here was a chance to give good old Pete a hand, without its costing him a cent . . . more than the fifty, which Pete would have received anyway. All the verbal thanks John Andrew had been given was just that one look, but the little hot flush on Merriam's cheeks showed Kellogg how much it meant to take the money, and also how glad he was to get it.

He was, he told himself anew, the Scotchman who quit playing golf when he lost his ball. Fifty was the limit. No more. Nothing. Not a cent. Million for inventions, but not one penny for helping fellows out . . . that is ever and above the fifty.

"There she is," Merriam said profoundly. "Look at her, Mr. Kellogg! Is that a car?"

"Not bad," John Andrew admitted. "I've seen worse."

"She's mounted on the long wheelbase, Mr. Kellogg. It offers you better than eighty miles an hour. Look at this compartment for holding golf bags. Here's another locked compartment for tools or . . . er . . . anything. Cigaret lighter's right on the instrument board. Look at that body! You bet it's custom built; not a finer car made in America today. That's genuine jade green leather. Chromium plated. Shocks built into the frame. Don't she look it!"

"Um," John Andrew said. As a man with carnation in the button hole of a gray suit sauntered toward them, he added, "Not a bad little job. If I could really believe all you tell me —"

"We stand back of our cars, sir," the assistant manager said. "However, since you are not a San Franciscan—I might add a Californian, for we are known all over the state—I suggest that you take the car out and try—"

"I've driven Mercurys before," John Andrew said. "Still have sticking clutches?"

"Mr. Merriam should have explained to you that we have the easiest—the easiest clutch on any automobile now, sir. A child could operate it. Just the touch of the finger . . . you are interested in this custom built job?"

"I may be," John Andrew said. "Possibly within thirty days."

"If you want this particular car, I wouldn't wait; I really wouldn't."

Despite the necessity to see that old Pete was kept on good terms with his superior, John Andrew said, "You aren't doing the buying. I am." To show this, he added, "Run her off the floor here, and I'll see what I think of her."

He waited while Henderson apparently gave his salesman minute and detailed instructions as to the best way to make an immediate sale of the car; the green car was pushed through the rear of the pillared room, and brought by a mechanic to the street in front of the salon. A touch of silk here and there on the polished body; a final hum of the engine, and it was pronounced ready to be shown.

"The buzzard knew I'd had a drink," Merriam said, as he took the driver's seat. "Just because one or two knocks him on his ear"—sliding the low gear swiftly—"he doesn't realize that there're gentlemen left in the world . . . doesn't she pick up nicely? Listen to that engine! Now"—swinging around a corner—"here's a real San Francisco hill; I've got her switched down to ten, but she'll hit forty before we get to the top . . ."

"Don't know your traffic rules here —"

John Andrew changed places with Merriam.

"Keep along this street, Andy; we'll go out to the ocean, and then you can let her out a little. Won't hurt the engine. They're made to do sixty the day you take 'em off the floor . . ."

It was growing darker now, and John Andrew was beginning to grow weary. He was thinking more of the possible KELLOGG & CO., manufacturers of . . . something . . . than of the custom built Mercury.

The ocean, edged by a long line of white surf which sounded above the roar of the engine, swept into vision; John Andrew turned the car into the boulevard. After another minute, with ocean on one side and stretches of barren filled sand hills on the other, Merriam said, "There're STOP signs all along here; I know the traffic cops. Let her out a little, Andy . . ."

The wind whipping against his face was pleasant; the Mercury sang along smoothly; forty . . . fifty . . . sixty John Andrews resisted the temptation to run it any faster. It was good, even for a short space of time, to forget everything save the broad highway before him, the bright space lighted by the Mercury's lights, the wild, sweet wail of a fog horn somewhere on the coast.

Sixty . . .

"That's a Cayuaga," Merriam said in his ear, as they approached the red and white light of another car. "It's supposed to have a lot of speed, but we'll show it as if it were nailed to the ground . . ."

Due to the other machine they swept, and John Andrew swerved the car slightly so as to give the Cayuga's driver plenty of room; from the side of the highway, out of a STOP indicated street through the sand dunes, a car had now swung; John Andrew, without time to press the horn-button, with a sickening knowledge that he could not stop, turned the steering wheel slightly to avoid the Cayuga at the moment of passing . . .

Metal screeched for a moment against metal as fender met fender, and then the Mercury was ahead. John Andrew drove, foot pressing against the floor, toward the edge of the road nearest the ocean; and, as the car stopped roughly, heard a flood of language, none complimentary, issue from the car he had grazed. The Cayuaga did not stop.

"He had the whole road, the hog," Merriam said angrily. "And that fellow came right past the STOP sign . . . let's see what happened."

The right fender, in some way, was crempled, instead of being merely scraped or pulled slightly out of shape.

"Sorry," John Andrew said. "Accident, of course, but I'll pay for the damage, Pete —"

"That's on the house . . . want to drive any more?"

When they were back at the Mercury salesroom, Kellogg said quietly, "I'll go in with you, Pete, and tell what's-his-name that I was doing the driving, eh?"

Good Morning!

"Their Own Desire" tells a pretty good story and is an entertaining production. It is not, however, always convincingly acted and the director could have used a "gee" here and a "haw" there to good advantage.

I'm a little puzzled by the title, but I think it has reference to parents, who, in their second blooming, sacrifice the happiness of their offspring by giving way to romantic affections outside the home. Their own desires, in other words.

Mrs. Cheevers is such a mamma. The two meet, love, and desert their respective mates to be all in all to each other. The daughter of the former and the son of the latter also meet and fall in love. When they discover who each is—well—that's the story, and the picture shall inform you further regarding it.

Miss Shearer, lovely as ever, gives a good account of herself as Lally, though prone at times to indulge in artificial laughter that detracts from the sincerity of her characterization. Mr. Stone and the lady who portray the middle aged lovers, ring rather hollowly. Belle Bennett as the deserted wife failed to win much sympathy from this quarter. She is so saccharine, so fainty, so weepy, so humorless! One does not too much condemn her husband for his yen to be away. And, when she hangs herself, a dead weight about the neck of poor Lally's romance, you heartily wish that the fainting spell she has in the bathroom had been—well—now I'm getting nasty!

The best performance is that of Robert Montgomery as Lally's ardent young lover. Here's a juvenile caveman who knows his modern maidens! He has drive, manner, charm, and good looks and when he crashes a gate it's just all broken down.

"COURTIN' WILDCATS."

KIND: Farce comedy.

QUALITY: There are no stars in its crown.

FUNNY? Nope.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Oke.

ACTING: Not the kind you don't forget. The best work is done by players in minor rôles.

STORY: As adapted—terrible. Original by William Dudley Pelley was probably good. The action starts in a college town and ends in a wild west show.

REMARKS: Hoot Gibson has gray hair now and should not play "papa's boy" rôles. The country must be prosperous when a producing company will spend money on films like this one.

Archbishop Messmer Congratulates Pope Pius

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 20.—[Special.] — Prior to his departure for Louisiana today, where he is expected to spend the winter, Archbishop Sebastian G. Messmer, head of the Roman Catholic diocese of Milwaukee, sent a cablegram to Pope Pius XI. congratulating him on the golden jubilee anniversary of his priesthood. Archbishop Messmer is 82 years old and has been in ill health for some time.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Mrs. E. Carpenter, Aurora, Ill., was awarded $5.

The Question.

The Answers.

Mrs. Anna Hawekotte, 6244 North Washtenaw avenue, housewife — We keep step together. I never refuse when he wants to go places and I never ask him to go any place. I never ask for anything; I never refuse anything. And I couldn't be happy with any other arrangement.

Harry M. Heilbron, 4459 North Monticello avenue, broker—We certainly do. We play golf together without quarreling; we play bridge together without scrapping; we like picture shows and are in agreement as to the worth of the pictures. As a rule we agree on the type of our yearly vacation; in fact, we are quite in agreement.

Mrs. Daniel Troy, actress, "Queen Bee" company, Cort theater—I believe so, with the exceptions of bridge and dancing; otherwise we have about the same likes and dislikes. But he does not dance and he does not play bridge; I do. We like movies, the theater, swimming, and the same books.

Frank Urbanus, 3443 North La Vergne avenue, salesman—We agree upon the types of radio programs; we like music, sermons, lectures, and witty talk. I care more for the movies and sports than she does. I listen to the radio more than she does. I dance and she does not. We are much alike as to cards.

Wallace Meyer, 3750 Sheridan road, advertising agent—Yes, generally. We both like the opera; we both like to take vacation trips in Canada. I believe she is as fond of the movies as I am, though she will not admit it. She thinks I am an abominable bridge player.

The final Christmas rush will begin today in the shopping centers and at the postoffice and will continue until Tuesday night closes the parcel post windows and store doors.

Too many people are waiting until Monday to mail their packages, according to Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder. Those, he declared, will be disappointed when their gifts fail to reach their destinations in time for Christmas. The postoffice is from twenty-four to thirty-six hours ahead of schedule despite the handicap of crippled trucks caused by the blizzard, the postmaster said, and could have handled twice as many packages as were mailed yesterday.

Today is the deadline for mailing packages, as there will be no deliveries on Sunday or on Wednesday—Christmas.

The voices of Western Union messengers rang out in the loop district yesterday morning, bringing to shoppers the message of peace on earth as told in the old Christmas carols.

Yesterday might well have been Christmas were one to judge by the events scheduled. Lake High school pupils found time to distribute Christmas baskets to the poor children in the neighborhood surrounding the school.

In the American Legion headquarters in the Burnham building, Christmas packages were packed for war veterans in hospitals. The Optimist club gave a dinner at noon for 250 off the street boys in the Hotel Sherman with theatrical talent as entertainers. The children of Mary Crane nursery at Hull House received gifts at a party from the students of the National Kindergarten and Elementary college of Evanston.

The 23d ward National Republican club, 2459 South Crawford avenue, of which William Lass is committeeman, will entertain Christmas eve at their headquarters for the children of the ward. Last night the ladies' auxiliary entertained the children, distributing gifts among them.

This afternoon children of the Shriners' hospital for crippled children, 2211 North Oak Park avenue, will be given a party by Shriners. Headquarters for the distribution of Christmas baskets of food and clothing will be opened this morning by the Chicago lodge, Order of Elks, at the Steuben building. Preparations have been made by Judge Michael Feinberg, exalted ruler, and his committee to give more than 3,000 baskets.

The De La Salle band of more than a hundred pieces, will give its fifth annual concert tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the new De La Salle library-gymnasium building, 35th street and Michigan avenue. School letters will be awarded to members of the football team—the Catholic south side champions.

Quits London in Tiny Plane on Flight to Australia

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—F. C. Chichester, a wealthy New Zealander, climbed into the cockpit of a tiny Moth airplane at Croydon today and told his friends: "Cheerio, I'm off to Australia." During the afternoon he landed at Lyons, France, and two hours later left for Tunis. It is thought he hopes to beat Bert Hinkler's record of 15 days between England and Australia, established in 1928.

Quincy, Ill., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—The horse of John Janney galloped home yesterday too late to save the life of his dying master, it was revealed at a coroner's inquest held here today. NEEDY CHILDREN OF SANTA CLAUS AGE ARE AWAITING YOU!

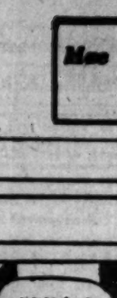
BY THOMAS WREN.

This morning there are thousands of poor and needy little boys and girls of the Santa Claus age in Chicago who are confronted with the possibility of the dreaded empty stocking on Christmas morning.



This year some of the organized charities experienced a greater difficulty in the distribution of names of needy families. But the response to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Good Fellow department has been good. All effort will now be concentrated to bring these uncared for poor families of small children within the confines of THE TRIBUNE'S Good Fellow crusade of Christmas cheer and happiness.

Each yuletide Old Father Time refuses to scribble finis after the Good Fellow crusade until every needy child in the tenements is assured of a great old time on Christmas day. This is made possible by the Good Fellows' supplies of food, candy, and those inexpensive toys which are so dear to childish hearts; yes, rich and poor alike. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Good Fellow is a 100 per cent program for little folk of sad environment.

The Good Fellow mission is somewhat more laborious than most Christmas activities. But it is the most efficient, and the great pleasure a Good Fellow receives with the knowledge he's saved some little child the sorrow of an empty stocking more than compensates him for any extra labor.

Good Fellows make personal visits to homes. This precludes the necessity for the children to amble out into the wintry weather and lug home a basket of food. It saves them this embarrassment. Then, too, the Good Fellows witness the transformation of saddened and gloomy children into youngsters of great cheer and joy. The change comes when the little folk realize they've not been forgotten.

Miss Charlotte Ring of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Good Fellow department announced headquarters at 1 South Dearborn street will be open all day Sunday. You are invited to visit these headquarters or call Superior 0100. She stated the time for Good Fellow enrollment will close Monday evening and that all time until then will be utilized in an effort to solve the problem of the tenement house children.

Enrollments were Walter P. Murphy, Dr. Raymond B. Prettyman, Chicago Stage Hands' union, Alumni association, College Advanced Traffic, the Child Study group, No. 21; Mrs. A. R. Klein, the freshman class at Barrington High school, William H. Bordwell of Delta Pi Delta, Miss Dagmar Kilberg of the G. G. G. club, Girls' Scout troop No. 23, Miss Dorothy Allen, the Western College for Women, Oxford, O.; the night shift of THE TRIBUNE'S engraving room, Delta Phi Epsilon, Elsdon Epworth league of the Elsdon Methodist church, Mrs. L. J. Arnstein of Columbia lodge of the Knights of Pythias.

He Conducts Program with Stock's Orchestra.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

For the first time in his life Alexander Glazounoff faced a Chicago audience yesterday afternoon, though for a considerable number of years his music has caused him to be considered as one of the most popular of the Russian group of composers. On this occasion he appeared as guest-artist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, conducting an entire program of his own works.

He is a mountainous person and unsmiling, not to say solemn of visage. One is told that his appearance belies to a certain extent his nature. Certainly it belies his music.

Spiritually he belongs to the family of Glinka, Rimsky-Korsakoff, and Borodin. This means that he is a thorough believer in melody as the basis of music, and that the harmony upon which it is borne always is pleasing, frequently interesting, and never extravagant. One has a constant feeling of good nature throughout his works, also of vigorous but completely sincere good manners. He would seem to be a subscriber to the doctrine of nothing in excess, particularly if that success threatens the dimension of length.

Consequently one carries away the impression of something sane, well balanced, and gently but firmly opposed to the doctrines and examples of the younger generation of composers. As to length, he is almost excessively modest. He showed us four of his works yesterday, and there would have been time for one or two more, one of the concert waltzes, a bit of ballet music, something that illustrated his feeling for the dance. But the program was of sterner stuff.

It began with the "Triumphal March," which he wrote for the Chicago World's Fair of 1893, leisurely, ear-filling affair that developed "John Brown's Body" as the characteristically American theme. Incidentally it awoke a certain degree of apprehension about the triumphal marches that are to be written for the fair that is to come. Suppose, for instance, some foreign composer gets the idea of embodying American military feeling and American spirit in "The Old Gray Mare Ain't What She Used to Be."

But Mr. Glazounoff passed at once to the prelude of his suite, "The Middle Ages," and then Jacques Gordon took the front of the stage to play the solo part of the Concerto in A minor, a pleasing work to which Mr. Gordon gave more than a pleasing performance.

After the intermission came the sixth symphony, another work wherein the composer believed in the virtues of brevity, but perhaps the most impressive of all. Mr. Glazounoff was immensely popular with audience and orchestra alike. A wave of enthusiasm swept through the house at his first appearance that too several minutes to subside, and at the conclusion of the concert the orchestra joined with the applause of the audience by giving him the fanfare technically known as a "tusch." And this is no ordinary or frequent token of appreciation.

Contest for Composers.

New York, Dec. 20.—(AP)—American composers who desire to submit works for possible performance at the festival of modern music to be held at Liege, Belgium, next September are invited to communicate with Frank Patterson, Steinway hall, New York. Mr. Patterson is chairman of the music committee of the United States section of the International Society for Contemporary Music, which is organizing the festival. The program will include works for chorus and orchestra, also chamber music and original works for military bands.

Your Skin Needs More Care Because of Winter Winds

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In the summer you think you have your troubles trying to keep your skin free from freckles, from unbecoming burning and from drying under the penetrating rays of the sun. But if the truth be told, it is during the winter season that your face and hands are most in need of attention.

The irritations from cold are more keenly felt [and seen] than those provoked in warm months. To begin with the heated season allows for a more active play of oil over the skin's surface. That's why we have no cases of chapped hands, lips and faces then.

But with the outdoor cold and the indoor dry air through the long, cold seasons, we readily become subject to a number of skin irritations. Of course, if you have the well established all-year-round-habit of oiling skin that requires it and protecting hands with lotions of preservative and whitening nature, the changed season will mean little to you.

More protection in the way of creamy ointment and skin foods is the logical thing to adopt if you are a victim of any of the winter ills. Your hands need special winter attention. You may find it an excellent thing to encase them in cosmetic gloves after they've had their bath and their lanolin or olive oil treatment.

A good cold cream or skin food may be just as satisfactory for you to use. But the thing is that you want to grease the skin surface with some kind of oil to prevent red and coarsened looks. There are some excellent hand lotions on the market, pleasant to the senses: touch, feel, and smell. And there is a timeworn one, effective as a softener and whitener, which you may have put up at your druggist's at comparatively little cost. It is made of equal parts of spirits of camphor and glycerine.

But the creaming of the face is something not to be neglected now, whatever neglect you may have been guilty of heretofore. There is a peculiarly seasonal "toughening and reddening" of the skin that must be counteracted if you want to preserve that youthful texture and coloring.

Amusement for Others.

Three of us had just finished writing a very stiff Latin exam, and the minute we got outside of the classroom we drew a long breath and I proceeded to do an Indian dance in the hall.

Much to my surprise, I slipped, fell down, and slid fully twenty feet on the marble floor and landed at the feet of my most detested English teacher. I am sure I provided great amusement for him, as he burst into a loud, hearty laugh, which caused more people to look my way. E. R.

Miss E. S. Ely, C. S. Bowen Are Engaged

BY THALIA

Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Boyer Ely of Pittsburgh, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Esther Stockton Ely, to Clymer Sprague Bowen of Chicago, son of Mrs. Charles Clement Bowen of Piedmont, Cal. The wedding is to take place next March.

Thus runneth the formal announcement of a betrothal that will interest and please society here, promising, as it does, the acquisition of another eastern bride. Miss Ely's father is a professor of commercial engineering at Carnegie Institute of Technology and is a well known personage. "Who's Who" notes that he has occupied his present position since 1920 and is ex-president of the University Extension society.

Mr. Bowen, popularly styled "Nig," is a Yale man and has been in business in Chicago for several years. He is identified with the town's hunting set and formerly was engaged to Katherine Thorne before her marriage last winter to George F. Gillespie of Phoenix, Ariz. Mr. Bowen left yesterday for the east and will presumably spend part of the holidays with his fiancée and her parents in Pittsburgh. He and Bill Louderback have been "baching it" at 900 North Michigan avenue this winter.

Dr. and Mrs. Marl Ohl Fisher of Parkersburg, W. Va., announce the marriage of their niece, Miss Kathleen Forman, to Robert White Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert White of 1200 Astor street. The wedding took place quietly yesterday at the chapel of St. James' Episcopal church. The former Miss Forman is a graduate of Brantwood Hall at Bronxville, N. Y., and of Columbia university. Mr. White, who enjoys the sprightly soubriquet of Bobwhite, attended the Chicago Latin School and Princeton.

Profusions of evergreen trees and branches decked with gold and silver balloons of varying sizes decorated the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone last night for the party the Joseph E. Otises gave for their three sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Otis of Santa Fé, N. M., who arrived on Thursday; for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart H. Otis. There were several hundred guests present at the dance and the supper that followed in the main dining room of the hotel.

Another of the evening's festivities was the dinner dance Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wilson gave at the Casino for Mrs. Wilson's brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. Oliver Bryson, who have come from India for the first time since their marriage in London a few years ago.

Today's calendar is monopolized by debutante affairs. Miss Peggy Wells, who is home for the holidays from Vassar, will be introduced to society this afternoon by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Wells, at a tea dance at the Fortnightly. Her assistants will include Miss Ruth Fisher, Miss Ann Small, Miss Narcissa Swift, Miss Elizabeth Durham, and Miss Charlotte Meyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevenson are to give a dinner dance this evening at the Casino for their daughter, Miss Marianne Stevenson, who made her debut several weeks ago, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren C. Fairbanks will be hosts at a debuta ball at the Blackstone for their daughter, Miss Cornelia Fairbanks.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sheppard Stone of 1360 Astor street have had to postpone the tea dance they were to give on Monday because of conflicting dates instead they will give a dinner for their daughter, Miss Lucy Stone, before the Yale Glee club concert. Miss Stone arrives with the Vassar contingent which includes also Miss Betty Gray, Miss Elinor Durbin, and Beatrice Lindsay. The Stones' son, Dana, arrived yesterday along with Robert McIlvaine, Gaylord Donnelley, Gordon Cameron, George Ryerson, and all the other Yale lads.

Mrs. James Rogers and Miss Jean Dixon will play the respective rôles of Dorothy and the Wizard in the final two performances of "The Patchwork Girl of Oz" in place of Mrs. Howard Peabody and Mrs. Henry Field. Mrs. Donald L. La Chance has been appointed to succeed Mrs. Russell H. Stafford as secretary of the Junior League's Children's theater, and Mrs. Margaret Carr, a provisional member, is to become property manager, a job hitherto held by Miss Miriam Tieken.

Howard ReQua will arrive on Monday from Santa Fé, N. M., to make a visit of a few weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. ReQua, in Winnetka. Mrs. Stewart Johnson, daughter of the ReQuas, her little daughter, Catita, and the governess are to sail on the S. S. Roosevelt on Jan. 21 for their annual trip to Egypt.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. DeGolyer of Lochbard Woods, who have been living at the Ambassador this winter, depart on Monday to spend the holidays at Inn-by-the-Sea, at Pass Christian, Miss. Mrs. DeGolyer returned recently from Bellefonte, Pa., where she was called by the illness and death of her mother, Mrs. James R. Harris, who visited frequently in Evanston and Winnetka.

The Charles H. Bosworths of Evanston and their daughters, Miss Frances and Miss Delia Bosworth, will spend their Christmas on the ocean, as they set sail last night from New York on the S. S. Belgenland for a world cruise. The cruise travels 30,738 miles, and visits 28 ports before returning to New York on May. 1.

The marriage of Miss Helen Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Christopher Little of Kenilworth, to Dr. Roy E. Brackin of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brackin of Galesburg, Ia., will take place at 4:30 this afternoon at the Kenilworth Union church.

The ceremony will be followed by a reception at the Little residence at 514 Essex road. Miss Virginia Little will be her sister's maid of honor and Dr. Sidney Starkweather will be best man for the groom. Dr. Arthur Ferguson, Dr. Harvey Jacobs, Dr. Lawrence Wilson and Burt McKinney will be ushers.

University of Chicago Gets Reptile Fossils 100 Million Years Old

Paul C. Miller, associate curator of paleontology at the University of Chicago, returned to Chicago yesterday from a nine months' expedition to South Africa, bringing with him fossils of several hundred reptiles that died in the Karroo semi-desert one hundred million years ago. His companion, Prof. Alfred S. Romer, is expected to return today.

The best pieces found in the five ton collection of fossils will be kept by the Walker museum at the university, while the others will be traded to other museums. Two of the principal skeletons are those of pareiasauri, reptiles which measured 14 feet in length and weighed more than a ton. One of pareiasauri will be integrated and set up in the museum; the first of its type to be mounted in the United States. The fossils included also skeletons of the giant headed reptiles and a skeleton of a bush man, a racial type which is now almost extinct.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There has just opened in the children's museum at the Art institute an exhibition of work by the pupils of the Saturday morning classes which are under the supervision of Miss Matilda Vanderpoel. It is a gay exhibit full of the Christmas spirit. Santa Claus makes his appearance in picture and carving; Christmas gnomes bestir themselves; Christmas stockings fill to an unnatural plumpness; Christmas sleds and Christmas snow and Christmas trees are so many settings against which Christmas children sport.

One of the most interesting parts of the exhibit is the wood carving by a little boy, Gustave Mozga, a pupil of the Burnside school, who is eleven years old and remarkably talented. He has a group of animals sculptured from wood and it is little short of marvelous the way he presents them. They are truly alive. Wolf, lion, dog—there are a number of different creatures as fascinating as many a group modeled by an older hand.

A great deal of his inspiration is due to the lectures and lessons given under the James Nelson Raymond public school children's lecture fund by Dudley Crafts Watson. Mr. Watson's talks are illustrated with crayons or slides and he reaches over 68,000 children in Cook county. This little boy is one of them. If he were the only one to have been helped to find himself it would be enough, but a great many more than he have discovered talent for painting or drawing or sculpture, and largely through these lectures. It is a unique and wonderful work.

Besides the wood carvings there is a Christmas tree in the current exhibit made entirely of paper and trimmed entirely with paper in all sorts of fantastic and delightful shapes. An exquisite little stage set of the Christ child's birth is another subject for wonder and admiration. There are wood blocks, too, which are very good and a long and fascinating mural portraying Santa Claus and Christmas fun in many ways. A glorious colored window, made of paper and illuminated, completes the really unusually attractive show.

The exhibition will continue into January.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—President and Mrs. Hoover were joined at the White House today by Mrs. Hoover's sister, Mrs. J. H. Large, and her daughter and son, Janet and Delano, who will remain until after the holidays.

The secretary of state and Mrs. H. L. Stimson started the series of presidential dinners tonight by entertaining the President and Mrs. Hoover. The company included the American ambassador to Mexico and Mrs. Dwight F. Morrow, former Secretary of State and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, former Attorney General George W. Wickersham, Dr. and Mrs. Angell of New Haven, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Page of New York, son and daughter-in-law of the former American ambassador to London; Miss Stimson, a niece of the host; Brandon Winthrop of New York, and Capt. Regnier, id to Secretary Stimson.

The dinner of the Vice President in honor of the President, which always precedes that of the secretary of state, has had to be set for Jan. 7 because of conflicting dates due to the mourning for the late Secretary Good.

Mrs. Hurley, wife of the secretary of war, was the honor guest at luncheon today of Mrs. Stephen O. Fuqua.

Miss Gertrude Lamont, debutante daughter of the secretary of commerce, was the guest for whom Miss Betty Thorpe, debutante daughter of Col. and Mrs. George C. Thorpe, gave a buffet supper which preceded the ball given by Claudius N. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, for his debutante daughter, Miss Mildred Huston, at the Mayflower. There were a thousand guests.

NOTORIOUS 'OUTLAW' ATOP POSTAL TOWER AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—A notorious outlaw, a death dealing figure in black, has just been discovered in the somber gray stone tower atop the postoffice department building.

The discovery was made, however, not by postal officials or by the police, but by ornithologists, for the outlaw is a solitary duck hawk. Austin H. Clark of the Smithsonian institution today reported the presence of the bird, one of the most savage members of the hawk family and one that usually is found along lonely, rock bound sea coasts where it can swoop down from the cliffs upon unsuspecting prey.

Evidently, more cunning than its brethren, this particular duck hawk has found that the pigeon clustered nooks and crannies of the postoffice building provide more food.

Bright Sayings of the Children

It was sonny's first afternoon at the opera. After the performance his mother asked the little fellow if he had enjoyed it.

"Yes," answered sonny. "It was a nice noise." C. C.

One day, seeing him in a brand new overcoat, I exclaimed, "Why, Edward! Haven't you a lovely new coat?"

"Yes, sir!" he cried, "And this never was James'. In all my life, it never was!" C. A. M.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Asks for Heating Stove.

"Do you think one of your readers has a heating stove to give away? I have five children and expect another soon. My husband is a steady worker, but we just can't get enough together to buy even the cheapest stove.

"Mrs. C. S."

During this cold weather, and with so many small children, this family certainly needs a stove. Won't you put an end to their discomfort by giving the heater you no longer use?

Many Sacrifices Are Made to Send Son to College

BY DORIS BLAKE.

To most persons who have no child in college the college girl and boy's life is a colorful existence, high lighted with football games, proms, and romances, surreptitious and otherwise, in between book cramming hours. To most outsiders the boys and girls in school are either sons and daughters of well to do parents or ambitious youngsters working their way through on their own.

Of a drama that is going on throughout the country, in which parents not well to do, but eager to give their children educational advantages participate, we get a glimpse in a letter at hand from one distrait mother. She speaks not for herself alone but for other mothers who are made to feel the pressure of exorbitant (for them) money demands and the ingratitude common to human beings for whom great sacrifices are made.

Whose is the fault is not the question at the moment. Nothing is more human than that you and I should want our sons and daughters to have as many of the advantages as our neighbors' children are permitted to enjoy. Whatever may be said against encouraging a taste for clothes or possessions on a par with wealthier boys and girls cannot apply where education is the thing struggled for.

But to cite a few bits of the drama behind the educational scenes, as attested by my correspondent, there is the case of one mother at a critical time in her life doing fine laundry work to keep her son in college. The correspondent confesses her own large family is doing without desserts, butter, and cream, just to give an idea of the other econbmies necessary to meet a college boy's expenses. Even fuel has to be considered, she tells, to save on which closing up part of the house has been resorted to.

Homes are mortgaged to meet the exigency, in some instances. Some parents deny themselves needed medical and dental attention. "Some are old," she says, "and should be enjoying comforts themselves, but these cannot be had when the desire is keener to give their children knowledge. There are so many, many cases and often there are unnecessary demands accruing, besides, out of the school girl or boy's desire to keep pace with other students."

A Child's Gift to You Is a Big Event in His Small Life

A booklet, entitled "Toy and Plaything List for Christmas," suggesting toys for different ages, will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Of course, we all say, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." And of course it is. Any one who's learned to live knows that—whether it's about material things or not. But when you do give you like to feel that your doing so is making some one happy—or is giving them some fun.

With grown people you usually get an inkling of this—they thank you for a gift. With children it's different—you have to sense their pleasure, as a rule. Children are seldom articulate about a gift—especially if they're natural and especially if they're little. People who don't understand them are often disappointed in this way when they give children presents and hear nothing but the silence of absorption. That's all that often happens when we give our small children presents—and we understand, even if outsiders don't.

But that is not what should happen when the children give us presents, because they don't understand unspoken pleasure. We must be sure to express our delight to them—to receive graciously the gifts they give with all their hearts.

And there's a certain amount of technique in appreciating a child's gift—if you know what I mean! It isn't just a matter of thanking them, or hugging them. It's more a matter of interested discussion of the gift itself—how they knew you wanted it, admiration of its points, and even a little public pride in it, gently aired. Just a little thought, and you'll realize how it works:

"Did you know all my handkerchief's were worn out?"

"How did you ever guess I needed a pipe cleaner?"

"I passed a window with these fancy matches in and I just wished I had a box. And now I have."

"And you bought it with your own savings? And picked it out yourself? I like this color very much. It just matches my pocketbook, too. And see how it fits. Now when I want to make a list of groceries or vegetables I'll just take this out and write in it."

"John, did you see the bracelet Jean made for me? She does this work in school—it's made of German silver—hammered, you know. It must be very carefully done to look well."

In some such ways as these make your children realize that they've given you real pleasure. When some tall knickered youth still just a little boy inside, when some wide eyed baby girl gives you a present this Christmas, don't in the excitement forget to honor it.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Mayonnaise Dressing.

If a commercial mayonnaise is used we always recommend that it be freshened up in some fashion with a little fresh onion juice, or a little chopped onion or tomato juice, or something that has an absolutely fresh taste.

Say what you will, the freshly made dressing has a highly desirable quality of its own, and once we used to recommend this quick way of doing the work: Put together one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon paprika, one or two tablespoons of genuinely cold water, one tablespoon of vinegar, one egg yolk, and then work into these one or two cups of oil. If we were making mayonnaise for a fish salad or a tartar sauce we added to the dry ingredients one level teaspoon of mustard. When the dressing was to be used for fruit alone, a little sugar was added.

First dissolve the dry ingredients in the water, add the vinegar and the egg yolk and beat them a minute or two. Then add a tablespoon of oil and beat, then two tablespoons of oil and repeat the beating, adding gradually more with more beating until one cup of oil is used. Then the dressing should be exceedingly thick and we can easily beat in another cup of oil.

In the old way of making this dressing, the oil was dropped in drop by drop at first, and in such a way that the egg yolk was overwhelmed and nothing but a thin mixture could be obtained. In mixing the new way the dressing will seem heavier and heavier with each addition of oil. It is well to avoid getting oil out to the edges of the dressing, pouring it always in the middle so that it will not spread over the top. It will split the thick dressing, but beating quickly blends the two.

A certain trade recipe labeled "quick" has seemed to us excellent and we have recommended it: Mix one-half a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoon of sugar, a teaspoon of dry mustard and a pinch each of paprika and red pepper. Add a tablespoon of water, stir until the salt and sugar dissolve, put in a tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar, break in one egg, beat vigorously for a few seconds, pour in about a tablespoon of oil, beat vigorously until the dressing starts to thicken and gradually add two cups of oil in larger and larger amounts. Beat well after each addition. This makes a pint of mayonnaise. In beating such a dressing we can change from a light weight to a stout egg beater.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The pattern, 3115, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with 2¼ yards of binding.

Ruffled Negligee Is Preferred by Blondes

BY LOLITA.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Here is a negligee which prefers 'em. Yes, decidedly for the blonde woman is this sky blue chiffon negligée with its trimming of silver metal cloth.

As you see, here is a negligee which is bound to humor us in this revived zeal for looking like ladies instead of like the bellboy. It is, in fact, with its diagonal sweep of ruffles, its flounced sleeves and its moulded corsages, just as feminine as anything which Godey's Lady Book ever advocated.

The line of the upper section attached to its ruffled skirt is one which we are determined to maintain in every province of clothes. Especially is this line, moulding the hips and sweeping down in the back, featured in today's fashionable evening wrap. To go to the opera or to a fashionable theafer nowadays is, in fact, a return trip ticket to the past. Here are wraps entirely different from anything which we have seen in years.

Eloquent of this new spirit abroad amid our evening wraps is a beautiful creation from Augusta Bernard, she who has created what many stylists call the most beautiful silhouette of the season. It is what is called the third length—not third dimension—and it occurs in velveteen in that smartest of evening colors, gray blue. It is collared and bordered in white fox and it has no sleeves. Nevertheless, it wraps tightly about the hips.

The fur coats, too, reflect a new mood. For example, a notable white ermine wrap shows a front, knee-length, contrasted with a longer back. Slight fullness is introduced into the hem of this model and its wide bell-shaped sleeves argue once more the return of the feminine mode.

BASS WINS MORGAN'S TITLE; KNOCKOUT IN 2D

Riel, Bergherm and Walter Show Way.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Northwestern is almost in the same position in basketball this winter as it was last year at this time. Indications then were that the Purple would be stronger than the year before and yet, because of an exceptionally hard schedule, wouldn't win as many games. That was true last year and this year the indications are that the Wildcats will be just about as good a ball club as they were last year, but again they look forward to about as hard a schedule as any team in the conference.

Last year the Wildcats finished fourth in the standing, winning seven and losing five, though outscored by their opponents, 370 points to 337. This year they have a good quintet, but their six opponents include four of the toughest in the once Big Ten. Those four include: Purdue, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Illinois along with Chicago and Minnesota.

Miss Gleichmann's Shooting.

Two of Northwestern's 1928-'29 team were graduated and one more is ineligible for scholastic deficiencies. But the Wildcats will miss the deadly basket eye of Hal Gleichmann, who ranked sixth in the conference last year with 92 points. And they'll miss the speed of Frank Marshall, brilliant but erratic guard, who is ineligible. His defection isn't an unmixed curse as the passing is likely to improve without Marshall's wild tosses, but he did average better than two baskets a game.

Four of last year's letter men are on the squad of sixteen Coach Arthur A. Lenberg has working in Patten gym each afternoon. But ten of the others are sophomores, some of them very good sophomores, an indication Northwestern is likely to be a factor in conference races the next few years.

Leading the team is Russell Walter, six foot one inch center, and incidentally 440 yard champion of the Western conference. Walter is playing his third year and from his work in practice games, seems to be making a bid to make it his greatest year. As a sophomore he ranked second in the conference in scoring with four baskets a game, but last year he got off to a bad start and two-thirds through the season injured his left knee in the Iowa game.

Teamed with him in the attacking line is Bert Riel at left forward, the deep kicker who is a good basket shot but doesn't score much because he doesn't shoot often enough to give the law of averages a chance. Riel is of more value than the baskets he might score for he's the keystone of the passing attack.

Four Guards Hold Edge.

Russell Bergherm, a third letterman, will start at the other forward. Tall enough to jump center after Walter was hurt last year, Bergherm also has a good basket eye. John Whelan is the first choice sub for him and Robert Halla, one of the sophs, a fast but green player, has first call on the other forward when Riel goes out. Joe Schwartz and Conrad Lippert, are a pair of small forwards and John Garde and Frank Forss, two more sophs who may come on.

Four guards hold the edge on the others now with the first string jobs a toss up among them. Robert McGuiness, six foot two inch sophomore, has a bit of the advantage over Dallas Marvil, 6 foot 4 inch, 240 pound football tackle, for the back guard job. McGuiness, a slender blonde, moves faster than Marvil, but despite the latter's weight he's no clown on his feet. The running guard post also is a toss up as yet between Robert Lockhart, a sophomore, and Merrill Mundy, red headed letterman of last year. Both are tall, but Mundy, at the moment, is laboring under the disadvantage of changing jobs. He was a fine guard last year and still isn't quite familiar with his job as a running guard. Bus Smith and Wade Wadsworth are two more sophomore threats, who may get somewhere if they develop, the former having had the advantage of experience in the second semester last year.

Open Against Wisconsin.

Altogether the Wildcats appear to be a basketball team which will give the conference team a real argument. Perhaps they may even develop into such hope wreckers as last year's team was.

In the three practice games played, the Wildcats have defeated Cornell college easily, nosed out Notre Dame, 34 to 33, in overtime, and lost to Pittsburgh, 38 to 30.

N. U. GUNNERS WHO BRING 'EM DOWN

Boston, Mass., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Acceptance of Bill Carrigan's resignation from the management of the Boston Red Sox was announced tonight by President Robert Quinn. Quinn made the announcement following his return from Lewiston, Me., where he had gone in hopes that he could induce the one time backstop star to reverse his determination to quit the same job for the second time.

The reason for Carrigan's withdrawal, according to Quinn, was the press of business matters in Lewiston, but this was generally regarded as an effort to conceal the fact that the manager surrendered because he thought the task of building up the Red Sox was too laborious.

Quinn was asked whether he had taken any steps to fill the vacancy. He replied that he hadn't. However, the opinion is that Charles Heine Wagner, shortstop on the team which Carrigan helped to make famous, will be selected. Wagner has been acting as Carrigan's assistant for three seasons.

Won World Title.

Carrigan took his first walk out on the Red Sox way back in 1916. During four years at the helm of the team he had twice won a world title, but his success in baseball failed to keep his mind off his business interests. These interests have since grown into such proportions that the salary for managing a big league team was of no consideration.

Carrigan heard the siren call in 1927 and returned in response to President Quinn's plea that he was the only man who could raise the once proud Red Sox out of the depths. Despite a large crop of new players annually and Carrigan's admitted ability as a baseball judge, the team failed to improve. In his three years as manager the Red Sox remained in last place. At the end of the recent season he put on the field what was conceded the best team he had produced. Carrigan now is 46 years old.

Has Unique Career.

The career of Carrigan was unique in that he is one of the few outstanding big leaguers who started and finished with the same team. The Red Sox took him off the Holy Cross college campus for the 1906 season. He was farmed out to Toronto for 1907 and then was recalled to remain as regular backstop until after 1914. He was made manager in 1913 and resigned after four seasons.

Wagner, who is expected to be named by Quinn within a few days, was the regular Red Sox shortstop from 1907 to 1913, after which he retired from playing because of illness.

NEW CHAMPION

PAIR OF RIGHT HAND SMASHES END TOD'S REIGN

Commission Orders Purses Withheld.

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Benny Bass, rugged Philadelphia lad, tonight won the world's junior lightweight championship by knocking out Tod Morgan of Seattle in Madison Square Garden. The bout, scheduled for 15 rounds, ended in the second. Morgan has held the title for five years.

Chairman James A. Farley of the state athletic commission, ordered the Garden to withhold the purses due Bass and Morgan. He announced at the ringside after the battle that the affair would be subjected to a rigid investigation.

Ordinarily the money is ordered withheld only in cases where a foul has been committed, where a boxer is compelled to sign his own contract because of the absence of a licensed manager, or in matches which are considered unsatisfactory.

Nine Thousand See Bout.

A crowd of about 9,000 saw the bout. An unusual feature was the fact that the match was one of the few in ring history in which a champion has been the under dog in the betting. Bass was the favorite at odds as high as 5 to 1, with 4 to 1 the general betting proposition. Morgan weighed 128 pounds and Bass 127.

Seldom, in all the fifteen battles Morgan has waged in successful defense of his crown, has he appeared to better advantage than he did in the first round tonight. Almost at the start he rifled a right hand into Bass' chin that nearly sank the challenger. Throughout the whole round he pressed his advantage fiercely.

Right hand punches shot from the shoulder straight down the alley to Bass' chin, sent the challenger back on his heels. He went to his corner dizzy and reeling when the first round was over. It seemed as if Bass could not last more than another round of such punishment.

Benny Bass Rallies.

But the situation changed entirely in the second round. Bass tore from his corner and swung a right hand punch that crashed with deadening force on the champion's chin. The titleholder went down but regained his feet at the count of nine.

Bass tore into the tottering king, driving him this way and that under a fury of blows that landed about Morgan's bowed head and protecting arms. Tod's eyes were closed and he groped frantically for the wild puncher.

Morgan reached out to hold and as he did Bass unleashed the mightiest of all his rights. A smash that landed full on Tod's chin. Again Morgan went down.

The defending champion struggled to rise as Referee Jim Crowley started the ten second count over his prostrate form. Slowly and with effort Morgan rolled over on his face, started to get his hands and legs under him to raise his weight from the floor. He seemed to be coming erect at the count of nine, when he suddenly lurched forward on his face, to be counted out. He had to be assisted to his corner.

Diving Dan Not Flying Fish, Pilot Insists

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 21.—Mr. Fat Meade, the manager of Dangerous Dan Daly, who was rendered very inocuous by Arthur, the late Great Shires, in the maiden pugilistic success of the Chicago first baseman, has written your correspondent an indignant letter, complaining that an injustice has been done his fine old plunger, Diving Dan O'Dowd.

In commenting on Mr. Meade's nimble dexterity in dashing up the steps to the ring and fielding Dangerous Dan Daly on the first bounce, your correspondent related that he had learned to do this in the days when he was touring the country as the manager of Diving Daniel. A comparison was made between Diving Dan O'Dowd and Fainting Phil Scott, the flying fish of the dry tanks, and Mr. Meade sends an emphatic artistic protest against any attempt to couple Diving Dan with the flying fish, even for purposes of comparison.

Opens Fire on Pegler.

"Sir," Mr. Meade begins, "I am writing to you to offer you a chance to retract and apologize for your recent libelous remarks about Dan O'Dowd, that gallant old dry diver with whom I used to make the local stops along the Katy, the Cotton Belt route, and the Yazoo and Mississippi valley. In this article you worked an injustice to a master artist whose like has not been seen in my lifetime, and certainly will not be seen in your lifetime, as you are full of poison and I expect to read where you have stuck yourself with your own stinger any day. However, I have my pride to think of and I must not degrade myself to the point of abusing you, so it will suffice for me to say that you are not only poisonous but quite ignorant of the art and technique of dry diving.

"I have seen all the great dry whales of the last 20 years, including Joey Beckett in his master performance with Georges Carpentier, when he introduced the backward corkscrew dive; Al Reich, Quintin Romero-Rojas, Tumbling Tom Cowler, Sailor Martin, and Fred Fulton, whom I regard as having been in certain respects an original genius of the art, although a slave to his own peculiar specialty, that curious skidding movement, executed on the point of his chin and therefore not comparable to Dan O'Dowd, who was a many sided artist.

Beckett Stressed Backward Dive.

"Most of these celebrated tankers were partial to some one style of plunge. The corkscrew effect originated by Joey Beckett was mere trumpery, a cheap and tawdry novelty conceived by him for the special honor of the prince of Wales that evening when Joey met Carpentier. You will notice that it has been rejected by the

What the Home Town Folks Think of Baseball Heroes

BY EDWARD BURNS.

This piece, ladies and gents, is to be about Martinsburg, W. Va., and Vinton, Ia. But don't get alarmed. You're not going to be asked to build a factory in either place. You're not going to be asked to patronize the merchants on Main street. You're not even going to be asked to pass through Martinsburg or Vinton or look them up on the map.

HACK WILSON.

Since the last world series we have visited Vinton, which is the home town of Bing Miller, the Philadelphia player who ended the series with a two base hit with two out and a man on second and the score tied in the ninth inning of the final game. And we also have visited Martinsburg, the home town of Hack Wilson, who led both clubs in hitting, and did or did not do certain important things in the next to last game of the series.

How Hack's Career Began.

After a careful study, we are prepared to state that Vinton, taken en masse, is stronger for Bing than Martinsburg, taken in its entirety, is for Hack. One of the differences in the attitudes of the two towns is that Bing was born in Vinton and Hack wasn't born in Martinsburg. But there are other reasons.

Let us first discuss Hack and Martinsburg:

Hack first moved to Martinsburg in 1921 when he began his league career, as a catcher on the Martinsburg club, the year after Lefty Grove had played on the club as a first baseman.

He fell in love with and married the present Mrs. Wilson, a native of Martinsburg. Item 2 in the cause of those who don't march in the Wilson parades. They think Hack wouldn't stay in Martinsburg if the Missus didn't order it.

Item 3 might be listed as the fact that non-Elks consider Martinsburg lodge 778 a clannish lot, and there is talk around the town that some of the brothers play games for money and a few others sit at the windows and ogle the gals as they pass on the way home from work at the stocking factory. Hack is an Elk, and though he doesn't look at the gals, he's just an Elk to prejudiced non-Elks.

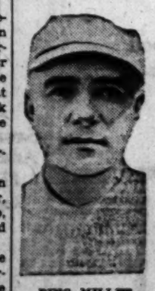
Item 5. Martinsburg, which claims a population of 18,000 and really has 14,000, is very proud of the fact that it has one way streets to relieve congestion. It is a whimsy of Hack's when he goes for an airing, to make all the one way streets, DRIVING IN THE WRONG DIRECTION.

Uses Patrol Wagon as Taxi.

Item 6. When Hack was playing in Martinsburg he had an inordinate thirst for lemonade and frequently would empty whole crocks at the ball park stand in one visit, not paying for same. The man who owned the lemonade still is in Martinsburg and is an anti-Wilson propagandist of no mean influence.

Item 7. Martinsburg's ball team is an Athletics farm and on several occasions Connie Mack has sent down a bundle of dough to keep the lumber man from toting off the grandstand and such like.

On the other hand, those who are Hack's friends proclaim him the greatest little man that ever wore spikes—a bon vivant and raconteur not matched by any Elk lodge in the nation. The boys in the police department are his pals and never hinder him in any of his pranks, such as the one relative to the one way streets. One morning at 1 o'clock we had occasion to go out to Hack's house in a hurry and all the taxis had been put to bed. So we called up Officer Minor, a Wilson fan, and he drove us out in a patrol wagon.



BING MILLER.

Now about Bing of Vinton:

It is said in Vinton that Bing Miller never had an enemy in the town and that if he had had, all would have been forgiven after Bing's famous

Tunney Scores Legal Points in Fogarty Suits

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Gene Tunney was given a peek into the gift sack of Santa Claus in Judge Carl Foster's court here today and what he saw assured him that next Wednesday will be more than Dec. 25 to the two time conqueror of Jack Dempsey.

Tunney's legal difficulties with Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, Fort Worth, Tex., divorcée, and her ex-husband, John S. Fogarty, virtually were thrown out the window when Frank L. Wilder, Mrs. Fogarty's lawyer, was given permission from Judge Foster to withdraw as her counsel in the $500,000 breach of promise suit against Tunney.

At the same time Judge Foster ruled against Mrs. Fogarty's action to have the countercharges of blackmail Gene made against her stricken from the record.

Homer S. Cummings and Raymond Hackett of Tunney's counsel then asked an injunction against Mrs. Fogarty restraining her from bringing other suits against the ex-pugilist once the pending case has been settled.

Judge Foster entertained the motion—known in Connecticut law as a judgment—and set next Friday as a day for argument on it.

Army Special 12 Hours Late; No Receptions

Hutchinson, Kas., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Bad weather, which has disorganized the trancontinental schedule of the Army football team en route to California to play Stanford Dec. 28, continued today and cut short an emergency practice session arranged by Coach Biff Jones here.

Frigid temperatures and a frozen field caused cancellation of plans for an hour's stiff workout and only 20 minutes of limbering up exercises was given.

Dressed in sweat clothes, the squad boarded busses when the special train stopped here and was transported to the local gridiron a mile from the station. Frank Wandle used most of the time for a series of calisthenics, then the players did a little passing and kicking, closing the session with a run.

Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at the Military academy, said that the twelve hour delay in the schedule of the Army special due to the midwest blizzard, in addition to spoiling plans for practice, also had ruined arrangements for receptions at various stops along the route.

The workouts planned for yesterday at Galesburg, Ill., had to be called off, but the Cadets were routed from their berths when the train reached there at 3:30 o'clock this morning in order not to disappoint the parents of two of the players who had waited hours at the station to greet the team.

The stop at Hutchinson was hastily arranged today by Coach Jones when it was found that the train would not reach Syracuse, Kas., in time to hold the scheduled workout there.

News that John M. Laza, brilliant center who was left behind at West Point because of scholastic difficulties, had been restored to eligibility and was leaving for the coast by air tonight, heartened his teammates.

Maj. Fleming said that because of the changed train schedule it had been necessary to cancel arrangements made by city officials and business men for elaborate receptions at La Junta and Trinidad, Colo., and Raton, N. M.

SUIT MAY SHOW WHY N. Y. TRADED ROGERS HORNSBY

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Addicts of the modernized game of rounders, or baseball, yet may learn the solution to one of the mysteries of this species of sport—the sudden peddling by the New York Giants of Rogers Hornsby, illustrious second baseman, to a team of such low athletic caste as the Boston Braves.

No satisfactory explanation of the epochal deal that transferred Hornsby from the Polo grounds to Braves field ever was made by John J. McGraw or by Charles A. Stoneham, operators of the Giants.

William F. Kenny, Al Smith's backer in the last presidential campaign, and others as stockholders of the National Exhibition company have entered suit against the firm to obtain an accounting. During the hearing of that action, it is understood, several of those who have a financial interest in the company will attempt to get at the real reason why Hornsby was sold to the Braves.

It was reported that several stockholders also would like to learn why several other efficient players were sold or traded, using the suit for an accounting as a means to that end.

HAGEN, VON ELM TIE FOR LEAD IN PASADENA GOLF

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 20.—(AP)—The fighting heart of George Von Elm of Detroit, second ranking amateur in America, today carried him through the opening round of the Pasadena $4,000 open golf tournament to a tie for first place with his fellow townsman, Walter Hagen, both turning in cards of 69 for the par 71 municipal golf course.

A quintet of outstanding professionals, including Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J., defending champion, with cards of 70, trailed the Michigan pair, while three others finished in par despite a sandstorm over the course during the morning round.

Von Elm, only a short time removed from a lengthy sojourn in the hospital, scored four birdies on the first nine for a 33, but weakened under the stress of action to come home in one over perfect figures.

Walter Hagen [Detroit]	69
Horton Smith [Joplin, Mo.]	70
Craig Wood [Bloomfield, N. J.]	70

Shea Knocks Out Garcia in 2 Minutes at South Bend

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Eddie Shea, Chicago, knocked out Frankie Garcia, after two minutes of the first round of their bout at the Christmas benefit show at Notre Dame gymnasium tonight. Shea floored the Cuban twice before the latter went down for a final count. Shea weighed 136 and Garcia 132.

more conservative and ethical vat workers as being contrary to the established canons of dry diving.

"But aside from this, Joey was really a consummate master of the backward dive, and the only criticism I would have to make of his work was that he dwelt on this to the exclusion of all the other graceful figures of the plunge. He was like an artist who can draw nothing but beautiful profiles and so were the majority of the others, each in his favorite movement.

Reich Master Diver.

"Perhaps you will recall Al Reich, although, to judge from the uninformed tenor of your remarks on the subject, I am tempted by the opinion that you have never actually seen the work of any of the real masters, but have been listening to the reminiscences of Dumb Daniel Morgan and are pretending to a knowledge and background which you do not possess, like a critic of literature who has familiarized himself with the classics by reading capsuled synopses of the same.

"At any rate, Al Reich was without peer in the execution of the swan dive, taking off with a light, soaring motion with his arms outstretched, his knees and ankles together.

"Romero-Rojas was rather crude in his earlier exhibitions at the Old Garden, and if you saw him only in those days and did not see him in such places at Newport, Ky., High Point, S. C., or Tucson, Ariz., you did not see Quintin at all. In fact, one does not see good vat work in New York except by some rare accident. By the time a dry whale has reached artistic maturity he is doing all his work in the leaky roof clubs far from Broadway, where the prevalent bad taste in everything precludes any fair hearing for persons of true artistic integrity. Any flashy spin or acrobatic flip deceives the critics and the public alike, and when Fainting Phil, the flying fish, comes along with his unconventional soaring swoon, you have the gall to compare him to Diving Dan O'Dowd.

"My only criticism of Quintin would be that he was rather mechanical, lacking that impulsive, inspirational quality which is all the difference between a man falling off a fire escape and another man climbing down a fire escape. He had everything but abandon. He was at home performing in any trajectory from the hump backed flight to the long, low plunge, and he could go to either side or backward, but there was always an instant of awkward hesitancy just before the take off and he was a mite too rigid in flight.

"Tumbling Tom Cowler never fulfilled his early promise. I marked him for genius the night of his first dive, but he quit the game too soon, and there is no sense of discussing what he might have done."

It will be recalled that after he had broken up the series, Bing, the center of all excitement, was carried on the shoulders of teammates to the microphone and in it said:

"I hope you folks out there in Vinton enjoyed the game as much as I did."

Everybody in Vinton was listening in and five minutes later the mayor, the town's millionaire, the postmaster and the editor had called a massmeeting to launch plans for Bing's home coming.

And such a home coming. They had to restrict the sale of tickets for the banquet because of the limits of the Legion hall, the biggest inclosure in town.

Nary a word was said about Bing drinking too much lemonade and he couldn't get a rap about his driving, for Vinton has no one way streets.

But just the same, we're for Hack. Didn't we get excommunicated from our home town a year ago because we didn't write the right kind of a piece about the high school basketball team?

Campion Academy's Long Shots Beat Loyola, 18-14

Campion academy came from behind in the closing minute of play to score three baskets in quick succession and beat Loyola, 18 to 14, last night on the north side floor.

With Loyola leading, 14 to 12, O'Keefe let fly a long shot to tie the score. A few seconds later Ireland's lengthy toss took the Prairie du Chien quintet into the lead. Just before the gun O'Connell's basket ran the score to 18-14.

BRUINS OPPOSE FT. WAYNE HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

Ex-Notre Dame Stars Play Preliminary.

Having finally achieved a spot in the first division of the American Professional Basketball league the Chicago Bruins start another drive for the top when they play the Fort Wayne five tomorrow night at Chicago Stadium.

The Hoosiers are stronger at the present than ever before. Davey Banks, wee star of the New York Celtics, recently was added to the ranks of the visitors. He has been leading his team in scoring. The rest of the squad is composed of the same players who won the second half championship last season for Fort Wayne.

A game that is attracting almost as much attention is the meeting between Midwest A. C. and the South Bend Stephensons. The South Benders are made up largely of former Notre Dame stars, including Colrick, Murphy, Moynihan, and Jachym, who played on the western championship five produced by the Irish two seasons ago.

TROJAN COACH SEEKS SPEED FOR PITTSBURGH TILT

Builds Formations Around Jesse Hill, Sprinter.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 20.—Howard Jones, coach of the southern California eleven which meets Pittsburgh in the intersectional football game in the Rose Bowl on New Year's afternoon, is overlooking no detail in the development of his team.

Fast runners always are valuable offensive weapons in football. Jack Elder of Notre Dame is a good example. Sprinters may be sent into battles not more than three times in a season, but frequently they turn the tide in favor of their team. These runners may be called specialists. They are injected toward the end of the game when opponents are tired. After a few plays they are withdrawn.

Gives Hill Workout.

Coach Jones today spent considerable time on his running plays. The Trojan coach used Jesse Hill, the fastest runner on the squad, in one of the backfield positions. Hill was injured early in the season and was hurt again in the Notre Dame game. He has completely recovered and will be sent against the Panthers at some stage of the game.

Hill, however, is more than a sprinter. He is a capable back who is just about the equal of any of the other Trojan ball carriers with the exception of Russell Saunders, quarter back. In today's practice, Hill flashed plenty of speed. If he is turned loose beyond the scrimmage line, he will be hard to stop. Coach Jones has planned some exceptionally strong formations for his fleet back.

The Southern California players were out at 9 o'clock this morning. After a brief talk in which Jones stressed strict training and the necessity of putting everything into the practice drill, the players were sent to work against Pitt formations.

The squad will continue to train at Bovard field until the latter part of next week, when it will come to Pasadena for its daily workouts in the Rose bowl.

Pitt Arrives Dec. 30.

Tournament of Roses officials announced today that Pittsburgh will not arrive until Dec. 30. This will allow the Panthers only two days of practice on the playing field. According to reports from the Smoky City, the Panthers are rounding into shape and will arrive here in better shape than they did two years ago, when they succumbed to Stanford by a 7 to 6 score.

If Southern California is the victor it will establish the best record of any eleven which has participated in this series that started back in 1916. The Trojans defeated Penn State, 14 to 8, in their only appearance in the Rose Bowl. A second victory will give them a better average than either Stanford or California, each of which has played three tournament games. The Cardinals and Bears have each won a game, lost one, and tied one.

In the Wake of the News

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: In the '70s, before there were street cars on Wabash avenue, two bus lines operated. They were little yellow fellows, seating six on a side inside and twelve on top sitting back to back. You climbed to the top by a ladder at the rear. As these two lines were rivals, how they would race for a passenger looming in the distance, while the passengers on top wondered if they would spill off.

Old Subscriber.

On the morning after the great Chicago fire of 1871 children were crying for it—drinking water. Of course, the regular supply was cut off and there was none available to most people except from the river, and it was not good. My uncle, Robert L. Hunt, had a double decker wagon, used as a delivery wagon for his soda water business. He loaded it with barrels, drove to the lake front, filled the barrels, and then supplied his relatives and neighbors until regular service was resumed. E. K. S.

In 1880 Edison incandescent lights—I believe the first in Chicago—were introduced in the grocery store of J. Jevne & Co., 110-112 (old numbers) West Madison, present site of the Morrison hotel. The street was jammed night after night to see the illumination. The coffee mill and roaster also were operated by the same power. This section at that time was one of the busiest in Chicago. Willoughby-Hill's clothing store was next door, on the corner of Clark, with the celebrated Race Bros. oyster house in the basement, the Brunswick billiard room to the east, and THE TRIBUNE at the corner of Dearborn. Honoring Rockne.

Notre Dame alumni are behind a movement to honor Rockne in the naming of the new football stadium at Notre Dame. Why not? We have Stagg field, we have Yost field house; we should have a Huff field (if, indeed, the stadium is not ultimately named in his honor), and why not Rockne field or stadium? These men have done enough for their college athletics so their names should be perpetuated. If you remember, THE TRIBUNE sporting department started the use of the name STAGG field for the Maroon gridiron before it was so designated officially by the university trustees.

Scholastic Eligibility.

Wake: Nothing on earth can stop me or any one else from subsidizing an athlete under any old college banner if we wish. But is the boy just playing football or getting a mental as well as physical education? That's what counts.

What is the difference whether a boy's father or the fellow next door pays the boy's expenses, so long as he is a good student and can prove it? Then let a committee of conference profs or some other agency give uniform examinations. Ringers and pros will be eliminated. Don't let a school grade its own players. That system has not worked—that's where much of the trouble is. There's too much at stake in these days of bigger and bigger stadia.

Four Big Nine Cage Teams in Tilts Tonight

Oberlin at Chicago.
Purdue at Butler.
Indiana at Pennsylvania.
Cornell at Minnesota.

Four Western conference schools test the gears and pickup of their basketball machines tonight against opponents who are expected to prove troublesome in three cases. The only Chicago performance is Oberlin college of Ohio and Maroons at Bartlett gymnasium.

The outstanding games involve three Hoosier quintets, Purdue playing Butler in an all-Hoosier classic at Indianapolis and Indiana playing Pennsylvania, eastern intercollegiate champions, at Philadelphia.

After Chicago's 35 to 16 victory over Lake Forest in the opening game, Coach Nels Norgren expects stiffer opposition from Oberlin, inasmuch as the five regulars are seniors, playing their third year. Red Barr, left forward, is the key of the Ohioans' offense. He is a fast and dangerous shot. Charles Stocker is the other forward, and Marcus Staley and Carl Allensworth Jr. guards. Jim Barnes, center, is a three letter man and holder of the Ohio conference record of 9 4-5 seconds in the 100 yard dash.

The Maroons' practice has been handicapped by examinations. Capt. Harry Changnon, who was out of the first game with a turned ankle, will be back in the lineup at forward, Sidney Yates, who dropped in seven baskets against Lake Forest, will be at the other forward, Marshall Fish at back guard and Kenneth Fraider and Joe Temple will alternate at floor guard. Center is still somewhat of a problem. John Bunge, the football tackle, has been showing up in practice, but Harold Boesel played well in the first game.

Minnesota's team, disorganized by ineligibility of some of last year's letter men, will play Cornell, which has lost to one Big Nine opponent in Northwestern.

Travel Weary Blackhawks to Meet Boston Tonight

Games Tonight

Chicago at Boston.
Les Canadiens at Ottawa.
N. Y. Americans at Montreal.
Pittsburgh at Toronto.

After sixteen hours in Pullmans without food or fire, Chicago's Blackhawks stepped off a train in Detroit Thursday night, to lose to the Detroit Cougars, 4 to 3. While the defeat was hardly unexpected as the team arrived from their long cold ride only four hours before the game, they have an even harder assignment tonight and tomorrow night.

After another long ride the Hawks battle the division leading Boston Bruins tonight on the latter's home ice, and tomorrow take on the New York Rangers, who won the Stanley cup in 1928. The world champion Bruins have lost only two games of the 13 they've played this season, but one of those was to the Hawks.

Try Out New Rule.

The four games tonight will be the first under the latest change in the rules which prohibits an attacking player from entering the attacking zone ahead of the play. So far this season scoring has averaged 6.9 goals a game in contrast to 2.9 goals a game last year when the forward pass was offside. Hockey fans will watch the scores closely for a time to see how the new change affects scoring.

To win tonight the Hawks must break through the great defense line of Eddie Shore, the bad man of hockey, and Lionel Hitchman, of whom big Frank Frederickson says "he hits harder and hurts more than any other defense man." The Bruins have three of the leading five scorers in the league, Dutch Gainor, who is first; Cooney Weiland, third, and Dit Clapper, fifth. It's rather a tough assignment to battle a crew like that on their home ice, but it's tougher to do it after two days on trains with a hard game two days before.

Hawks Remain Second.

Despite the loss of Detroit, the Hawks remain in second place, three games behind Boston and half a game in front of the Rangers. None of the other games can affect the standings much, though they may set the stage for shifts later.

Les Canadiens, who seem to have hit their stride, battle Ottawa, the early leaders of the Canadian division who have been slipping of late. The Flying Frenchmen are leading their division, while Ottawa has dropped to third. Montreal plays host to the New York Americans, who, on form, can have little hope of winning, and Pittsburgh and Toronto, both far off the pace in the early season, meet in the Canadian city.

EMANUEL WINS 10 ROUND FIGHT FROM GAGNON

Boston, Mass., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Armand Emanuel, Los Angeles heavyweight barrister, gained a ten round decision over Jack Gagnon, Boston battler, here tonight in the Boston Garden's feature contest. The victor was off to a poor start, taking terrific body punishment in the second, but his boxing skill accounted for most of the other rounds. The Californian yielded seven pounds to Gagnon, who scaled 190½.

Gagnon appeared bent on an early knockout, for he rushed at the opening bell and pounded Emanuel's body with both hands. Armand was dismayed at this display of aggressiveness and sought cover. Gagnon's bull-like rushes were again effective in the second, and he delivered enough punishment to make his opponent sag at the knees.

St. Mel Whips Feehan K. of C. Quintet, 18-17

St. Mel heavyweights defeated the Feehan Knights of Columbus five, 18 to 17, in an overtime practice game on the winners' floor last night. With St. Mel leading, 8 to 7, at half time, Charlie King, a member of the St. Mel championship team last year, went in for Feehan, and his four field goals gave Feehan a lead which it held until the last few minutes, when Hayes of St. Mel sank a free throw to tie the score.

In the extra period Al McGuff of St. Mel dropped in a basket and a free throw, while Stahler scored from the floor for Feehan. The St. Mel lights made it a double victory by defeating Albany Park, 17 to 12. Heavyweight lineup:

NEW TRIER WINS PAIR.

New Trier opened its Suburban league season on the home floor last night by taking a pair of close decisions from Oak Park. The heavies won, 21 to 17, and the lights, 26 to 24.

McKINLEY, 17; LAKE VIEW, 16.

McKinley heavies handed Lake View a 17 to 16 defeat on the latter's floor yesterday, their second in seven games. Lagging by three points at the half, McKinley rallied in the second period until they were but one point behind in the last minute of play. Trip Gentile of McKinley then arched one in from midfloor to give McKinley victory. Lake View's lights evened it up by trimming McKinley's ponies, 21 to 16.

Partridges Defy U.S. Breeders

BY BOB BECKER.

As another year of conservation and intensive study of game birds draws to a close, sportsmen in this country are still without much definite knowledge of the food and climatic requirements of the European partridge. This bird has been introduced at considerable expense into various sections of the United States. There are a few in Chicagoland. Hunters and hikers who cover much territory in northern Illinois occasionally flush coveys of the partridges.

However, many birds have been planted in the United States with disappointing results. In the far west in both the United States and Canada the partridge has been stocked with marked success [as for example in Saskatchewan], but the ornithologists are still puzzled that the partridge isn't doing well east of the Mississippi. The reasons for these variations in the success of the bird aren't understood.

In Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio many of the plantings have failed. The Saskatchewan birds are increasing in fine style. When we were near Regina last September sportsmen told us that the Hungarians bucked the hard winters without much difficulty. If there is any province which would seem to offer great difficulties to propogating partridges, Saskatchewan would be the one because of snow and low temperatures.

It looks as if the states which contemplate spending the sportsman's money for planting partridges might well study the bird's habits in Europe more thoroughly before trying to adapt them to conditions in this country. Partridges now cost $10 per pair.

FAMILY, CHARITY TO SHARE ESTATE OF MRS. SULLIVAN

$1,100,000 Divided in Will of Leader's Widow.

The will of Mrs. Helen M. Sullivan, widow of Roger C. Sullivan, Democratic leader of Illinois, was filed yesterday with Probate Court Clerk Mitchell C. Robin. It leaves one-seventh of her estate of $1,100,000 to charity and divides the remainder equally between four children and two grandchildren. Each of the bequests totals $157,143.

Mrs. Sullivan died Dec. 5 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert M. Wolf, 342 Wellington avenue. She was 69 years old. Since the death of her husband ten years ago Mrs. Sullivan had become noted for her charities. She provided many scholarships which are to continue and are not included in her will.

Children to Share Estate.

The four children who share the estate are: Boetius H. Sullivan, 350 Wellington avenue; Mrs. Wolf; Mrs. Frances Cummings, 442 Wellington avenue, and Mrs. Virginia S. Brennan, 3100 Lake Shore drive. The grandchildren are Helen M. McAvoy and William P. McAvoy Jr., children of Mrs. Sullivan's deceased daughter, Mrs. Helen S. McAvoy. All bequests are to be held in trust.

The distribution of the portion set aside for charity is to be made by the children and the administrators, Robert N. Wolf and Leo Cummings. Wishes expressed by Mrs. Sullivan before her death are to be carried out, her son said.

Carillon to Be Installed.

A carillon is to be installed in St. Malachy's Roman Catholic church as a memorial to Mrs. Sullivan. It will cost $15,000, and will be paid from the charitable fund. A bequest of $15,000 to the Rev. James T. Callaghan, pastor of the church and a life long friend of Roger Sullivan, and a like amount to Msgr. Joseph A. Casey, pastor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, from which Mrs. Sullivan was buried, are also to be expended from the fund.

The will was drawn Nov. 28, 1929, a week before her death. It was proved before Edward S. Scheffler, assistant to Probate Judge Horner, by Mr. Sullivan. It was filed by the law firm of Cooke, Sullivan & Ricks.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Possession

Elmer Explains Radio Mystery of Test Night

Program from Germany Heard with Success.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Before entering upon any of last evening radio events here is the gist of an Associated Press news dispatch

"Koenigswusterhausen was on the air in America today. If you picked up some German singing on your radio and didn't know what it was, that was it. It was an experimental broadcast preparatory to a Christmas day program from England, Germany and Holland, and the reception was so good it was sent out over the NBC chain through thirty stations. P. S.: O, yes, Koenigswusterhausen is a suburb of Berlin."

Pat Barnes put over a pretty and effective imaginative bit of dramatology last evening when during the W-G-N 9 to 9:30 feature program he waved a magic wand and Frederick Handel was made to appear at the studio. In addition to believing we heard Handel's voice we were asked to imagine him leading the station's symphony orchestra through the composer's famous "Largo" and an orchestral version of the Hallelujah chorus from "The Messiah."

The spelling bee contest now being held at WBBM, 8 to 8:30, has turned out to be an unexpected source of real fun and instruction.

While listening to Walter Pontius, tenor, on the W-G-N 8 to 8:30 popular program, I wondered what might be the status of this singer were he appearing on a New York program. Would the enchantment of distance make him a singer of even greater appeal.

Friday programs are distinctly popular. To be the most popular, I am lead to believe, a program must consist mostly of dance music.

L. W. PITCHER, CIVIL WAR VET, TAKEN BY DEATH

Lewis W. Pitcher, 81 years old, a veteran of the civil war and a resident of Chicago for more than 50 years, died last night at his home at 919 East 50th street after a brief illness. In recent years, Mr. Pitcher had been in the insurance business as a special agent for Fred James & Co. and was active until a few days ago.

He enlisted in the Union army at the age of 15 and served until the end of the war, fighting beside his father at the battle of Winchester. He was in Chicago for a few years in the early seventies as an employé of the Western Union Telegraph company and returned in 1878 to engage in the grain business. For a number of years he was a resident of the once fashionable colony on Prairie avenue, and was senior deacon of the old Plymouth Congregational church.

He was a member of the Chicago Athletic association, the Midlothian Country club, the Senior Golf Association of Illinois, and of the Twin Six Golf association, an organization composed of a dozen business men. He is survived by two brothers and two sisters.

KENNETT HARRIS, FICTION WRITER, DIES IN FLORIDA

Kennett Harris, 65 years old, former Chicago newspaperman and war correspondent and in later years a writer of fiction, died yesterday at Miami, Fla., following an attack of heart disease. He had gone to Miami less than a week ago to recuperate from a long illness and to spend the winter with a friend.

Mr. Harris came to Chicago as a member of the staff of the old Chicago Record in the middle nineties after having edited a paper in Missouri and done newspaper work in the west. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war he was sent to Cuba as a correspondent and was with Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders at several engagements. Upon his return to Chicago he succeeded George Ade as the conductor of a column in the Record and wrote many short stories.

For more than twenty years he had devoted his entire time to writing for magazines, being the author of numerous short stories dealing with life on the western plains, where he had studied frontier life during the early days of his newspaper career. Mr. Harris was a native of England.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, and three sons, one of whom, Tomford Harris, of Chicago, is recognized as one of the foremost pianists in America.

CONDITIONS IN BUSINESS ARE TIMELY TOPIC

Argue Pro and Con About Industry.

BY O. A. MATHER.

"How is business?" This question, which was largely ignored when the stock market was booming, now occupies the minds of speculator, investor, banker and business man alike. And any rumor of slackening trade in any line now has as quick and adverse effect in the stock market as rumors of mergers and stock splitups had favorable effects a few months ago.

The optimists and pessimists staged a battle yesterday, with honors going to the latter. The gloomy prophets cited the current recession in trade, which appears to be a bit more severe than usual at a year end. The optimists cited the fact that general sentiment remains cheerful and that trade, judged by ordinary standards, remains good. And the day produced data for both camps.

Reports of unsatisfactory holiday trade were not borne out by the weekly mercantile reviews, which suggested that Christmas trade will not be much worse, if any, than a year ago. However, there has been an increase in business failures and bank clearings are declined.

Dun's Viewpoint.

"Even during periods when factors of an unusual character are not operative, slackening of industrial activity before the year end holidays is a familiar phase," Dun's review says. "That condition is accentuated now by the influence of the late speculative breakdown, yet it is reassuring that the recent gain in confidence, the better general feeling, is maintained.

"The improved sentiment has a tangible basis in the various strong underlying forces, which the surface evidences of recessions do not obscure, and their ultimate effect on actual business can scarcely fail to be constructive. Prominent among the supporting elements is the favorable inventory status in more channels. The bearing of relatively small stocks of goods on future demand is obviously significant.

"The present caution in buying results in an accompanying restriction of outputs, but the curtailment is being accomplished in an orderly way and the easing of commodity prices remains gradual. Offerings of attractively priced merchandise have given an added impetus to retail distribution and the volume of Christmas shopping has been larger in the main than had been anticipated in many quarters immediately after the culmination of the severe financial stress."

"Trade and industrial trends for the week are in keeping with precedent, which at this date usually call for a slowing down in wholesale trade, jobbing and industry," Bradstreet's review says: "Retail and holiday buying, however, have tended to enlarge despite weather conditions.

Retail Trend.

"In retail trade the reports as to volume and character of buying take color from local industrial conditions, with the trend varying from reports of a volume slightly larger than a year ago at some centers to slightly below that at others. Moderate and low priced articles are having better than expected sales, whereas high priced lines show continued repression."

Business failures this week numbered 498, an increase of 16 over last week and also an increase of 7 over a year ago. Bank clearings totaled $12,-[illegible],000,000, compared with $12,580,208,-[illegible] last week and $13,990,675,000 a year ago, or a decline of 10.7 per cent.

Steel concerns in the Youngstown district reported that business in flatrolled steel from the automobile industry is larger than in November. Contracts for heavy construction and engineering this week are placed at $48,-[illegible],000, which is considerably larger than last week but slightly lower than a year ago.

The Bradstreet finds that its index of business activity for November shows a decrease of 8.1 points, the largest month-to-month decline in a number of years. The preliminary index for November is 95.4, compared with 103.5 for October and 108.8 at the peak of the current business cycle last May.

New York, Dec. 20.—Stockholders of the Dolores Esperanza corporation, operators of silver mines in Mexico, were being notified by letter that the affairs of the company are in such shape that unless additional working capital is provided its mining operations will have to cease. The letter states that the directors of the company have a plan to issue $100,000 of debenture bonds to meet present conditions, provided the issue can be placed with stockholders of the company, and endorsed in the letter is a preliminary subscription to the issue. The company states that the decline in silver prices, combined with losses occasioned by the 1923 revolution in Mexico, has caused the present difficulties.

Loree Trunk Line Project Is Discussed

BY SCRUTATOR.

One of the shrewdest railroad executives in the United States, L. F. Loree of the Delaware and Hudson, sees the conquering of the eastern mountain ranges as the great task of the transportation builders of the immediate future.

Mr. Loree is interested in the new plan for consolidation which the interstate commerce commission has promised the public and the railroads before the beginning of the new year. He wants its approval of a fifth trunk line connecting the Atlantic seaboard and the riches of the middle west. This new line would link New York harbor with the mineral resources of the Pittsburgh district and the foodstuffs producers of the Mississippi valley.

Estimate Cost at $177,000,000.

The estimate of the cost of the proposed route, straight across Pennsylvania, is 177 million dollars. But it would have a lower grade than any line now piercing the mountain ranges and, according to Mr. Loree, would carry freight more cheaply than any system in existence.

It has hardly been sufficiently stressed to the public that business in this country is dominantly centered in the seaboard states around the port of New York and in the central states with Chicago as their center. The traffic of the interior with New York and its satellites is the biggest factor in transportation problems. To handle this vast traffic only the New York Central railroad and the New York barge canals have water level routes. The other trade routes must cross the mountain region, which is 300 miles wide.

One-Third of Population—8% of Area.

Thirteen states comprising the northeastern section of the country contain but 8 per cent of the area. But one-third of the population lives there, and 47 per cent of the workers employed in industry. How vital cheap freight rates are to this population is evidenced by Mr. Loree's estimates on its food.

"Man is a heat machine," he declared. "To supply this heat through fuel in the form of food he uses for 65 per cent of his necessities the products of wheat, cattle and hogs. In the area with one-third the country's population less than 6 per cent of these products are raised; the balance must come from other parts of the country."

West Challenges East.

Quite properly, Mr. Loree pointed out that for the first time in the world's history there had been established, in the central west, an industrial population with a center a thousand miles from salt water. Its outlet to its customers and to the source of most supplies it needs in its own manufacturing, other than those produced locally, is over or around the high hills.

Much of the history of the United States is bound up in the fight to beat down the Appalachians. The first settlers west of them got their supplies, when they got them at all, after they had been wagon hauled to Pittsburgh and then transferred to boats on the Ohio. The plot of Burr and of Wilkinson to ally the western country to Spain was based on the belief that there was an easier and better route to the sea by way of the Mississippi system than through the mountains.

Bulk of Traffic Still East-West.

Even Andrew Jackson's biographers relate that he held the hope that Tennessee and Kentucky would find their natural outlet down the Alabama, with Mobile as the principal port. The Mississippi was in fact a tremendously important artery for its entire valley until the first rails crossed the northern mountains. It is coming back again with improvement of its channel.

But so far as we can see the bulk of travel and transport will be east and west, along the great lakes and the Mohawk-Hudson, or over the mountains. If another era of rail building ever comes, it is here, as the Delaware and Hudson chairman told the interstate commerce commission, that building is needed most.

ASSAIL UNFAIR PRACTICES IN SEED INDUSTRY

Eight resolutions opposing fraudulent and unfair practices in the American seed industry were adopted yesterday. Upon presentation to the federal trade commission, seven of these had received the unanimous support of the Farm Seed association in three preliminary conferences, and the eighth was brought yesterday by Owen T. Watts of Louisville, Ky.

Watts' resolution branded selling at or below cost for the purpose of injuring competition, unfair. The others concerned quality of products, advertising, cancellation of sales contracts, defamation of competition, corruption of agents and discrimination in prices and markets.

Charles H. March, Washington, commissioner of the federal trade commission; M. Markham Flannery, Washington, director of trade practice conferences of the federal trade commission, and F. W. Kellogg, chairman of the practice rules committee of the commission, presided at the conference. J. T. McCullough, Cincinnati, president of the farm seed organization, opened the meeting.

FARMERS' CO-OP BUYS WHEAT TO HALT PRICE SAG

Makes First Deal on Chicago Board.

The $20,000,000 Farmers' National Grain corporation began trading on the Chicago Board of Trade for the first time yesterday, for the announced purpose of helping the farmers in the current slump of wheat prices. The immediate cause of the entry of the coöperatives into the market was the decline of wheat prices below $1.18 a bushel, $1.18 being the amount which the corporation is lending in Chicago to coöperatives on their wheat holdings.

The grain corporation made a cash bid of $1.18 for No. 1 hard wheat, country run, the acceptances to be made today and delivery within twenty days. The bid came just before the close of yesterday's market, too late to show what its effect would be on trading.

Confusion Among Traders.

There was some confusion among traders as to the possible results of the bid today. The bid was 1¼ cents above yesterday's closing cash price, and it came at the end of a day in which the bears had it pretty much their own way on the contract market. Future prices dropped 2⅝ to 3 cents below Thursday's close, and from 7⅛ to 8⅛ cents under Wednesday. Heavy selling by a leading eastern operator was given as one of the chief factors in the bear market.

While there was little buying during the day, there was an undercurrent of expectation that the grain corporation would come to the rescue and support wheat to the amount of its loans. This belief prevented bears from going short in the expectation of further declines, it was said.

Forewarns May Start Today.

The fireworks, if any, will start when the market opens this morning after traders have had an opportunity to study the effect of the coöperatives' bid. The grain corporation announced recently that a slump in the price of wheat below the loan value would not cause a cut in the loan rate. This, together with the announcement that the coöperatives planned to do active trading, was interpreted to mean that the farmers' corporation would support prices at the amount of its loans. The $1.18 loan value in Chicago compares with $1.25 in Minneapolis and $1.15 in Omaha and Kansas City.

The grain corporation, in a statement made yesterday on its entry into the Chicago market, said it would also make bids to support prices in other wheat markets. "The grain corporation will be buying wheat on all the principal markets by Monday," the statement said.

Trader Is Appointed.

In preparation for its active campaign on the various boards of trade, the grain corporation yesterday announced the appointment of W. G. Kellogg of Minneapolis to take charge of these operations. The announcement came after officials of the corporation had conferred with S. R. McKelvie, grain member of the federal farm board.

"Mr. Kellogg has been under consideration for this place by officials of the marketing corporation for some time," it was stated. "He will have full charge of the corporation's grain operations in all markets. Mr. Kellogg comes to Chicago from the Archer-Daniels Midland company of Minneapolis, where he has been in charge of the company's wheat department for two and a half years. Prior to that he was president of the Delmar company of Minneapolis, a subsidiary of the Armour Grain company. Mr. Kellogg started in the grain business in Milwaukee as an office boy twenty-five years ago."

Steamer Olympic Sails with $12,500,000 in Gold

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 20.—Gold shipments on board the steamship Olympic were increased to $12,500,000 just before the vessel sailed for Europe. Most of the metal is marked for France.

Lazard Freres announced a shipment of $8,000,000, Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. will send $2,500,000 and the Equitable Trust company $2,000,000, making the largest total shipments to France since the resumption of the gold movement to that country. The shipments tonight bring the total gold exported from the United States since Nov. 1 to approximately $87,000,000, of which England has taken about two-thirds.

SWIFT, MECHANICAL FIRMS CHARGED WITH UNFAIR COMPETITION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Formal complaint charging two officials of Swift & Co., packers, and the Mechanical Manufacturing company of Chicago with practicing unfair methods of competition was made today by the federal trade commission.

Naming R. O'Hara and W. A. Mayfield, manager and assistant manager respectively of the traffic department of Swift & Co., the commission's complaint said they induced and compelled railway companies to purchase gears and other equipment manufactured by the Mechanical Manufacturing company by unfair methods.

The complaint charged that the two officials, coöperating with officials of the Mechanical Manufacturing company, compelled railways to purchase equipment by promises and assurances that certain volumes of freight would be shipped over their lines by Swift & Co. and its subsidiary corporations; by threats of withdrawal of freight traffic from the lines if the companies would not purchase equipment and by promises of increased volume of freight traffic.

Louis F. Swift last night said that he was not familiar with the details of the charges and declined to make any comment. He intimated that some sort of a statement might be given out today.

EVERITT DENIES WARD DIVIDEND OMISSION RUMOR

Wall street rumors that Mongomery Ward & Co., Chicago mail order and chain store concern, might cut off common stock dividends were emphatically denied by President George G. Everitt yesterday. The rumor accompanied heavy selling which sent the price of Montgomery Ward stock down to a new low level.

"We have not considered omission of the common stock dividend and we have no intention of omitting it," Mr. Everett said. "It is a maliciously false rumor evidently disseminated by unscrupulous speculators on the bear side of the market. The company is making money and growing steadily. Our business for this year will set a new high record and our gain in profits is large."

News Agency Predicts New Rail Grouping

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 20.—Dow, Jones & Co., in a copyrighted dispatch from its Washington bureau today, says that the interstate commerce commission's railroad consolidation plan has been completed, allocating the country's railway properties into nineteen major systems, comprising five systems in the east.

Based upon the present four trunk line system and an additional system, the nucleus of which would be the Wabash, official publication of the plan is expected tomorrow, says the Dow-Jones dispatch, according to the Associated Press.

Cites General Impression.

In addition to the five systems in the east, two are planned for New England, three for the south and nine for the west. These are exclusive of the Canadian controlled Soo line, Grand Trunk, Western and Vermont Central. The dispatch says that the plan is not viewed in responsible quarters as an ironclad affair, but the general impression is that the plan is intended as a guide for the ultimate groupings and puts the burden of proof on the carriers.

In the east the New York Central and Pennsylvania systems would be left substantially as they are. The Wabash is scheduled to receive the Lehigh Valley, the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, the Western Maryland, Wheeling and Lake Erie and an interest in the Chesapeake and Ohio railway of Indiana.

The Baltimore and Ohio would receive the Reading, the Jersey Central and the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh. The Baltimore and Ohio and the Wabash would each get an interest in the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, recently acquired by the Pennroad corporation, an affiliate of the Pennsylvania railroad.

In New England the New Haven and the Boston and Maine would be considered as two separate units.

Excludes Burlington.

The three main systems in the south would be the Southern, the Atlantic Coast Line, and the Illinois Central.

In the west, the outstanding provision is the exclusion of the Burlington from the northern group and its use as the basis of a separate system. The various systems would be based on the Burlington, the St. Paul, the Atchison, the Rock Island, the Southern Pacific, the Missouri Pacific, the Union Pacific, the Chicago and North Western and the Great Northern and Northern Pacific taken as one.

DOMESTIC BOND PRICES LOWER, RAILS EXCEPTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 20.—Domestic bond prices were pushed lower today in sympathy with stocks, although there were several notable exceptions, particularly in the rail group. Transactions were slightly heavier than on the previous day.

Foreign loans were steady, Argentine issues making further recoveries from the lows for the year touched in mid-week, and United States government bonds were irregular.

Convertible bonds, with few exceptions, closed lower. American Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s dropped 4 points, International Telephone convertible 4½s, 3⅜ points; Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe convertible 4½s, 2 points, and Dodge Bros. convertible 6s, 1 point.

The actively traded Texas corporation convertible 5s sold off ¼ of a point, Commercial Investment Trust convertible 5½s the same amount, while New Haven convertible 6s dropped 2 points and the convertible 3½s of the road, ½ of a point.

In the railroad group, Chesapeake and Ohio general 4½s, registered, jumped 5¼ points; Missouri Pacific 5s of 1965, 2¼ points, and Union Pacific 1st 4s of 1947, registered, 3½ points. Seaboard issues closed lower, as did most of the Baltimore and Ohio issues.

REVIVE PLANS FOR MERGER OF CHICAGO BANKS

Northwestern, Home Directors Act.

Plans for the merger of the Northwestern Trust and Savings bank and the Home Bank and Trust company were revived yesterday when directors of the two institutions met and approved a consolidation program.

An agreement to combine the two banks was made last September but were upset when stockholders of the Northwestern Trust and Savings refused to ratify the previous action of directors when they met Nov. 4. No reason was given at that time for the failure of Northwestern shareholders to approve the plan but it was thought that the decline in the bank stock market and the general market deflation influenced the decision.

Slated for President.

F. E. Lackowski, chairman of the Northwestern, who is slated to be president of the new institution, stated yesterday that the new agreement, shortly to be submitted to stockholders of both banks, will probably be ratified.

The proposed bank will be known as the Northwestern Home Trust and Savings bank and will have a capitalization of $2,500,000. Resources will exceed $30,000,000 and surplus will be $1,000,000. Peter L. Evans, president of the Home bank, will be chairman of the board of the merged institution.

One of Largest Outside Loop.

If the merger goes through the institution will be one of the largest outside of the loop. Under the present agreement stockholders of the Northwestern Trust and Savings will receive 13,800 shares and stockholders of the Home Trust will get 11,200 shares.

An extra dividend of $4.00 a share in addition to the regular payment of $3.00 was voted yesterday by the directors of the Northwestern Trust and Savings.

Drexel State bank directors declared an extra of 2 per cent, payable to holders of record Dec. 31, besides the regular dividend of 2½ per cent. Stockholders of the Independence State bank will receive an extra payment of 1 per cent in addition to the quarterly disbursement of 1½ per cent.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 20.—Heavy selling in the shares of mail order houses and department stores precipitated a sharp break on the stock market today. Prices on the more active issues dropped from 2 to 20 points.

Scores of standard issues, including many of the so-called pivotals, sold to the lowest levels registered since the first rebound from the October-November break.

Sales were the heaviest in weeks, amounting to 5,532,600 shares. At times during the late trading the ticker fell as much as 55 minutes behind operations on the floor of the exchange. The close found an average of ninety of the leading stocks of the board down to levels which showed that more than half their gains made on the recovery from the big break had been wiped out. The average gain on the issues figuring in this compilation amounted to about 40 points from Nov. 13, when they touched bottom, to Dec. 7, when the "comeback" movement reached its peak.

Late Hour Rally.

Up to the last hour, when a moderate rally served to jack up prices a few points here and there, the bears had things pretty much their own way in the trading today. They were aided by liquidation from those who wished to establish losses for use in their income tax reports and by selling by nervous traders who had become alarmed at the ease with which stocks ordinarily looked to for guidance in market operations have been yielding to pressure for the last week or so.

Rumors of big companies prepared to pass or reduce their dividends were circulated all day. Some of the leading mail order and department stores of the country were named in these reports, which seemed to find ready credence in many quarters in spite of the fact that all of the concerns mentioned have reported very satisfactory Christmas trade.

Is Special Target.

Montgomery Ward was the special target of the bear crowd. It was pounded down in the early afternoon to 42⅝, a dip of 11 points from last night's close and some 5 points below the low point of resistance established by the stock on the recent crash.

Enough buying orders appeared before the close, however, to pump the price back to 45½, which left it with a net loss of a little more than 3 points on the day.

Sears-Roebuck was under attack all day and dropped almost 7 points to 89½, likewise recovering a part of its loss. It closed at 91⅝, off 5⅜ points. May Department Stores was driven down 10 points, Macy sunk nearly 13 and Abraham & Straus about 9, all rebounding with the group leader.

United States Steel was acutely weak from the outset and emerged with a net loss of 5⅜ points after having registered a dip of more than 9 points earlier in the day.

General Electric sold down 10 points to 45½, and Anaconda, which sold at 76 early in the day, dropped to 71. Electric made up about half its loss before the finish, but Anaconda stuck within a fraction of its low of the day.

Among Heavier Losers.

Among the heavier losses were Columbia Carbon, which lost 21 points on the day's operations; Brooklyn Union Gas, which dropped 17¾; Pere Marquette, off 16; American Machine and Foundry, off 19; Auburn Auto, 9¾; Case, down 10, and Allied Chemical, off 8½ points.

Blocks of 5,000 to 10,000 shares of some of the leading stocks were dumped into the sinking market at rather frequent intervals around the middle of the afternoon when the downward movement was in full sway.

Rise in Call Rate Starts Bulls' Retreat.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Bear traders were hard at it again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. With the news in their favor, they swung left and right sparing neither the weak nor the sturdy and when the gong sounded there was no quibbling over the decision. There was no knockout, but bruises were plentiful.

The rise in the call rate gave the bears the advantage and the bulls with the odds against them retreated in a shower of liquidation.

Grigsby Grunow Is Unchanged.

Active issues were pushed back sharply and with few exceptions were unable to regain lost ground. Leading the market in activity, Grigsby Grunow was forced down two points to 17⅛, but fought its way back to close unchanged. Wextark was pushed 3½ points to 22 and was able to regain only a fraction before the finish. Ceco, selling ex-dividend, dropped more than a point and failed retrieve all but a fraction.

Leading automotive stocks were lower. Auburn closed at 185, ten points under the previous day's price. Bendix Aviation, Noblitt Sparks each lost more than two points. Borg Warner slipped 2⅛ to close at 31⅝.

C. S. Davis, president of Borg Warner, yesterday reported that net earnings of the company for the eleven months ended Nov. 30 were $7,155,803. The earnings are equal to $5.63 a share on the outstanding after provision for minority interests and preferred stock dividends.

Current assets, as of Nov. 30, were reported at $19,357,433, against current liabilities of $3,816,643. The president stated that cash on hand amounted to $3,510,280, while call loans and marketable securities were valued at $4,784,822.

Butler Brothers was again subjected to selling pressure and fell to a new low at 13½, but rallied and closed at 14⅝ with a net loss for the day of nearly two points.

Insull Utility Suffers.

Insull Utility was the chief sufferer among the investment issues. The stock was off net four points from its previous close. Utility and Industrial and Continental Chicago fell back 1¾ and 2¼ points, respectively. Chicago corporation was down a fraction at the finish.

In a statement issued yesterday J. W. Gardner, chairman of the board of the Gardner Denver company, said that the volume of business done by the company in 1929 was the greatest in the history of the organization. Unfilled orders on the books of the company indicate a continuance of the prosperity enjoyed during the last year, he declared.

Referring to the industrial situation of the country, Mr. Gardner said: "Basically, I believe the country to be in a very sound condition. This statement is made after looking squarely at conditions from all angles."

Chicago Curb Market Stocks

Lower prices were made yesterday for all stocks with Allied Mills breaking to 11¾, almost the lowest of the year. Armour issues were weaker and the entire list, with the exception of Mid-City, showed declines. National Recording Pump broke nearly 2 points a share, despite declaration of an extra dividend of 50c a share on convertible stock payable Dec. 31. Square D "A" declared a quarterly dividend of 55c: Allied Mills will pay a dividend of 15c on Dec. 31.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Copper Situation.

As prices drift downward there continues to be some talk of a drop in the price of copper metal. The producers declare they will be able to hold the price at 18. One report from Europe was that copper stocks were low and that the consumers must come into the market very soon. Some of the copper men claim that the consumers cannot hold off much longer.

Bears Cautious.

American Can held fairly well yesterday owing to rumors of large buying orders just under the $110 ex level which aided the stock, apparently easing the bear crowd to proceed with care. It is estimated that between $8 and $8.50 a share will be available for the common this year, to dividend on which was recently increased to $4 with an extra of $1.

Bid Order Selling.

Continued selling of Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward had an unsettling influence on other stocks. Those looking for trouble assumed that much of the selling was liquidation for the account of those who were familiar with the business of the mail order trade, and it was therefore concluded that sales were falling. In all probability Sears and Ward will feel the effects of business recession, along with other lines of business, but farm buying power is up fairly well to last of a gear ago and in hard times large merchandising establishments catering to people of small or moderate means, do well. The greatest drop which could come to the mail order would be a sharp drop in commodity prices, but the lack of inflation in commodities does not suggest that contingency, it is asserted.

Earnings Prospects.

U. S. Industrial Alcohol, which paid 2 extra of $1 a share on the common in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of $1.50, should net between $13 and $15 a share for the year, it is said, depending on changes during the remainder of the month.

HEAVY SELLING CAUSES DROP IN WHEAT PRICES

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Heavy selling of wheat futures attributed to a leading Eastern operator ran the market yesterday in a general liquidating condition and with stop loss orders uncovered prices dropped 3¼@3½c from the finish of the previous day to a new low on the present movement.

The finish was within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of 2⅞@3c. Winnipeg broke 2¾@2⅞c, while Liverpool dropped 2@2½d. Buenos Aires finished ⅛@1c lower and Rosario unchanged to ½c lower.

Local Sentiment Bearish.

There was little in the general run of the news that attracted attention, but local sentiment was bearish and houses with eastern connections and local professionals sold freely and found support lacking. The best buying was on resting orders and by holders of bids. Weakness in the stock market had some effect on grains.

Disgusted longs have been going out of their lines of wheat for a number of days past, the failure of foreigners to come into the market as free buyers, and the decidedly limited export clearances being a factor. No exports of domestic wheat have been reported at the leading Atlantic and Gulf ports during the past three days. At the inside figure yesterday May wheat showed 17¾c under the recent high and at $1.25½ showed the lowest since Nov. 14.

Fear Farm Board Action.

Recent announcement by the farm board to the effect that loans would continue to be made to producers on the basis of $1.18 for No. 1 hard winter wheat at Chicago, $1.15 at Omaha and Kansas City and $1.25 for No. 1 northern at Minenapolis regardless of the action of the latter markets caused some operators to go slow on the selling side during the day, as the December delivery at leading points dropped below the board's loaning basis.

There was a little buying, however, on a statement by President Legge that a representative was now abroad preparing markets for the Grain corporation.

Holiday dullness which usually makes its appearance in the grain markets at this season of the year is having the effect of curtailing operations on either side. There was buying by houses with export connections on the break and the seaboard estimated sales abroad in all positions were around 1,000,000 bu. R. O. Cromwell, the Lamson Bros. & Co. crop observer, who has just returned from Argentina, estimates that including the carryover there will be an exportable surplus in that country of around 130,000,000 bu, with the quality poorer than last year, but better than in 1925.

December Corn Tight.

While trade in corn was light the market showed a firm undertone early with the December acting tight, but the list eased toward the last with wheat and the close was ⅝@⅞c lower. Elevator interests bought December and sold May, and the difference narrowed around ½c for the day. Buenos Aires finished ½c lower with good rains reported in parts of the corn belt of Argentina. Country offerings to arrive were small.

Local operators and houses with northwestern connections sold oats but there was good support on resting orders, and the finish was ⅛c higher to ⅝c lower, the former on December which finished 2⅞c under the May.

Rye broke in sympathy with wheat and closed ⅛@3c lower. A commission house was a good buyer of May early, and there was little pressure on it thereafter.

LARD AND MEATS DECLINE

Scattered selling of lard and bellies, due to a break in the hog market and the sharp decline in grains and securities, accompanied by selling by packers to hedge their output, carried prices of lard down 5@12½c yesterday, the latter on December. Bellies were off 15@20c.

Lard in Liverpool was 3@6d lower and bellies off 1s and backs off 2s. Exports of lard, however, were 2,473,920 lbs. Cash trade was moderate.
